WHAT PAPER DIDYA?

Here is a perfect esample of US press censorship on news from Vietnam: "Mercenaries, led by US Green Berets, hoisted a South Vietnamese flag atop 'Superstition Mountain', a VC bastion for 20 years" (UPI in the Berkeley Gazette).

Who changed the UPI story to cover up the fact that the regular South Vietnamese Army units were so chicken we had to HIRE troops to take that mountain?
Last year, we landed South Viets on top the mountain then had to take them off again by the same helicopters that landed them there, minus one or two planes.

CAMEJO ON CUBA 'HIPPIES'

Dear BARB,

I would like to clarify a certain misrepresentation which appeared in last weeks article on Cuba. The BARB interviewer, Phineas Israeli, wrote "Camejo rapped favorably about the crushing of the hippie movement in Cuba." I did not "rap" favorably about the "crushing" of "hippies".

I explained to BARB that the people who CALLED themselves hippies in Cuba were totally different from the phenomena we know as hippies in the United States. In Cuba certain young States. In Cuba certain young people sought to live at a higher standard of living than the masses without working. They introduced a whole series of methods for getting luxury goods which included prostitution to foreigners visiting Cuba. These people were cluded prostitution to foreigners visiting Cuba. These people were hostile to the Cuban revolution because of its equalitarianism and the sacrifices it demands. For instance, they openly opposed the image of Che as an ideal. These people were not "crushed". They were sent to work on different agricultural projects with the intention of breaking up the black market and prositution and reintegrating them into Cuban society.

The G.G. Park and Wreck Meanies (who aren't really so mean after all) have NOT closed Speedway Meadow to rock groups. In fact, Chief Meanie Peter Ashe, Yet cops busted down the door, he said. Arrested were people very active in the Radical Student Union at UC and in the AFT. Their "crime" was being in the same room where several roaches and joints were found.

The cops were more upset about the wall decorations, radical posters, and flags than by the pot, he recalled. He thinks it very likely the bust came about for political reasons.

All those arrested are now out on bail or OR, he said. Their attornies will be Richard Hodge and Mal Burnstein and the preliminary hearing is set for May 6.

Ashe said he is glad to see the concert continuing, harking back to the days when Hashbury was just becoming a flower-child mecca and concerts blossomed out in the panhandle.

He also said with a trace of chagrin that he apparently didn't have the trained eyes that BARB's photogs have because he missed the nude-in at the concerts, al-though he was there taking snap-shots for his memory book. Willy Minzey did the only thing a minister in his position could do -- he invited the newcomer to join the congregation and partake of the sacrament. He offered Weik a joint.

"He wouldn't take it," Minzey recounted, "so I put it in his pocket, I lit another and wandered away, and he was sort of hanging around talking, and I walked up later and gave him some literature about the Fellowship."

At that point the man in Weik was apparently overcome by the uniform. He whipped out the joint and broke it.

Minzey was dismayed. "That's a sacrilege, that's consecrated!" countered the Reverend, wagging his finger in front of Weik's nose. Suggestions of compromise murmured from the crowd. "Throw it on the ground, and he'll vanish like a bad dream," they urged.
"NEVER!" retorted minzey. "Did the Christians burn incense before

"I mean, you're under arrest."

"I mean, you're under arrest," bleated Weik.

Minzey opened his law book and ad section 302 of the California enal Code to the law officer. "Every person who willfuly dis-Minzey lowered the book and said quietly to Weik, "there is no en-

bobby's spirit

The spirit of Bobby Hutton was shivering in the early morning

There were about fifty of us waiting in Bobby Hutton's Park for the service to begin. We had to hold off until the sun appeared. It was 6 am and people were still floating in their dreams.

The spirit of Bobby Hutton grew impatient; this was a hell of a time to be up and just standing there doing nothing.

The Sun came up and we walked over to the old white wooden house in the park. Father Neil began

BANNERS RIGHT ON FOR BOBBY

The Black Panthers are not mourning Bobby Hutton; they are organizing his revolution.

There was a rally for him in Bobby Hutton's Park on Sunday and the Party's growth since Bobby's murder was as obvious as the child that Kathleen Cleaver is bearing and will soon give birth to.

