You've seen it, folks-how do you like it? We're referring to the exciting newsbeat we've been keeping under our hats and have just sprung as a king-size surprise. "Nemesis", latest and greatest of costume heroes. If you don't believe it, trot out the competitors and he'll beat 'em up with one hand tied behind him. Seriously, we think he's something special. Not just another strong man, but a vital and vibrant character who's right for our magazine. Why? Because he's supernatural-because be's come tearing out of the Unknown itself, ready for come what may. We think you're going to go for "Nemesis" in a big way-do you agree? We'd like to hear your opinions, so please write to The Editor, "Adventures Into The Unknown", 331 Madis on Avenue, New York 17, N. Y. As ever, we'll try to publish interesting letters.

"Dear Editor:-

I have just finished 'Adventures Into The Unknown' and 1 think the idea of the story 'Medal of Honor' was terrific! Also, I think the art was supteme and would like to congratulate the artist. There was just one thing that 1 think was wrong about the story. I disagree with the fact that you have Amos Martin go into the past and then come back to the present. What this amounts to is that he may actually live for a few thousand years. He might even go back and meet himself in the past! According to my above statement (you may or may not agree with me) Amos should have met himself, unless he bad already run away. Aside from this, 1 think your book is great and I can't wait until the next issue!
-Bradley D. Kronstat,
521 Queen Street, Westbury, N. Y." You've raised a ticklish point that affects all time traviel stories, Brad. Actually, it doesn't pay to go so deeply into things. Better to accept an interesting story setup as just that and enjoy it! We try to keep things as autbentic and plausible as pos. sible, but in some situations, fiction can only go so far before coming up against a snag. Don't look for snags, because they can spoil your fun!

' Dear Editor:-

Subject: 'Adventures Into The Unknown' Opinion: Excellent. (Most of the time.) Although I have been reading and enjoying 'A. I. T. U.' for quite some time, this is my first letter of cheers or jeers. But after finishing No. 149, I felt I had to write. 'Medal Of Honor', in my, opinion, was one of your best and Shane O'Shea and Chic Stone were again great. Truth is I am a bit partial to Shane O'Shea stories! 'Watch Your Step. Fella' was rather cute in a nutty sort of way, because in my opinion, it just didn's have a plot, no impact. And 'Medicine Man's Curse' was slightly stupid. In short, 'Medal Of Honor' was the only good one and it alone would have made this issue! Again cheers and thanks for a terrific magaziae. But please, please, please, to steady character'. We get enough of them in other comics. And in closing-even if you do occasionally slip on a story, of the art gets sloppy, no one is, perfect-not even, unfortunately, Shane O'Shea. So as long as you ke ep printing 'A, I. T. U. ${ }^{\prime}$, I'll keep on buying it! P.S: 'Herbie' is great!
-Mrs. Gaile Blalock,
2876 Sixth St., Apt. No. 5,
Riverside, Calif.
Tbanks for a nice letter, Mrs, Blalock. We couldn't disagree more than about "Watch Your Step, Fella". That one was offbeat from the word go. It was designed to show wild and woolly adventures in space with tongue very definitely in cheek, and we think it did so with complete success. It was the combination of a zany yarn like this with a story of grim adventure like "Medal of Honor" which lent variety and balance to this issue, we'd say. About steady cbaracters-we've always avoided them because it seemed to us that supernatural and science fiction stories such as we run are too varied, too different one from the other to attempt to connect them tbrougb the use of steady characters. However, readers bave been pressuring us to come up with a "costume bero". If we find some way that be can fit into our formula-wbo knows? But we'd have to be convinced, first, that be'd be an improvement. Finally, glad you like "Herbie". Let us point out that be was a steady character, running in occasional issues of "Forbidden Worlds" until bis popularity gave bim bis own book.
"Dear Editor:-
Until I purchased issue No. 144 of 'Adventures Into The Unknown' 1 felt you were turning out a good magazine. But the pages wasted on 'What A Picture it. Would Make' were just that. Wasted! Did you ever read 'The Pied Piper of Hamlet'? What happened to the art of using one's imagination? 'Coward' of the Fanfare Series was the greatest. Absolute ly superb! I was thrilled and excited by just daydreaming of the story possibilities after reading it. Professor Meeker might have been sent back to Pickett's Charge or Bunker Hill. 'Welcome To A Hero' was a good story, but other magazines have used the plot. Please try to turn out somerhing better than 'What A Picture it Would Make'. I'll ber you don't print this letter!!!
-Danay Perkins,
Route No. 1, Box 14, Bradshaw, Neb." Of course we'll try to turn out something better than. "What A Picture It Would Make", Danny. We always try to improve on anytbing we carry-tbat's what is known as progress. But very frankly, we feel that topping a story like this just isn't easy. You're completely entitled to your opinion, of course. But. so are we, and our carefully considered opinion is that this story was a high quality product. Most emphatically it was influenced by "The Pied Piper Of Hamelin"we'll excuse your misspelling-but so what? Great stories influence countless otherseven. "West Side Story"' borrowed its plot angle from "Romeo And Juliet". It wasn't any lack of imagination that resulted in using the "Pied Piper" wrinkle, On the contrary, we feel that our writer used great imagination in bis story development tbroughout. For instance, you can't improve on a burlesque comedian of today being a throwback to a medieval sorcerer! But we wonder if your criticism was really sincere. "I'll bet you don't print this letter" is the customary dare of someone who's used an outright attack on us as a means of baving bis letter printed!
" Dear Editor:-
I have finished issue No. 145 of 'A, I. T, $U$.' which I waited so long for. It must be labeled as the best ever in my book, but then that's what I usually think of each new issue. Zev Zimmer's 'Making of A Man' is a story I especially enjoyed. Particularly the ending. 'Tbe Spectral Steno' was hilarious. What a gorgeous witch! It certainly was clever and original. Thanks for a great magazine!
-Danny Perkins,
Route No. 1, Box 14, Bradshaw, Neb." We bope we're not doing you an injustice, Danny...but now comes tbis letter of complete praise, in which you state "That's what I usually think of each new issue." It sort of sounds to us as if you might have said to yourself. "I'll show these folks up. I'll send two letters, one a knock and the other a boost. They'll only publish the boost and I'll have them then!"' If this was the way you were thinking, you were wrong. We like hearing nice things, but we'll willingly publish brickbats as well. Of course, we may be all wrong on this thing-maybe you never meant it this way at all. If that's the case, our apologies!

