Both the publisher (Grant Thiessen operating as Pandora's Books Ltd.) and agent (Fantasy Centre) offer a quality service in the mail-order book field as well, stocking both new and used books extensively. Write for free catalogs. Enquiries are also welcomed by either on dealer's rates for The Science-Fiction Collector.

Due to the pressures of my business and home life, The Science-Fiction Collector will be published irregularly in future, as time and material permit. However, I should be around for quite some time to come, as long as I don't feel pressured to rush an issue out to meet a deadline. Sorry, that's just the way I work best.

EDITORIAL COMMENT: Well, this issue is about as late as it could possibly be, and still be published in my own lifetime. The circumstances--boring and personal. The future--issues will be sporadic, but probably four per year--except this time I won't make promises which it proves impractical to keep.

On the Ballantine index, I hope everyone is pleased. We are missing a number of printings of various titles, as well as some books, I am sure. (For example, I think there is a Leigh Brackett western called FOLLOW THE FREE WIND.) If you have something to add or correct, please do; however, both Carl Bennett and myself (and, I am sure, the subscribers) would appreciate it if each correction could be labeled as "fact" or "hearsay". If you have the book in your possession, you may quote "fact"; if not, let's call it "hearsay". Hope you like it, and hope to hear from you all.

BALLANTINE BOOKS

A CHECKLIST OF SCIENCE FICTION, FANTASY, & WEIRD FICTION

1953 - 1976

COMPILED BY CARL BENNETT

This is a listing of the science fiction, fantasy and weird fiction titles published from 1953 through the end of 1976 by Ballantine Books. Also listed are books out of the genre by authors associated with science fiction and fantasy. The list is nowhere near complete. As you might expect, listing all the books published in a genre by a publisher is quite a job--one that is not yet finished. This published list is the result of over two years work. Yet, there is a limit to what I can check and doublecheck while being a fairly stationary person unable to delve through everyone's collections. So, with Grant Thiessen's generous cooperation, I am presenting the rough draft of this checklist of Ballantine's SF&F books.

Many of the books are already listed by their appropriate book number, but there are many individual printings I have not seen. Thus, in some cases, I don't know with which printing a title started under a particular book number--Tolkien's, John Norman's, and Burroughs' books have given me the most trouble in this regard.

Last, a few notes about the checklist particulars: I list the first appearances of particular authors on the listing to help one note how early a particular author was published by Ballantine. I don't, however, count appearances in anthologies. In the case of anthologies, I merely list the name of the editor. (In the final published edition of this checklist I will provide an appendix which lists the complete contents of all the listed anthologies.) Also, an asterix appears behind the title on the first appearance of a particular book on this list, but the book may have been published by another publisher previously--this only denotes the first appearance in a Ballantine Books edition (as in the case of de Camp's and Pratt's THE COMPLEAT ENCHANTER, published earlier in two volumes by another publisher).

The purpose of publishing this list now is to get it out before the collectors and get some active cross-checking going on. This is the fastest and most accurate way to take care of omissions and errors before publishing a 'final' version of the checklist. If you have questions, information, or listings of omissions or errors, please send them to me: Carl Bennett, P.O. Box 8502, Portland, Oregon 97207, USA.

Although there are evident omissions, this checklist is complete to the point of being a useful listing in its current state. I hope you find it most helpful.

(An editorial note on Canadian editions. With Ballantine, as with a number of other paperback publishers, the vast majority of their publications have a separate Canadian edition which is absolutely identical with the U.S. edition, except for the addition of the words "Printed in Canada" on the copyright page. Having compared many copies, I can only speculate that the books are printed either from the very same plates as the U.S. edition, or, more likely, a duplicate plate is made simultaneously with the U.S. plate, for the Canadian edition. In most cases, the printing date remains the same. Release dates vary from simultaneous up to six months later in Canada.

In addition, a number of Ballantine Books (as with other publishers, as well) are not available in Canada. The usual cause of such an arrangement is a prior or concurrent contract by the author with a British publisher, in which rights for the entire British Commonwealth of Countries have been sold. Some of the more notable books not available in Ballantine editions in Canada were: John Brunner's STAND ON ZANZIBAR, Mervyn Peake's GORMENGHAST trilogy, Peter Dickinson's THE BLUE HAWK, and G. K. Chesterton's THE MAN WHO WAS THURSDAY. There have been many others. (A book like THE MAN WHO WAS THURSDAY is available in a Penguin edition in Canada, for example.)