The speakers were Bobby Seale, Kathleen, Massai, Charley Garry, Stew Albert and Bobby Huttons mother. The speeches of the Pan-thers were a collective tribal statement of development. The Part is creating Free Breakfasts for Children and medical clinics all over California.

over California.

On the battle field a lot of pigs are now six feet under their own stys, picked off by the Party taking care of business. The Pigs ing care of business. The Pigs like to keep the revolutionary executions out of the press and show off on the front pages the Panthers they murder. The score is a lot more equal than the pig's nightmares like to admit.

Lawyer Charles Garry told people they should register to vote so they could sit on juries and acquit framed brothers and sisters.

Stew Albert rapped on Bobby Hutton being a revolutionary ex-ample for all young Americans and how longhairs were joining working class picket lines. He also spoke of the political nature of not busts.

The rally was lightly attended. Massai the Panther leader in Los Angeles told BARB "People are getting tired of talking about this shit--it's the action that's important."

rapping out of the old and new testament of truth. In the now slightly sunny morning air Isafah and Matthew had more to say about black liberation and revolution than a department of Sociologists. Coming out of Biblical quotation and into the streets the Minister proclaimed "We must relate to the Black Warrior with smoking rifle and Molotov cocktail in his hand.

The spirit of Bobby Hutton wore a 45 on his hip. He fingered it as he heard the Minister's words and just whispered "right on."

Brother Big Man and Massai spoke briefly of their memories of Bobby and his dreams.

Big Man is huge and powerful with a great strong face and body but with a powerful gentleness about him. He up front said that Bobby Hutton who was much younger than him and still a boy in years was really twice the man he was.

Massai in Russian fur hat and glasses standing tall and straight and looking like a black Bolshevik told us that Bobby Hutton was one of an army of iron men fighting in the jungles of Vietnam and Harlem for the liberation of humanity.

The service concluded and I checked out the white wooden front on which the service was conducted. It is the slave master's mansion long since closed and decaying. But the land around it. caying. But the land around it still does not belong to us, and that is why the Black Panters ex-ist and why Bobby Hutton was murdered.

The spirit of Bobby Hutton was glad the thing was over. He could go get some Port wine now, and drink it mixed with lemon juice. It was his favorite drink. He had to hurry to get back to the National Office because Huey and Eldridge were waiting for him. Bobby Hutton is as eternal as Che.

O'BRIEN HEARING

'Instant Replay'

by Kirby Higbe
They were doing the "instant replay" bit over at the Hall of Injustice in San Francisco on Monday.
They were trying to determine if Pig of Pigs Michael O'Brien had been guilty of "unofficer-like conduct" while he was killing George Baskett.
Now that Jake Ehrlich had kept O'Brien out of the pen by racebaiting the jury, they could afford to slap Mike on the wrist again, just like they did after he wore his "Gas Huey" tieclip while on duty in Hunters Point last summer.
So they convened what looked like

So they convened what looked like a drumhead court-martial with the a drumhead court-martial with the strangest cast of characters you'd ever want to see. Actually it was an official hearing of the Police Commission, and if they want to, they can boot O'Brien off the force.

Wowl So first the three commissioners come in. They're Dr. Washington Garner, Elmo Ferrarri, who's president of the Commission, and Richard Miller.

Now you know that Washington Garner has got to be a Tom. He's about six foot three and weighs about 250 lbs and he's in his middle forties. But you just know, nobody gets to be the token nigger on the police commission unless THEY know he can be controlled.

Then there is O'Brien. He's big, but he's not that big. He weighs 235 lbs, but he doesn't look tough at all. You look at him, and he doesn't look like a killer. He just sits at that table like a choirboy with his hands clasped in front of him. He doesn't move a muscle. move a muscle.

Okay! Nelder calls his first witness, Marilyn McLean, the girl who went water-skiing O'Brien that awful Sunday O'Brien that awful Sunday last September. Marilyn who has long brunette hair, and would be really good looking if she didn't put so much cosmetic shit on her face, appraoches the witness stand and an evil looking man, with wavy red hair raises his hand and swears her in.