[^0]no. right to, Charlotte...in other words, we've made our occasionial errors. But we welcome sincere criticism when we fall down. Sometimes critics may be wrong, or too severe. We don't mind this at all. $1 t^{\prime \prime}$ s only when they get vicious that we rear back and yell!

"'Dear Editor:-

I have been reading your comic book since its earliest issues and 1 hate to say it, but you have been steadily declining. Both artwork and stories get worse every issue. Your writers are not very good, but neither are any other comic book writers today. Changing public taste has made it permissible for a writer to turn out a bad story and still have it acclaimed as good. Readers today are not as critical of stories as they were ten or eleven years ago. If your comic as it is today was put out in 1953, it would not sell at all, whereas today it is a fairly successful magazine. When a reader criticises your writing techniques, you always reply, that 'vampires and werewolves are old hat'. I think this is your way of saying that your writers are not talented enough to turn out a good weird story. Some of the stories of the early 50 's were really masterpieces from every point of view. Artwork and stories were flawless. They used vampires and werewolves in their stories, but their writers were talented enough to use them in such a way that they weren't old hat. Saying that vampires, werewolves; zombies, etc. are old hat is just proving that your writers aren't smart enough to use them in an original way. Your new approach', as you call it, has been going for eight years now and I would say that it has become old hat! Mr. Editor, 1 appeal to you, if you are interested in having the biggestselling comic book on the stands today, then why don't you change your format? Fire your present art and writing staff-to be frank, they stink. Get some of the old artists and writers of the early fifties to do your stories!

- Gerard Geary,

66 Brightwood Rd., Waltham 54, Mass:" You mean every word you say, Gerard-but man, are you on the wrong train! The stories you rave about were turned out by incompetents who couldn't bold a job today. With a few exceptions bere and there, all they could do was shovel senseless borror at the reader and repeat their plots over and over. Why did they bold their jobs? Because the. readers of that day were on a borror kick, and just as long as the plots were gruesome, they cared little about their quality. Today's readers are more discriminating and we can't get away with tbat stuff. We've retained only the better of those writers, unleasbed their imaginations' and turned them loose on skilfully-plotted amaz. ing stories. And the only ones who seem unaware of the tremendous improvement are those who long for the shoddy, inferior yarns of yesteryear!

    I must say you've got one of the most eajoyable comics out. 1 really enjoyed 'Medal Of Honor'. And as for the rest of the stories, they were good also. In your 'Let's Talk It Over' pages, some of the letters sent in are disgraceful. I don't think that any of your stories are below par!