With some of the more important authors or books, there may be several Canadian printings. Generally this applies to Tolkien and Burroughs books, which will see several printings in Canada, with all printings after the first one being independent of the U.S. printings. They are, instead, dependent on Canadian sales, and the requirement of new Canadian printings for the Canadian market. (Incidentally, Tolkien's books are not available in Canada at the present time, due to the above-mentioned copyright restrictions, although they were available in the mid-1960's in a Ballantine edition. They are currently available in a Methuen edition in Canada.)

There are exceptions to this of course. Some books are printed in such quantity that is economically viable for the U.S. printing to be distributed in Canada as well. A recent example is Frederik Pohl's GATEWAY. Most of the posters and large-format titles are also printed in the U.S., although they retail from 10 to 20% higher in Canada. This is due to customs duty, which is 10% on all books imported from the U.S. Therefore, if a mass market paperback can be printed in immense quantities, it is just as cheap for the company to send copies to Canada, paying the duty, as it would be for them to do another, much smaller, printing for the Canadian market.

In essence, therefore, a Canadian Ballantine Book should have the same collector's desirability as the U.S. edition, as they are printed at the same time, on the same plates. A purist may take exception to me on this, but I feel that the change to "Printed in Canada" from "Manufactured in the United States of America" is insufficient differentiation in editions to make any difference to other than the most bibliophilic collector. (Of course, I was never able to get excited about the number of perforations on stamps, either--jgt)

- (4) On all editions seen of this title, the number "275K" has been blocked-out and number "279K" substituted. An obvious error correction.
- (5) On the hardback edition seen of this title, no book number was evident.
- (6) This title is listed due to the inclusion of Gore Vidal's SF teleplay, "Visit to a Small Planet", in this anthology.
- (7) Some printings of this title show "Foreign Legion" in quotation marks.
- (8) This is the first printing of the revised edition of this title.
- (9) In this particular book number, this title has two different covers. The seventh printing features a reduction of the original Joe Mugnaini cover, while the twelfth printing features a color still from Francois Truffaut's motion picture production. Somewhere between the 7th and 12th printings of this title, the cover was changed. It is not known at this time, to me, which printing first featured the cover variation.

+++++ NOTES ++++++

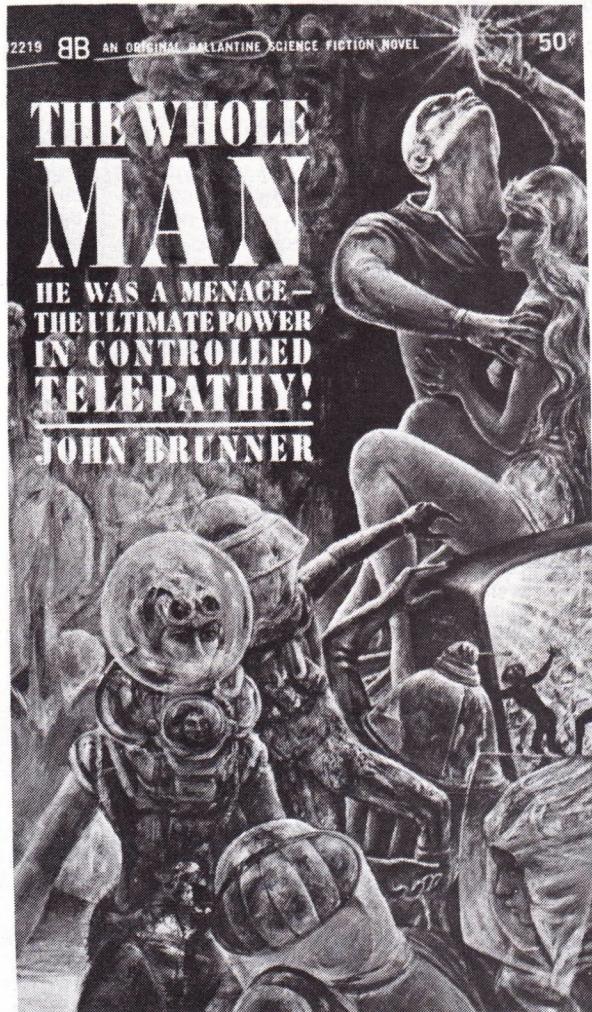

- (1) On copies seen, this hardback edition was numbered "H 2".
- (2) On the first release editions of the hardback title, the "BB" emblem representing Ballantine Books was printed upside-down on the dust-jacket. This, I believe, was later corrected.
- (3) This was not a book. This was a magazine published by Ballantine Books in January 1958.

