This model is perfectly designed for high-speed flight! As soon as it picks up power from the motion of your hand, it will lift up its nose, its wings will begin to cut through the air, it will flash upward and streak ahead of you! As you give it more and more line it will turn wider and wider, fly faster and faster! You have perfect control every second of its flight! You can fly it in circles only five feet wide, or you can take it outdoors and fly it in gigantic arcs

one hundred feet wide—the size of an entire city lot—so fast that your eye can hardly follow it—BUT EVERY SECOND UNDER YOUR COMPLETE CONTROL!

You can make this plane soar upward—stall at fantastic heights—dive towards the ground—and then pick up speed and flash upward again in a breath-taking rescue! You can make the engines on your plane scream like fighters at bursts of 600 scale miles an hour! You can make them purr softly at cruising speed—hear them roar again as your plane picks up altitude and speed!

You can spiral this magnificent model down into a perfect landing! You can fly two or more planes in perfect formation! You can have jet races! You can have an entire fleet of breath-taking models flown by every member of your family—and you can have them all for only $1.00 a piece plus 25¢ postage & handling—LESS THAN ONE-FIFTH THE PRICE YOU'D EXPECT TO PAY!

Before you pick your next bike tire get the pitch from this expert

Meet John David Arena, newsboy for the Milwaukee Journal. An eighth grader at St. Rita's school, he's an avid stamp collector and model boat maker. Covers his route on a mid-weight bike, equipped with Goodyear tires.

A successful newsboy just has to be a bike tire expert, too. John David Arena, for example, uses his bike seven days a week in getting the Journal to Milwaukee's south side. He couldn't afford to take chances on ordinary tires.

What kind of tires does John use? Although he's only 13, he has been riding Goodyear bike tires for six years.

John knows that Goodyears are made with rubber that's especially compounded to take hard bumps and bruises. Their treads are designed to grip and hold — on pavements, dirt roads, even in winter weather.

Even if you don't use your bike for work, you'll get more fun out of cycling when you ride sturdy, dependable Goodyears. Ask your dealer to show you the Goodyear line. He'll help you pick the size and type that best fits your bike. Goodyear, Cycle Tire Dept., Akron 16, Ohio.

THE RULE OF THE JUNGLE

With a terrible swoosh the great lion's paw swung. Marty Monkey ducked and stood still long enough to watch the huge cat prepare to swing again. Then with great chattering Marty scampered up a tall tree to safety.

The little monkey glared down at the great lion and mumbled to himself. His friend Michael leaped over from another tree and smacked him on the back.

"I'll bet I know what you're saying to yourself!" said Michael happily. "I'll bet you're saying, 'Thank goodness I escaped without getting hurt!' You were lucky! I saw it all!"

"I'm not saying any such thing!" shouted Marty. "I'm bawling myself out for being such a coward! I should have ducked under his right and planted one right in his whiskers! Instead I ran up a tree . . . I'm nothing but a coward!"

Marty blubbered and Michael looked at him in amazement. "You must be kidding!" Michael exclaimed. "A monkey doesn't swing back at a LION!"

"Why not?" Marty demanded fiercely. "A monkey is just as good as any other animal."

"If you hadn't run he would have taken you apart. You didn't run from cowardice but out of wisdom," Michael explained patiently. "The little always run from the big! It's the rule of the jungle!"

"Who made the rule?" Marty persisted stubbornly. "If the little weren't such cowards — like me — maybe they could break the rule!"

Michael was finally exasperated. "What a stupid question!" he shouted. "Nobody made the rule. Everybody runs from SOMETHING!" And Michael leaped to another tree, mumbling to himself.

"Hmf!" Marty muttered after him. "That sounds like something a monkey would say just to make himself feel better!"

While he mumbled a wind sprang up. It grew in intensity and began to howl and the trees began to sway. Then the rain came in torrents and the jungle became a bedlam of terrified screaming animals as the storm reached full hurricane proportions. Blinded by the rain and deafened by the wind and hanging on to a tree limb for life, Marty felt somebody pulling by the arm. He allowed himself to be led and soon found himself in a safe, dry cave with his friend Michael.

The two monkeys sat there drying out. At a slight noise they whirled around to see a great lion entering the cave. This time the beast, who had swung at Marty earlier, ignored the monkeys. He shook himself with a mighty shrug, throwing off sheets of water. Then he stretched. "Thank goodness!" he reared. "Thank goodness I escaped without getting hurt!"

Michael nudged Marty, and Marty grinned sheepishly.

WISHING WELL

"Whoever drops a penny into the wishing well and wishes hard . . . whoever believes in the wishing well . . . will have his wish come true."

That was what the sign said . . . in big, bold letters. Maryjane stared at it long and hard . . . till she knew every word of it by heart. "I believe in the wishing well!" she whispered aloud. "I truly believe with all my heart!" Slowly her hand uncurled. Plink went her penny as it dropped down . . . down . . . down into the dark depths of the murky water.

"I wish," said Maryjane, closing her eyes tight, "I wish I had a way to get Mama an anniversary present . . . something to make her really happy . . . like she used to be . . . before Daddy went away . . ."

Slowly . . . oh, so slowly, she opened her eyes. But nothing had changed. There was the well with its mystic sign. There was the sun streaming down at her, the bright green grass, the nodding cornflowers. Everything was exactly the same. Maryjane didn't know exactly what it was she'd expected to happen, but somehow she was dreadfully disappointed. Disconsolately, she turned away from the wishing well and started the long walk back home, her feet scuffing sadly along the ground.

You see, Maryjane's father was in the Army. He was a doctor, and the Army needed him, so he was called back into service. But Maryjane and her mother needed him too . . . especially her mother. Oh, she had tried hard to be brave, but it was two whole years now that Doctor Parsons had been away. And Maryjane's mother was terribly sad and lonely without him. Maryjane had tried hard to take her Daddy's place, but of course it wasn't the same. Mrs. Parsons pretended to be bright and cheerful, but Maryjane knew better.

All these things were in her mind as she scuffed along the dusty country road. They were in her mind today especially because today was her mother's and father's wedding anniversary. And she hated to go home without even a gift to lighten her mother's heart. "I'll go to the post office first," she decided. "Maybe there'll be a letter from Daddy."

And sure enough, when she reached the post office, there was a letter waiting. Clutching it tight in her hand, Maryjane ran all the way home. This would make the anniversary day at least a little more pleasant for Mama, she thought happily.

But she was hardly prepared for what happened when her mother read the letter! Laughing and crying at the same time, Mrs. Parsons threw her arms around her daughter. "He's coming home!" she sang. "Daddy's coming home! To stay! Oh, Maryjane darling, this was the best anniversary present you could have brought me!"

Anniversary present! Why, so it was. Not exactly what she'd had in mind, of course, but . . . "It came true!" shouted Maryjane. "I believed, AND MY WISH CAME TRUE!"