So they start the whole thing

So they start the whole thing again. Marilyn talks about waterskiing and wine drinking, and how O'Brien got pissed off at her because she wasn't "affectionate enough". At the trial she'd said O'Brien told her she'd have to walk home if she didn't put out. So that's it! O'Brien is twenty-seven years old and has trouble getting laid, so he takes it out on some poor blacks who live in an alley near the asshole of San Francisco.

The witnesses keep coming, Mr. Hawkins. "The scrape on that trailer could have been fixed with 25 cents worth of paint." Then comes Mrs. Hawkins. Jake blamed her for everything at the trial. This time she's hip. She starts talking and Jake starts objecting. But Mrs. Hawkins, a tall, stately looking black chick, keeps talking. And Francisco.

But Mrs. Hawkins, a tall, stately looking black chick, keeps talking.
And Jake keeps objecting. And Mrs. Kawkins keeps talking.
It seems that both sides have agreed to talk about only the period before the shooting. "We can't try the murder case over again," thunders Ehrlich. Aha. He slipped. He had been calling it a manslaughter case, which technically it was, but now, in the heat of argument, it becomes the "murder case," which it should have been. So Mrs. Hawkins continues to relate the story, and Jake keeps interrupting her. Jake is pretty cute. He has the trial transcript in front of him. If a witness' story deviates by one iota from what he or she said at the trial, they're automatically liars.

Finally Jake gets obstreperous, and in his usual race-baiting way tells Mrs. Hawkins to shut up. When Ferrarri admonishes him for using such crude language, Jake replies, "Well, that's the way you have to talk to THEM."

That's the kind of stuff that got O'Brien acquitted. But Jake won't be so lucky this time. For one thing, everyone knows Garner is going to vote to throw O'Brien off the force, and since he's big and black and sitting up there on the Commission, Jake can't be quite as outrageous as he was in court, when Judge Joseph Karesh cheered him on.

There were a couple of more witnesses, Mrs. Alice Thomas said

There were a couple of more witnesses, Mrs. Alice Thomas said O'Brien had called her a "nigger bitch" shortly before the shooting, and that the white men who parked the boats in Brush place had been pulling their guns on her 11-year old son.

The betting here is that the Commission will kick O'Brien off the force, After the Linthcome killing they have to throw a crumb to the blacks and white libs, don't they? Also, Benito wants to keep the city cool this summer so he can run for Governor or Senator next year. for Governor or Senator next year. Tune in next week for the thrilling

"I'm sure when they find the killer," said Jones, "it'll be a Panther."

It was Tuesday morning, and Tommy, and about 20 others, including black women and babes-in-arms crowded the pavement two doors from the Black Panther Headquarters.

His charge had already been refuted by Black Panther Chairman Bobby Seale at a press conference Monday, "The Party has no information about the shootout," Seale said bluntly.

The Examiner reported Seale said he first suspected Jones "when he questioned me intently on Eldridge's whereabouts, I could smell him out," Seale further stated that Jones had never even been a Party member, but "someone who only hung around the party headquarters,"

"These pigs have lied on the party, informed on the party, and planned jive robberies to discredit the party," he added, "Black agents like this are duping other renegades into following them and are trying to destroy the people's liberation movement."

"We're telling parents in the community to keep their children out of the Party," Richard Anderson said. "The Party is going to bring black people down."

Harrison complained about the books by Mao and other revolutionaries, the strict self criticism, and hard discipline they had to follow. "They didn't even want us to have a family," he said. "We just couldn't take their shit any more." Others nodded their heads in agreement.

Harrison accused Hilliard of personally "vamping on the people." He pointed out his younger brother, Gregory 17, who stood nearby with a bandage on his temple. The younger Harrison charged several Panthers, including Hilliard, beat him at Merritt College last week.

Jimmy Charley, who described himself as Seale's former body-guard, spoke of the shooting of Black and quoted Eldridge Cleaver: "Whoever lifts a gun against a brother, instead of a pig, is a coward."

"We're waiting for Huey to get out of jail to put everything back together." he added.
"When Huey gets out those vip-ers will be the first ones he'll deal with," Hilliard told BARB in response to the heavy charges. He spoke of Harrison in particular saying he was one of the He spoke of Harrison in particular, saying he was one of the original Panthers who went to Sacramento 2 years ago. One falsehood that has to be nailed is the claim that Bobby Seale spent the people's money in Europe. The truth is that the bread was put up by Swedish radicals and didn't cost the Panthers two bits two bits.

