CASPER'S DIARY

Gosh, it's taken me such a long time to find you. I've been so swamped with letters from my friends all over the world that I've even had trouble finding myself!

Let me mention the names of a few of my letter writers to you, dear Diary. I received mail from such wonderful boys and girls as Mary Lou Montaho, of Frankfort, Ind.; Roger Sindelar, of Omaha, Nebraska; Helen Cameron, of Seattle, Wash.; Jeff Woodman, of Machias, Maine; Carol Spencer, of Logan, Utah; Hedges MacDonald, of Chicago, Ill.; Lonnie Evans, of Belvidere, Ill.; Dolores Dunn, of Toronto, Ontario; Richard Hogate, of Coquille, Oregon; Helen Gecosky, of Mt. Carmel, Pa.; Merryl Weissman, of Brooklyn, N. Y. and so many, many more.

They had such nice things to tell me, too. Some of them told me about their wonderful families, some told me about where they live, some told me about their classes in school — but whatever it was they had to say, it was so nice hearing from them.

You know, dear Diary, when you get the kind of friendly mail I've been receiving, it makes you feel sure that most people are really friendly. So from now on, when some people aren't too nice to me, I'm going to try and think of those beautiful letters. I think I might then feel a little bit better.

Lots of those letters, by the way, mentioned how much they liked Nightmare and little Wendy, the witch girl. And I'm so happy to say that both Nightmare and Wendy will be joining Spooky and myself next month in some of the funniest and most exciting adventures you've ever seen.

There's going to be a big race between the ghosts and the witches. There's going to be a thrilling adventure with the strangest of giants. There's going to be a mad-cap story about a ghost catcher. Oh, gee, I don't know why I've run away with myself like this, dear Diary. You'll be able to see it all for yourself in the very next issue.

There's one thing more that I'd like to mention to you, Diary, even though I've said it before. I sure wish I had the time to write to each and every one of the people that write me, but, gosh, I just don't have the time. So could you please say thank you to all of them for me, and tell them I wish them a happy vacation. Tell them that though I can't visit each of them personally, we can be together in some way through my comics magazine.

So long for now, Diary.

DAY OFF

Bobby Davis' dad didn't get many days off, but Bobby didn't mind too much. You see, Mr. Davis was a professional baseball player and Bobby would come to watch every game his father played.

Still, it was a big day for the Davises when Mr. Davis didn't have to play ball.

"Gosh," Mr. Davis would say to his son, "a whole day to spend with you. What would you want to do, Bobby?"

"We might take a drive in the country," Bobby would suggest.

So Mrs. Davis would pack a lunch for the two of them, and they would go off into the country air at the crack of dawn.

But they wouldn't be driving long before Bobby would say, "Dad, don't you think we could try something else besides driving?"

Mr. Davis would smile. "How about a nice swim," he would say.

Bobby would nod his head, and they would pull up the car at the nearest lake.

This wouldn't last too long either, however. One or the other, and usually both would get tired of this very soon. So then they'd try to fish for awhile.

"Enjoying this, son?" Mr. Davis would ask as they waited to feel a tug on their lines.

"In a way, I guess," Bobby would answer. "But can't we do something else?"

And so they would. For a while, they would play miniature golf. Then they would bowl together. Then they would try sitting in a movie. But they all ended up in the same way. Bobby would always end it with, "Can't we try something else?"

By the time the afternoon came around, the two of them were usually sitting in a restaurant, talking once more of what to do.

"Have any ideas, son?"

"Gee, Dad, I don't really know. We really tried a lot of things today."

"Guess we did."

Then there would be silence for a while as the two of them used their mouths only for their food. This would usually last till they would reach the dessert. Then Bobby would look up at his dad, and say:

"Do you think we ought to?"

"What do you think, Bobby?"

"I'd love to, Dad."

Mr. Davis would smile. "I guess I would, too."

"But, we'd better hurry!"

So they'd dash out of the restaurant, rush into the car, and before you could say Jackie Robinson, the two of them were having the time of their lives... at the baseball game!