- (10) This is the second printing of the revised edition of this title.
- (11) The first three printings of this title are easily distinguishable: (1st) the title of the book has a standard blue shadow background, (2nd) the blues are much richer in the cover--otherwise identical to the first, (3rd) the title has a back shadow background instead of blue. Trivia, anyone?
- (12) In January 1975, Ballantine printed a "Special Book Club Edition" for an unknown book club service. The edition resembles the regular edition in many ways (same silver die-cut cover with blue interior illustrated cover) except there is, of course, no price and the typeface for the title is different. The back cover (except for the typeface for the title) is the same. The last pages of this edition contain house-ads for Jack Anderson's THE ANDERSON PAPERS and for three John Gardner books. The test is, in every way, the same.
- (13) The second printing is listed on the cover as an SF "Classic".
- (14) This title originally appeared in hardback under del Rey's nom de plume, "Eric van Lhin". Lester del Rey is the sole author of this title.
- (15) This is the first printing of the single volume paperback edition of this title.
- (16) The fourth printing of this title under this book number was mistakenly listed as the third printing.
- (17) From the seventh printing, this is listed on the cover as an SF "Classic".
- (18) From the sixth printing, this is listed on the cover as an SF "Classic".
- (19) This is the first printing of a short-lived Ballantine trade paperback edition packaged in a box set.
- (20) The seventh printing is listed on the cover as an SF "Classic".
- (21) The second printing of this title has the same cover as the first printing with the exception of a new cover blurb, reading: Including "Home is the Hangman" Winner of both the Hugo and Nebula Awards Best Novella for 1975. The line, "Hugo and Nebula Award Winner", which appeared above the author's name on the first printing has been blanked out. Incidentally, the first printing of this title was the first SF title to have two different types and colors of paper for the printed text, now characteristic of Ballantine paperbacks. What a royal pain in the ass.
- (22) This is the first printing of the revised edition.
- (23) From the forty-second printing, this is listed on the cover as an SF "Classic".
- (24) From the third printing, this is listed as an SF "Classic".
- (25) The third printing of this title under this book number was mistakenly listed as the second printing.
- (26) The tenth printing is listed on the cover as an SF "Classic".
- (27) The cover of the third printing of this title differs from the first and second printings, this way: (a) the green metallic printing of the front cover title has been replaced by standard green printing, and the standard blue title printing on the spine and the back cover blurb, "What a Hitch!" has been replaced by standard green printing; (b) the cover blurb: "A Vastly Entertaining Trip!" --The New York Times, has been replaced by a yellow circled area blurb: Winner of the Hugo and Nebula Awards BEST NOVEL OF THE YEAR; (c) the Ballantine Books SF seal in red ink is now in black; and (d) the red--First Time in Paperback--blurb on the back cover has been replaced by a black ink version of the New York Times quote. Whew!
- (28) The thirty-sixth printing is listed on the cover as an SF "Classic".
- (29) This is a four-colour poster, with a printed text side, called a "Poster Book".

ADDENDUM

Due to an error of omission on my part, and a few recent finds, I must append this addendum, for the following items:

1971 02449 THE COMPLETE STORIES OF AMBROSE BIERCE
Vol. II: The World of War and the World of Tall Tales* ed. Ernest Jerome

---	-----	--	--	--

(Note: Some copies of this title have small stickers with the book number 630 printed on them laid over the 449K number. It is not known whether the book was delayed and released under the 630 number, or whether it was originally released under the 449K number and then rereleased under the 630 number. Some copies of the book without the sticker bear evidence of once having one, some do not.)

LETTERS

Really short of space this issue, so will print only a few of the many, many interesting letters I have received since last issue. Next issue will have a much larger letter section, and the return of Information, Please, squeezed out of this issue.

LETTER FROM ERNEST HARRIS

The Curt Clark (SFC #1, page 26) who wrote the Ace novel ANARCHAOS is actually the well known crime novelist Donald E. Westlake. I don't know how well known Westlake's pseudonyms are but in case anybody is interested they are: Richard Stark (with I think everybody knows by now); Tucker Coe; Timothy J. Culver; D. E. Westlake; and J. Morgan Cunningham. These are genuine as Westlake listed them himself in an interview in the Canadian film magazine TAKE ONE (Vol. 4 No. 9).

