2200 MILES A YEAR

And Goodyears keep the going smooth—mile after mile

Charles Morin is only 16, but he knows where he's going: the University of Detroit and a degree in electrical engineering. To help pay his tuition, Charles delivers papers seven days a week. He's a good bowler, and a steadfast user of Goodyear bike tires.

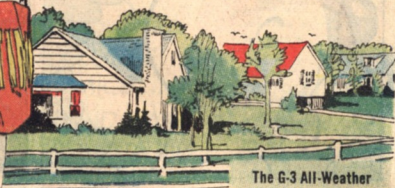

There's nothing like a tough newspaper route for finding out about bike tires. Charles Morin has one of the toughest.

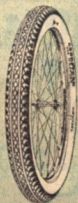

Every day he delivers the Free Press in crowded Detroit. And to carry him through snow, ice and rain, Charles depends on a pair of rugged Goodyear tires.

Goodyear bike tires are made with rubber that's especially resistant to bumps and bruises. Their treads grip and hold, for better traction on curves, for straight-line stops.

Whether you use your bike for work or fun, you'll get more out of it—and more out of your tires—when you ride Goodyears. There are no better bike tires built. See your Goodyear dealer soon. Goodyear, Cycle Tire Dept., Akron 16, Ohio.

JEST FOR FUN

Here are a few stories we heard this month that we'd like to tell you . . . jest for fun!

Little Joey went to the neighborhood zoo a few Sundays ago. He seemed a bit afraid of going too close to the bear's cage.

"Oh, don't worry," the zoo keeper told him, "Bruin's a real friendly bear. Why, he'll eat off your hand!"

"That's what I'm afraid of!" answered Joey.

Janie was a little under the weather, suffering an annoying cold. But her grandmother still wanted to make sure that she was acting the proper young lady.

"Did you do your good deed for the day," she asked her granddaughter.

"Of course, Grandma," smiled Janie. "There was only enough cough medicine for one person, so I let my little brother have it!"

* * *

There was a knock at Barbara's door. She opened it and saw Mrs. Jones.

"May I see your parents?" asked Mrs. Jones.

"They is out," said Barbara.

"They is out?" said Mrs. Jones. "Barbara, where is your grammar?"

"She ain't here either!" answered Barbara.

* * *

Mrs. Smith wanted to play bridge one night. So she left her little son Johnny home alone. Johnny said he didn't want to stay home alone in the dark, but his mother told him that the angels would watch over him.

An hour later, Mrs. Smith got a telephone call from her son Johnny. "Mom," he said, "one of the angels came. And he's going all through the house taking your silverware and jewelry!"

* * *

Junior was sniffing all through the movie show. Finally, the woman next to him said, "Young man, do you have a handkerchief?"

"Yes," answered Junior. "But it's not healthy to lend it to someone."

* * *

Did you hear that little Betty went around with a sunlamp because her mother told her to spread sunshine wherever she went?

* * *

"Well, we have two types," said the clerk. "One is fifty cents, the other is a dollar. We put your pet's name on the dollar one."

"Then I'll take the fifty cent one," said Gregory.

"Why not the dollar one?" asked the clerk.

"My cat can't read!" said Gregory.

* * *

"I know just as much as my teacher," Seymour proudly told his sister Marsha.

"How do you know?" asked Marsha.

"She said it was impossible to teach me anything!" Seymour answered.

Better Than BEAUTY

Blackberry gazed lovingly into his mistress's eyes as she spoke to him. Her voice was so soft and gentle... she never really scolded, he thought...

"You're such a good dog, Blackberry!" Janie smiled, scooping him up in her arms. "If only you were—pretty!" Blackberry's stubby little tail drooped forlornly. He knew he wasn't—well—handsome—but it wasn't his fault, was it?

"You see, 'Berry," his mistress went on, "I've entered you in the Dog Show! Oh, I know you don't stand much of a chance against all those fancy dogs, but you are cute, and you know so many tricks! I thought maybe—just maybe—you might win!"

Blackberry shook his head sadly. He slipped out of Janie's arms without a sound, his tail drooping unhappily between his legs.

"The Show is tomorrow, Blackberry!" Janie called after him. "Try—oh, please try—to win!"

And the next day, at the Dog Show, he sat in his stall with his head hanging, his tail drooping—the perfect picture of canine misery! He knew he should perk up for Janie's sake, but somehow, his heart just wasn't in it. He watched all the other proud, perfumed and petted dogs being led to their places, their noses high in the air, and he knew he didn't stand a chance.

"Hey, you!" rumbled a deep bass voice in Blackberry's ear, so suddenly that it made him jump! He peered over the side of his box, and found himself looking into the eyes of the ugliest bulldog he'd ever seen! In spite of himself, Blackberry shuddered.

To 'Berry's surprise, the other dog merely laughed at him. "I know I'm ugly!" the bulldog grinned. "But you don't have to be afraid of me, youngster! I'm really as gentle as a lamb, and I've won first prize in more Dog Shows than you can count!"

"YOU?!" gasped Blackberry. "YOU'VE won prizes?! But how?! You—you..." He stopped suddenly, realizing what he was saying.

Again the bulldog only laughed. "Don't be embarrassed, kid!" he boomed. "You didn't hurt my feelings! I know how I look! But looks aren't all that matter, you know. Spirit and friendliness and intelligence mean something, too! This must be your first show..."

He broke off as the little group of judges approached his stall. Blackberry straightened up proudly, his head high, his tail waving! Janie's parting words rang in his ears. "I don't really care if you win or not, 'Berry!" she'd whispered. "I'll love you just the same!"

Spirit... friendliness... intelligence... those things counted just as much as looks, and he had them all! The judges must have thought so, too, because they all began to smile and nod when they came to Blackberry...!
