The Wingfoot "175" especially made for middleweight bikes. Now built with  Nylon Cord that is Triple-Tempered, like steel, to fight road-shock and fatigue.

A tough route requires tough tires (That's why he uses Goodyears)

This is Kirby Hamilton, Florida businessman. Week-days and weekends, he delivers the Florida Times-Union along a sandy stretch of Jacksonville Beach.

In his business, Kirby has learned plenty about bike tires. For example, his route is so tough . . . everything from coral-filled hard surfaces to loose beach sand . . . previous tires lasted only a few months before giving trouble. The Goodyears he's using now are still in great shape after eight months.

There's a good reason for the difference. Because Goodyear tires are built with 3-T Nylon Cord, they pack extra resistance to bumps, bruises and abrasions. And their super-tough treads wear longer, give you better grip, quicker, safer stops.

If you want to get the most possible fun and service out of your bike, better follow Kirby's example. Next time you need tires, see your Goodyear dealer. Goodyear, Cycle Tire Dept., Akron 16, Ohio.

THE BIG FIGHT

The big fight was all set. The Alley Cats had finally chosen the cat that was to fight Cecil, the champ of the Home Cats.

Before Cecil had taken to fighting, the Alley Cats would run rampant over the house pets. But now, with the one and only Cecil around, all the Alley Cats would think twice before they started with any of the Home Cats.

Yet all this could quickly disappear if Cecil ever lost — and Louie, the manager was thinking this. Should Cecil lose, the Alley Cats would quickly start making fools of the poor Home Cats!

All the cats of the neighborhood, those who lived in alleys and those who lived in homes, were out to watch this important fight.

"C'mon Cecil!" the voices from the Home Cat section were screaming.

"Boo, Cecil!" answered the Alley Cat rooters.

Then everything became quiet. The Alley cat's fighter was coming into the school-yard.

"Gee, look at him!" said one Home Catter.

"Wow!" said another.

This certainly was a powerful cat. In fact, he almost looked too powerful for a cat. He was about twice the size of Cecil, and Cecil was quite a big cat. He had muscles the size of watermelons and a chest like a barrel!

No one had ever seen him before, no one from either side.

The fighters were in their corners now. The referee was making the introductions.

"In this corner," said the ref, "is Cecil, world champion and pride of the Home Cats!"

"Yayyy!" shouted all the Home Cats.

"And in this corner," continued the ref, "is Powerhouse Pete!"

"Hey, I heard of Powerhouse P . . ." started a Home Cat rooter, but an Alley Cat fan stopped him short with, "Whatever he says, he's lying!" The Alley Catter had heard of Powerhouse Pete also.

The fighters were facing each other now, and now they were swinging.

BIFFF! BAMMM! POWWW! went Pete, and he was hitting home.

Poor Cecil was in terrible trouble. He was reeling. He couldn't even get a blow in. And Powerhouse Pete wasn't stopping!

But a voice from the Home Cat section was shouting again. "Hey, I'm sure I've heard of Powerhouse Pete! And he's not a cat! He's a young mountain lion who's been masquerading as a cat!"

The news swept through like wildfire. Until finally it reached the ears of Cecil.

"This is a dirty trick!" was all Cecil had time to say. For now he was moving toward Pete with fire in his eyes. BOOOM! BIFFF! BRAMMM! BINGG! BLAMM! went his fists and claws, and before someone could say again, "He's a mountain lion," Powerhouse Pete was down and out on his back.

The referee was lifting Cecil's paw a second later and saying, "Cecil is still champion of all cats and mountain lions, too!"

"I sure agree," puffed Pete, who was still watching stars.

WENDY, THE GOOD LITTLE WITCH

TOILS OF TROUBLE

"Hah! Hah! They're putting me into the infirmary," Private Justin was telling Private Fuller Trouble.

"The infirmary? Why? You look pretty healthy," said Private Trouble.

"Of course, I'm healthy," whispered Justin. "But you've got to take a rest every so often, you know." He winked at his friend. "Told them I had a cold," Private Justin continued. "Achooo! That's all I did. Achoo! Heh, heh! Almost sounds real!"

Private Justin was still giving his phoney sneeze as he left Trouble alone in the barracks.

"That guy's a pretty smart cookie," Trouble was telling himself. "Gets himself a rest when he can really enjoy it . . . when he's healthy enough to enjoy it! Bet I could do it myself."

He began to pace the floor. "I feel great," he said. "Better than I have in a long time. And I could really enjoy a rest. Now what sickness can I tell them I have?"

Private Trouble's mind began to wander in the land of sickness. He vetoed the idea of a bad cold. Sounded too much like Justin. Backache? No, there wasn't much cause for it. His Army life had been to easy lately. Strained eyes? No, everyone knew he didn't care much for reading.

But then it hit him. He'd make believe he was under nervous strain! He laughed at the thought because he never felt better.

But then he figured he was just in the proper frame of mind to put on the best act of his life.

"Better get myself some books on psychology," Private Trouble told himself. "This has got to be done just right."

So a short while later, he combed the camp library for books on psychology and rushed back to the barracks for some important studying.

"Now let me see," he said as he began to run through the books, "what could I have? Inferiority complex? Superiority complex? Depression? A crazy kind of fear?"

Then suddenly Private Trouble became interested in the books. He really was reading them. The sections on symptoms were fascinating. Well, at first, they were fascinating. Then they became frightening! Because Private Fuller Trouble was seeing the symptoms in himself!

"J-just like m-me," he gulped out. "I can't even pronounce it . . . and I know I have it!"

It was getting worse and worse. He read about the symptoms of ten disorders, and felt he had all ten disorders! Poor Private Trouble was really in trouble!

He was still staring at the books when the sergeant came walking in. The sergeant took one look at Trouble and he knew what to do.

"It's the infirmary for you," the sergeant ordered. "I just hope they can help you!"

Private Trouble didn't hear a word he said. He had just discovered he was a manic depressive.