Our street revolution should check out Eldridge's rap on the "stupid revolution". The time for hoping the revolution will happen by itself is over. We need a program and a strategy and tactics to bring it off. I am sick of the pigs laughing up their asses at our dumbness and lack of skill. We must learn to fight and think. In this struggle we may even have to read a book.

The renegades boast about the fact that they refuse to read books, Eldridge Cleaver read Das Kapital in San Quentin and about everything else in the library. Huey knows Fanon by heart and read Deustcher's biography of Trotsky in Vacaville. To hope for a defense of political illiteracy from Huey and Eldridge is to expect a library to turn into a television set.

The boycott was the only weapon left in the arsenal of the Richmond local, since they returned to work without a contract last week. Cheving the strikers with firing if they did not return.

The prime issue in this strike is the ability of the Local to retain the union shop provision in their contract. Chevron, ownedwholly by Standard, is pushing a "right-towork" line which may signal the opening of an offensive against organized labor nationwide.

Apparently the Local has lost this opening round. Nat Weinstein, who had been in charge of coordinating the boycott, speculated that "before they can do anything they've got to conduct an educational campaign within the local and form up a base — changes will have to be made within that union.

Monday a chopper constantly buzzed the little courthouse on the base for "security reasons," At Hallinan's vehement insistence Hearing Officer Captain James Hagan ordered it grounded.

Hallinan and his supporters had to bypass three checkpoints of armed guards Monday to get to the courthouse. They had to drive 18 miles through hostile territory to reach the site of the trial. Tuesday, again at defense insistence, a gate was opened only about a 100 yards from the courthouse. No spies took films or photos of incoming spectators Tuesday as they had the day before.

"We're definitely on the offensive," Hallinan told BARB. He said he is still confident of acquittal for his clients.

"We'll bring in testimony they never expected," he promised. Witnesses to the killing of Put Richard Bunch will be allowed to testify, Hallinan said. He plans to put three such witnesses on the stand. One fellow prisoner, William Hayes, will give the details of his discussion of suicide with Bunch the day before the young soldier was shot.

THE GALLANT BRASS?

Couple of weeks ago Mike Bloom-field was on stage at Fillmore West. And after a couple of numbers he took the mike, came upstage and said, "Hey, how come nobody dances? Yea, how come you don't dance like you use to?"

There was a sort of dull mumble from the crowd, but as far as I know he never got an answer. It being sort of a square question anyway.

Not that Bloomfield is a square, far from it. He's a fine musician, and when he started getting into his harmonica thing I was reminded of Dylan's phrase about"...blowing his lungs out for a dollar a day; blowing it inside out and upside down."

And there it is, out there swirling, twisting and twirling; your mind, having a ball, and you never missed it until the music stops and it sneaks back again. And then and it sneaks back again. And then you say with some alarm, "Hey, mind. Where you been? You've been gone for at least fiteen minutes. Oh wow. Do I worry about you when you go and do crazy things like that. take well-deserved places as mile-stones in the upper echelon of 1969 rock music. At least one is a good candidate for lp of the year. What makes this fact the least bit startling is that all three al-bums were done by groups who have been around for many years. They are right to left to right: The Beach Boys, Four Seasons, the McCoys. the McCovs.

the McCoys.

All three have spent years with the label of "bubble gum" stuck to their lower lips. Top Ugly 40 Radio. Teenlebopper mushy slop. The overwhelming evidence is that they have now all grown up musically as well as physically.

The Beach Boys, who racked up gold record after gold record singing about greasy cars and pepsi generation surf parties, in the early sixties, have produced a literally beautiful album. 20/20 is the title.

a literally beautiful album. 20/20 is the title.

