This model is perfectly designed for high-speed flight! As soon as it picks up power from the motion of your hand, it will lift up its nose, its wings will begin to cut through the air, it will flash upward and streak ahead of you! As you give it more and more line it will turn wider and wider, fly faster and faster! You have perfect control every second of its flight! You can fly it in circles only five feet wide, or you can take it outdoors and fly it in gigantic arcs

one hundred feet wide—the size of an entire city lot—so fast that your eye can hardly follow it—BUT EVERY SECOND UNDER YOUR COMPLETE CONTROL!

You can make this plane soar upward—stall at fantastic heights—dive towards the ground—and then pick up speed and flash upward again in a breath-taking rescue! You can make the engines on your plane scream like fighters at bursts of 600 scale miles an hour! You can make them purr softly at cruising speed—hear them roar again as your plane picks up altitude and speed!

You can spiral this magnificent model down into a perfect landing! You can fly two or more planes in perfect formation! You can have jet races! You can have an entire fleet of breath-taking models flown by every member of your family—and you can have them all for only $1.00 a piece plus 25¢ postage & handling—LESS THAN ONE-FIFTH THE PRICE YOU'D EXPECT TO PAY!

When a bike means money in your pocket

IT'S GOOD TO HAVE GOODYEAR TIRES

You're looking at Elbert Edward Dickey, a hard-working young Texan. Only 13 years old, he rides 10 miles a day for the Houston Press, delivers more than 200 papers daily. Elbert attends Holy Name School, plays tackle for the seventh grade eleven. His busy bike has rolled for more than a year on the same stalwart Goodyear tires.

Good tires are nice to have, even if you ride just for fun. But when you need your bike in your business—like Elbert Dickey—nothing but the best tires will do.

That's why he depends on a pair of tough, bruise-resistant Goodyears to get those papers delivered every day, in every kind of weather.

Goodyear tires are made with rubber that's specially compounded to take plenty of punishment. And their treads are made to grip and hold—on pavements, dirt roads, even in snow and slush.

So whether you're delivering papers for the boss, groceries for Mom—or just visiting your buddy down the street—you'll find it good to be riding Goodyears. Your nearby bike dealer will help you pick the type that's best for your bike. See him soon.

The Bully

"You're just too young, Linda Sue," Edna Mae was saying haughtily. "This club is for older girls — not for infants!"

"I — I am not an infant!" gulped Linda Sue. "Honest, Edna Mae, I'd be a real g-good club member. I — I'd come to all the meetings..."

"Only you're not going to be invited to the meetings!" interrupted Edna Mae rudely. "And that's my last word on the subject! Goodbye!"

"Aw, why not let her join, Edna Mae?" asked Nancy Collins suddenly. "So what if she's a couple of months younger than the rest of us?"

Edna Mae only looked at Nancy — but her look spoke volumes. Nancy seemed to shrink down inside her dress like Alice-in-Wonderland, and her face turned beet-red. "I — I'm sorry, Edna Mae," she said haltingly. "You know best, I guess..." Her voice trailed off in a little whimper.

"I certainly do!" snapped Edna Mae. "And what's more I know now that you wouldn't be a good club member either, Miss Collins! So you can forget all about belonging, and run along with your precious Linda Sue!"

A shocked gasp went up from the rest of the girls — but nobody dared speak. Edna Mae had them all bullied into submission.

She was the oldest and the biggest and the strongest, and she allowed no one to talk back to her. The new club was her idea, and she was the boss. She was always the boss. Until she'd moved into the neighborhood, all the girls had been friends and playmates. Age hadn't made a great deal of difference. They'd all simply had fun together — and nobody bullied anyone else. But with the coming of Edna Mae, all that had changed. Her sharp tongue and her nasty temper had quickly reduced one girl after another to tears — until she, Edna Mae, was the undisputed leader. No one wanted to risk an argument with her, so no one challenged her. And now, with the club, she was showing off her absolute power — and enjoying it.

"Let's go, Linda Sue," mumbled Nancy, dabbing at her eyes with a hankie.

Linda Sue looked from Edna Mae to Nancy and back again. "No," she said loudly, in a voice so stern it surprised even her. "I'm not going until I tell Miss Edna Mae Wallace what I think of her!" She looked Edna Mae squarely in the eye. "You're a bully and a coward!" she said clearly. "And I'm sorry for you! Yes, I pity you because you hate yourself so much you think you have to force people to be your friends! You never gave us a chance to like you for yourself because you were afraid to!"

"I . . . I . . ." Edna Mae's voice was all choked up. "Linda Sue," she whispered, "I — I'd like you to be the president of my club!" And as the others cheered wildly, Linda Sue and Edna Mae hugged each other tight. And there were tears of happiness sparkling in both girls' eyes!

Scandal's Adventure

Scandal was a gay little black cocker spaniel puppy. His mother had named him Scandal because she said his blithe, devil-may-care spirit was sure to involve him in an honest-to-goodness scandal some one of these days! "That's why I want you to stay on this side of that fence!" she'd tell him, pointing to the picket fence that surrounded the yard they lived in. "You're to stay right here in this yard where you belong, young man! You're much too young to go gallivanting around outside! There's plenty of room for you to play right here!"

Scandal loved his mother, and he didn't want to hurt her or worry her by disobeying, but oh, how hard it was for him to resist the alluring world outside! He yearned so to see it, to find out for himself what it was like. And finally, one day, the lure became just too great for him to withstand. "Surely if I show Mother I can take care of myself . . . maybe even if I bring her back a present . . . she won't mind my going after all!" he reasoned. And with that, the naughty pup burrowed a hole under the fence and wriggled out!

Once on the other side, he ran as fast as his little legs could carry him, fearful that his mother would discover his absence and come after him. He ran until he was thoroughly out of breath, and when he stopped he found himself in a sprawling green meadow that sparkled beneath the noonday sun like a rich green carpet. The sky above him was blue and cloudless. The air was fresh and sweet. "Oh, how lovely it is here!" Scandal exclaimed aloud. "How can anyone live inside a stuffy old yard when they can roam free and wide like this?"

So all that day he romped in the meadow. He played tag with his own tail. He pawed the grass. He made faces at the silent, stolid cows. All in all, he had a wonderful time. But as dusk grew near, he began to get hungry . . . and there was nothing there for a puppy dog to eat. Then . . . suddenly . . . night fell, and everything was different. The sky was dark and empty. The grass was wet and slippery. The cows became huge and terrifying shapes lurking in the darkness. Whimpering with fear, Scandal took to his heels.

But the night was so black, the meadow so huge. . . and Scandal so very small. In no time at all, he was hopelessly lost! Poor Scandal. He ran until his legs gave out . . . and then he dropped to the ground in a sobbing heap. Why, oh why hadn't he obeyed his mother? Why hadn't he stayed in his own yard . . . safe and warm and protected? Terror clutched at his heart all through the long, lonely hours of the night.

But at last it was dawn, and then, in the first faint rays of the sun, he could see the road that led . . . home! He practically flew, rather than ran, the distance. And when, finally, he slipped through the hole under the fence back into the haven of the yard . . . before his mother could even speak . . . Scandal sobbed a solemn vow never, never to go exploring again!