MOORCOCKIANA. Browsing through a 2nd hand bookshop the other other day I picked up what must be one of the rarest Moorcock items. In my last letter to you I mentioned that Moorcock had written a novel entitled PRINTER'S DEVIL under the pseudonym Bill Barclay. Suddenly my eyes fell on a book entitled SOMEWHERE IN THE NIGHT by Bill Barclay! I bought it without even opening it. On examination the plot seemed familiar...it was...SOMEWHERE IN THE NIGHT si the original version of the book Ace later published as THE CHINESE AGENT. The text seems to have been re-written for the Ace publication and THE CHINESE AGENT contains an extra chapter at the beginning - so SOMEWHERE IN THE NIGHT begins with what is chapter two of AGENT. The other big difference is in the names of the characters. The hero of SOMEWHERE IN THE NIGHT is Nick Allard. In AGENT he becomes Jerry Cornell. Among the more significant name changes is that of the detective Chief Inspector Arthur Crapper. In the earlier NIGHT he appears as Chief Inspector Arthur Moorcock!. SOMEWHERE IN THE NIGHT by Bill Barclay was published in 1966 by Compact Books.

The series of books about a redskin private eye mentioned in my last letter was "JOHNNY CANUCK" by James Moffatt. I'm pretty certain that Moorcock did contribute to this series...but how many titles?

It is well known that Moorcock has published works under the names James Colvin and Edward P. Bradbury but while he was working for Roberts and Vinter Ltd. in the sixties I am certain that he also wrote some of the "Hank Janson" titles published under the Compact imprint. Just how many of these were by Moorcock will probably never be known. I have reason to believe that some of Compact's "Hilary Brand" series were written by the ex-Mrs. Moorcock, writer Hilary Bailey. Incidentally Moorcock completists might like to search out Hilary Bailey's novel POLLY PUT THE KETTLE ON which seems to present an exaggerated picture of life in Moorcock's Ladbroke Grove house.

I believe that Philip James who collaborated on THE DISTANT SUNS with Mike Moorcock is the illustrator James Cawthorn.

LETTER FROM R. REGINALD

The article by Paul Allen in #5 on "Forgotten Fantasy" was interesting, although incorrect on one point. There were actually two separate companies, Nectar Press (to run Forgotten Fantasy magazine) and Newcastle Publishing Company (to handle the paperbacks). Both of the firms were organized simultaneously, but, as chance would have it, the book line took longer to shape; Newcastle issued its first titles just as the magazine was folding. The last issue of FF was dated June 1971 (but actually was published in April, as I recall); the first Newcastle books were published in July of that year. Both Nectar and Newcastle were owned and operated by a pair of brothers, Alfred and Joseph Saunders, who also ran a bookstore in Hollywood at that time, the Sunset-Vine Bookmart. Nectar was named by their attorney; "Newcastle" came from the street Al Saunders lives on. The magazine died for lack of distribution, or rather too much of it; distributors never lose money on anything they handle. Newcastle started as a quality line specializing in occult nonfiction and self-help titles; the Bangs book was tossed into the first batch of eight titles at the last moment, when we suddenly came up short one book; it was packaged like a nonfiction volume. Later, Doug Menville and I persuaded the brothers to try a fantasy reprint; it did well, and the Forgotten Fantasy Library (we borrowed the logo from the magazine) continues to this day. The brothers shut down their bookstore three years ago; Al Saunders later bought out Joe, and is now sole owner and publisher of Newcastle. Newcastle also distributes several other book lines (Borgo Press, Gick, and a third just added) from its warehouse in North Hollywood; its mailing address is Box 7589, Van Nuys, CA 91409. In addition to the titles cited in the article, several others have now been published: F-112 SHY LEOPARDESS, by Leslie Barringer (October 1977); F-113 AYESHA: THE RETURN OF SHE, by H. Rider Haggard (October 1977); M-42 TALES OF ATLANTIS AND THE ENCHANTED ISLANDS, by Thomas Wentworth Higginson (October 1977, nonfiction); published in May 1977 (I believe) was a new edition of F-105 SHE AND ALLAN, with a new four-color wraparound painting, and an introduction by George Slusser which wasn't in the first printing; a new edition (with Barr cover) of GERFALCON will be out in the next couple of months. Scheduled for April 1978 are F-114 THE FATES OF THE PRINCES OF DYFED, by Kenneth Morris; F-115 THE HOUSE OF THE WOLFINGS, by William Morris.

/// Any of the Newcastle titles can be ordered direct from Newcastle, or from me at Pandora's Books Ltd. (address on page 2) ///

COMING NEXT ISSUE

Next issue (which will come out considerably quicker than this one) contains an annotated E. C. Tubb index, as well as many letters, Information, Please, and several shorter articles. On hand as I write this are a bibliography of John Wyndham, index to Curtis Books, index to Uncanny Tales, index to Digit paperbacks, an Avram Davidson bibliography, an index to Avon Fantasy Readers, and several other indexes and bibliographies.