The record was produced almost exclusively by the group's members, with most of the chores falling on Brian and Carl Wilson. Every cut on the album is good, and many are excellent. Enough can't be said for the material, which includes a counter-parody of the Beatles; and even such oldies as Cottonfields and Bluebirds Over The Mountain come off well.

as Cottonields and Bluebirds Over The Mountain come off well. There has always been some-thing strangely haunting about the Beach Boys' vocal presentation. They somehow seem to draw you in to a familiar friendly land, in to a familiar friendly land, then proceed to sprinkle nostalgic dream dust all over your nice clean mind. It's almost scary, 20/20 will grab you the same way. The material is friendly and

The Four Seasons have grown

The Four Seasons have grown up much more than musically. They have become very politically and socially aware. The album, The Genuine Imitation Life Gazette, is a six page fold-out newspaper complete with eight-page insert supplement.

It is possibly the greatest piece of combined satire and critical social commentary ever produced social commentary ever produced by a recording company (Phillips in this case). It takes subtle but hard slaps at everything from the draft to divorce.

"See them always smiling, full of games to play. Fun to have a Daddy every Saturday. Today is Father's day."

The Seasons put on other musicians as well as the world in general. Most obvious are take-offs on "Hey Jude," and Claudine Longet's "I Will Wait For You" done in a Latino-flavored diddy called "Idaho".

The Genuine Imitation Life Ga-

The Genuine Imitation Life Gazette newspaper has everything in it you would find in a regular daily, with expected exceptions in the editorial presentation. In effect it is an underground paper on an overground record jacket. It is, what editor Max maintains should have been done a long time ago. But then Max has always been ahead of his time.

It is unlikely that the Seasons will receive the right-wing censure that Country Joe and the Fish earned for "Fixin to Die Rag", but then the Fish hadn't already sold over 50 million records to teenieboppers.

The group is completed by drummer Randy Zehringer and bassist Randy Hobbs. To cement it all down, the lp was produced and arranged by the McCoys with Fred Lipsius, sax man of Blood, Sweat, and Tears, and the BS&T horn section was used on several cuts.

Many of the cuts are outstanding. Only one, "Clergy Lies", doesn't quite make it. The group's live redition of Stormy Monday Blues, which was also on their first Hang On Sloopy lp, has got to be the best version ever recorded.

Last summer, just a few days before Congress zipped through the law making it illegal to conspire to run a Pig for president in the streets of Chicago, they passed a federal law protecting the flag from "defacement and defiling." The maximum penalty is one year in jail and a $1000 fine. (The only other country to have just passed a similar law is Russia.)

The flag is not the only national symbol to be protected. Previous laws gave protection to Smokey the Bear, the 4-H club's cloverleaf, and the Swiss flag(?). For example, anyone who "defaces a facsimile of Smokey the Bear is subject to a $250 fine and six months in jail."

My arrest (for wearing a flag shirt) at the HUAC hearings last October was the first arrest under the federal law. At the trial was found guilty and given a 30 day sentence which is just coming up for appeal. A transcript of the trial can be found in the November, 1968 issue of the Realist.

That the law is so vague that it would make Uncle Sam, drum majorettes and candidates who sport red, white, and blue hats and ties criminals is relatively unimportant to the federal government. They have adopted Catch-22 as their motto which states, if you remember, "we can put anybody in jail who we don't like no matter what the fuck the constitutionsays."

Since my conviction there have been numerous others. Edward the New York Times, Los Angeles Times and the San Francisco Examiner, to name a few.

Franz, a freshman at Virginia Commonwealth University was sentenced to a year in jail for wearing a flag vest. Wearing the same style vest, a 16 year old Eoston guy visiting Alexandria, Virginia, was arrested and 'banished from the city of Alexandria until the age of 21." Dig that sentence! A student at Fairleigh Dickinson College in Lancaster, Pa, was recently busted for using the flag as a bedspread and on across was recently busted for doing the flag as a bedspread and on across the country, with about 30 such cases in the past few months. Of course, not everyone who wears a flag shirt or dress gets arrested, just as not everyone who smokes pot goes to jail. The flag design is a current mod-fashion among the rich. Ads for dresses and vests appeared recently in the New York Times, Los Angeles Times and the San Francisco Examiner, to name a few. Phyllis Diller has appeared on TV in a flag mini-skirt, and companies are doing a brisk business in flag lighters (for draft cards?), flag chairs, flag ties, flag hats, flag banks, flag dishes, flag pencil holders, and there is a rumor that a flag diaphragm is on the way. Then, after the War, I experienced a mass demonstration of the Marx-its in front of the Royal Palace and the Lustgarten. A sea of red flags, red scarves, and red flow-ers gave to this demonstration, in which an estimated hundred and in which an estimated hundred and twenty thousand persons took part, an aspect that was gigantic from the purely external point of view. I myself could feel and understand how easily the man of the people succumbs to the suggestive magic of a spectacle so grandiose in effect."

