3 YEARS—2200 MILES
ONE SET OF TIRES

When there's an important job to do, you can always count on Goodyears

This is TIM GRANT, at 15 an ace carrier for the Cleveland Press. Besides making daily deliveries in his home town of Berea, Ohio, Tim cycles to school, enjoys swimming and sings with his high school quartet. His bike rolls on dependable Goodyear tires.

If there's anything you want to know about bike tires, Tim Grant can tell you. In three years, Tim has done a lot of riding—2200 miles—and all on the same set of Goodyear tires.

He travels city streets, highways, dirt roads—in all kinds of weather. And the original Goodyears still look good enough to carry a lot of papers a lot of miles.

Goodyear bike tires are made with rubber and fabrics especially compounded to take hard bumps and bruises. Their treads are designed to grip and hold, for better traction on curves, for straight-line stops.

Whether you use your bike for work or fun, you'll get more out of your tires—when you ride on Goodyears. There are no better bike tires built. Ask your dealer to help you pick the Goodyear tire best suited to your bike. Goodyear, Cycle Tire Dept., Akron 16, Ohio.

The 6-3 All-Weather

This famous Goodyear tire, with the All-Weather diamond tread, provides sure grip and traction—helps prevent skids.

The End
Dear Diary:

It's always a pleasure to get a chance to borrow your ear. I just love talking to you, knowing that friends of mine all over the world are listening in.

And I want to thank them all for writing such wonderful things about me to Casper and to myself.

All of us - Casper, Spooky and myself - like to have suggestions and opinions from our friends. And wherever possible we follow them out. After we received so much mail about Nightmare, we started full-length stories about the magical horse in Spooky's magazine. After we received so much mail about the Ghostly Trio, we started stories about that madcap crew in Spooky.

And, thank you all, when we received mail asking for more stories about me, we started magazines like this present one.

So tell my friends, dear Diary, how important their mail is to us.

Speaking about the letters our friends write us, so many have written about the wonderful and funny people that Casper and myself manage to meet. Our friends tell us how jealous they are of us. They wish they could find the same people.

Well, let me tell you a secret. The world is full of these same people. And the chance to meet them is open to each and everyone. We've only to learn to be friendly. You know you can't tell what's inside a book by its cover; you've got to read it. It's the same thing with people. You've got to be friendly and draw out a person before you really know him. Then suddenly you'll realize that the world is full of people just as wonderful as Mother Nature, Father Time, the Man in the Moon, the Sandman or the Weatherman.

You see, dear Diary, the magic of the world isn't reserved just for Casper and myself.

Another thing that Casper and I often get in the mail, dear Diary, is poetry. And some of the most delightful poetry that I've ever read. Yes, sir. All written by our readers. Well, I've composed a little poem myself to say thank you to them. It goes like this:

Friends from here,
Friends from there,
Friends from almost everywhere,
Thank you so,
Thank you so,
More than you could ever know.

And, by gosh, dear Diary, even if my poetry isn't the best, it's something that I feel in the deepest part of my heart.

Well, I see I've come to the bottom of my allotted space. And there's just enough room to say thanks to you, and love to everyone.
THE MARRIAGE OF MINNIE

Of course you all know the famous story of the first date of Oscar the Fly and Minnie the Moth. (You read it on this very page last month.) Well, after that first wonderful evening at the Crane Club, Oscar rushed Minnie clear off her feet. He telephoned her every day, sent her flowers, brought her candy, took her out at least twice, and sometimes three times, a week. Poor Minnie's head was in a whirl... but what a delicious whirl it was! Oscar was undoubtedly the finest, the sweetest, the handsomest boy she had ever known! Visions of wedding gowns... of satin and lace... of bridesmaids and ushers... and a little ivy-covered cottage just big enough for two danced in her dreams.

And at last the great moment arrived. "Minnie," said Oscar in a choking voice, "we've known each other for nearly four months now." He swallowed... hard. "I... I think it's about time we got married!" he finished boldly.

"Haven't you forgotten something, Oscar dear?" blushed Minnie.

"Forgotten...?" Oscar was puzzled. Then the light dawned. "Oh!" he said hastily. "I... I love you!"

"And I love you!" Minnie answered joyfully. "Of course I'll marry you, Oscar... whenever you say!"

And so they were engaged... amidst great rejoicing on both sides of the family. Minnie's folks adored Oscar, and Oscar's people simply doted on Minnie. They all got together one sunny Sunday afternoon, and between them, the wedding date was set for another Sunday, two months hence.

Of course it was to be a church wedding. And of course Minnie was to be dressed as a bride... in the satin and lace of her dreams. So then began the great preparations. There was a trousseau to buy... a honeymoon to plan... invitations to address and mail... and, oh, a hundred and one things, big and small, that need to be done when a girl marries. Oscar had his share of duties too. For instance, Minnie left the problem of house-hunting entirely to him... and he didn't fail her. He found a little ivy-covered cottage with a white picket fence that brought another of Minnie's dreams to life. Of course they'd be sharing the cottage with another newlywed couple... a human couple who happened to own it... but, generously, neither Oscar nor Minnie minded that at all.

The days and weeks flew by... till at last it was the day. Their wedding day. The church was filled with invited guests. The aisles were banked with flowers. All was solemn and hushed. And then the organ struck up the Wedding March. Oscar, visibly nervous, and his best man appeared at the altar. The ushers marched smartly down the aisle, followed by the sweet-faced bridesmaids. And then... and then came the bride, a vision in gleaming white satin. Her proud father led her to the altar... and there Minnie the Moth became Mrs. Oscar Fly. And everyone agreed it was the most beautiful wedding ever seen in Insectville!