CONSPIRACY HATCHED

by Stew Albert

The Conspiracy spent two days in Berkeley last week and hatched plans to tour the nation.

Abbie Hoffman, Jerry Rubin, Dave Dellinger, Tom Hayden, Bobby Seale and John Froines who were indicted by Little Dicks Nixon and Daley for conspiracy met in a fashionable Ashby Ave crash pad, Along with a stray co-conspirator (me) they decided to turn the indictments into a continent the indictments into a continent -

The group will call itself The Conspiracy and invites all the ambitious madmen of hope to join it.

A tribal alliance of the Chicago Conspirators, The Oakland 7 and the Black Panthers will travel around the country rapping to the reality and signing up volunteers. The Conspiracy hopes to be tens of thousands strong in the streets of Chicago during the trial, which, if the government doesn't see the clear light, will take place about a year from now.

The Conspirators were like one head in Berkeley. None of them wanted to turn it into a feel-sorry-for-me support campaign. They know the pigs love defense campaigns where everyone stops creating and starts crying, It's clear the Movement lost out in the don't-send-me-to-jall front groups.

The Conspiracy will turn the attack into our own style Tet offensive. Not a single campus, ghetto or dropout center will go unscorched and unchanged. If the pigs think the indictments will slow down interstate traffic in revolution they have a surprise coming up on Highway 61 filled with Panthers, Yippies and merry macists breaking traffic laws and in a big hurry to hatch another consciousness-expanding collision.

Bobby Seale says that he may move Panther National Headquarters to Chicago and turn on Chi-

In his little White House of sterility Richard Nixon will come to see the San Andreas come to see the San Andreas fault as part of our conspiracy quivering beneath his feet.

Tom Hayden layed a short mind-blower on the crowd: "speaking of conspiracies, 70 Gls in the stockade at Fort Carson Colorado escaped with rifles into the mountains." He left everyone hanging on that, including BARB, as Hayden was unavailable for further details at press time.

The Chicago indictees were given 30 days for their attornies to file motions; a travel ban for that period restricting the eight to Cook County was made by Judge Hoffman, but later in the day rescinded.

Hoffman, rescinded.

My god, (atheists should spell god with a lower case g), here it is time to write another column for the BARB.

I remember how it came to pass that I started to write this column. I was walking down the street with mybride—she was a bride then—when this bearded ragamuffin came up to me and gave me two tickets to the theater we were about to enter. That theater now is the site of a Mexican restaurant on Telegraph. The ragamuffin was Max Scherr, editor of the BARB.

I was so pleased to receive something for nothing, that I didn't know what to do with myself. I decided to repay this kindness by writing for this gentleman's newspaper, which at that time had about 1,000 readers. Mr. Scherr handled all of the distribution himself, in those days, peddling his papers as it were.

So it came to pass that in the eleventh issue of the Berkeley BARB, a column appeared, that looked more like a letter to the editor, under the now extinct byline of Leonard together—when you know that the now extinct byline of Leonard Lipton. What a guy that Leonard was, but more about him another time.

It sounds like all that happened about a hundred years ago, well it's more like three years and a few months. Now as you all know the BARB is a wonderful success, Mr. Scherr edits his paper via videophone from his villa on the Riviera, and I am world famous. Wherever and I am world famous, wherever I go, people stop and say, look, it's Lenny Lipton, world famous col-umnist for the underground paper, the BARB, Enough of this meandering, Time to get a grip on myself, and ply my trade. My trade? Oh Mother, can this really by my trade? Did you raise your son to be a Human Harp?

I anted to tell you about a film that is so bad, I must say that it is the worst film I have ever seen. As I write these words, so help me, I know in my bones I'm telling the truth. The name of this film is CHANGES, How I came to go to see this turkey is something that deserves to be told, in brief. I anted to tell you about a film deserves to be told, in brief.

Jim and Ruth and Lenny and Diane were sitting around after having eaten Ruth's sukiaki, when they excided to go see a fillum. They searched the papers, and could arrive at no decision. Lenny wanted to see the worst piece of Hollywood crap, but noboby would agree.

A HUNDRED RIFLES playing with FIVE MILLION MILES TO EARTH seemed like the worst possible double feature, and it had Raquel Welch to boot. She plays one of the rifles. Both were in color, so I just had to go. A film in Panavision and color is all I need. I don't care what it's about. They're I don't care what it's about. They're all so shitty, that when I want to turn off, I want to turn off and I make no bones about it.

Anyway, what were we going to do if we didn't go to the movies? Sit around and talk to each other?

I blame you, Jim, especially you. You wanted to see something a bit more important, didn't you. Even when I said I was a film critic (a lie if there ever was one) you laughed, ha ha! But the last laugh was on you, because all of us suffered through CHANGES.

Why do you need to go see imp You wanted to see fered through CHANGES.

Why do you need to go see important films, people? What's wrong with digging crap if it's really honestly crap. Do you really digent Luc or reading the subtitles of Czechoslovakian melodramas? Do you crave films of social significance to the extent that you would pay money to sit and be bored to death. We are all going to bore each other to death if we don't watch out. Watch out, America.

each other to death if we don't watch out. Watch out, America.
CHANGES was so bad that even the jeering audience couldn't cure it for me. We had all paid out $2.50 per head, and on a Saturday night, and rainy I might add, we weren't going to leave. Only the fabled earthquake could rouse me out of that theater. I have never heard an audience jeer so openly at a film, and I mean it.
Camp is something else, it really and I mean it.

Camp is something else, it really is. It's a different feeling. A Busby Berkeley musical has a lot of distance between it and you and you stoned or something.

But the audience hated CHANGES so, and it was really that kind of thing that makes you all feel bonded together -- when you know that you've been shucked -- suckered out of your bread by the scum who produce such crap.

The 'hippy thing' has spawned more shit in the name of art and information than any other recent information than any other recent source of inspiration. CHANGES was about this dreadful greasy creep who drops out of Berkeley and wanders around the country side in slow motion, seeking to find himself and his world. Like other films of its ilk, CHANGES is completely unfamiliar with its subject matter.

If this punk and his girlfriend felt each other up again flopping felt each other up again flopping through the surf in slow motion, or through the surf in slow motion, or through the grass in slow motion, or through the heather in slow motion, one more time I tell you they would have had a flood of womit to clean out of the aisles. I could call the precious little vignettes before they happened. And no change occurs to the punk hero-he goes into the flick a greasy punk and he comes out a greasy punk. I think this sentimental film is an evil work and I'll tell you why.

an evil work and I'll fell you why.
Sentimentality, or getting turned on by the wrong thing, or extracting too much emotion from an event which shouldn't really elicit a powwhich should rearry eight a four erful response, is a device for screening you from the real passions of the world. It has often been said that sentimentality is the secret mask of cruelty, and there are few films I have seen more cruel than CHANGES there are few films I have seen more cruei than CHANGES.

I say this because I really believe that you and I and all of us are god, that Tim Leary is right, if there's any god he's in you, and when something like CHANGES relinquishes the true richness and fullness of the spirit of life, and puts in its place pap, it is an evil thing.

Life is too rich and too short to have to sit through CHANGES, even if the audience is groovy and it's raining out. Waste, waste waste. Like Ignatz said; "Useless, even in the still watches of the night."

BARB PROBES FBI

The FBI is investigating "possible police brutality" that may have occurred during the UC strike, and BARB is investigating it also. Hot on the trail of justice, two hard-core BARB staffers found themselves in the third floor corridor leading to the Feds' office in the corner building at Center and Milvia in Berkeley.

HOW TO TURN SPEED TO LOVE

Dear Berkeley Barb:
Thought you might like to hear of a move out here to get the manufacturers of Speed to switch their production lines to the new "Love drug", MDA (3, 4-methylenedioxy - phenyl - isopropylamine), which has been getting rave reviews. I quote from a pamphlet signed by the "Diggers Chamber of Commerce":
"Super-drug-guru Alexander Shulgin of Dwo Chemical and inventor of STP has announced (Med. Pharmacol. Exp. 17, p. 359, 1967) that the same simple syntheses responsible for the flood of poisonous amphetamine can be used to make a completely different sonous amphetamine can be used to make a completely different drug called "MDA", which does not speed, but liberates feelings of love and affection. If you can make amphetamine, you can make MDA. Do it, and help to speed the extinction of speed. The sequence benzaldehyde to beta-nitrostyrene to benzyl methyl ke-tone (phenyl-acetone) to amphetamine gives instead MDA when piperonal is substituted for the benzaldehyde (piperonal is 3, 4-methylenedioxy - benzaldehyde). Even simpler is the procedure from iso-safrole according to Fujisawa (Chemical Abstracts 52, 11965b, (1958)."

They also quote from Shulgin that the MDA doen not (at does of 100 mg.) cause bad physical symptoms, disturbed thought, or visual hall-ucinations, but it does create a strong "three-dimensionality" when listening to music, as also occurs with hallucinogens like LSD, At the present time it is apparently not illegal to prepare, possess, or to conduct animal experiments conduct animal experiments with MDA, but as an experimental drug it should not be administered to humans without FDA approved to the property of the prop al of the research.

GALE RECEIVING LEO'S BACKING

A service of decontamination will take place Friday afternoon (April 11) at Berkeley's Pacific School of Religion.

The service will be the initial step for the creation of a New Seminary by rebels at the "Holy Hill" school. Two days of fes-

"The school is in complicity with the dark powers of elitism, violence and exploitation," Ron Hudson said. Eleven demands for the estab-lishment of a new seminary at the theology school have been set forth, they said.

forth, they said.

"In my three years at seminary school I learned almost nothing about the real job of the ministry," Reverend Dick York of the Berkeley Free Church recalled, "It was too isolated and segregated from the present world." Reverend York will help with the establishment of a "liberated zone" at PSR this weekend.

"We want to be ministers, but not institutionalized," the spokesmen for the New Seminary Movemen for the New Seminary Movemen for the New Seminary Movement.

"We want to be ministers, but not institutionalized," the spokesmen for the New Seminary Movement said, "We won't be chapalins for the establishment. The Bible and the school have to be rededicated so they won't be a ruling class opiate for the masses, but serve the cause of the people," the two divinity students said.

What the New Seminary Movement is asking is a more democraticized decision-making process at the school.

They accuse the school of being part of the inadequate old order which perpetuates the myths that justify US foreign and domestic policies of exploitation and oppression. They accuse the school of turning out elitist, detached and condescending ministers suffering from spiritual sterility.

Further they charge the administration is following a containment policy of keeping the lid on activity directed toward start-

The seminary radicals call for student control of the school's activities, the elimination of all grades and the creation of an urban-black studies program. All these demands are to be discussed at a campus wide meeting April 16. At that time the groundwork for the opening convocation of the New Seminary next September will be laid. be laid.

At PSR itself marchers will circle the campus twice, blowing trumpets and kazoos in the style of Joshua at Jerico to "exorcise the demons from the buildings," the spokesmen said.

"Ignore us, hell," Laurence said, "Our gay picket line will soon be a big noon hour feature of the financial district. Already several other radical groups are interested in helping us put a stop to discrimination against homosexuals.

The Committee for Homosexual Freedom is hoping to form coalitions with other non-violent, militant minorities working for freedom and love. Its membership is open to everybody willing to fight publicly for homosexual rights. A new nuclist club has been organized in San Francisco.

"We want to encourage acceptance of the human body as a wholesome, beautiful entity," Dave Weitz, president of the Bay Area Sun Club (BASC) said.

He sees the new group as primarily for "young-thinking people" with an interest in social and athletic nuclity. BASC ascribes to the tenets of the American Sunbathing Association which promotes nucle living.

BASC doesn't necessarily push for romping nucle through the park, Weitz said, Although not condeming it he thinks a public beach set aside for nuclists is a better approach for now.

People interested in health and sun should contact BASC at PO Box 26133 SF 94126.

PLASTIC DUPE-LICITY BELOW THE BIBLE BELT

Not often can a reader catch BOTH the SF Chronicle and the Berkeley Gazette with their print down, but it happened one day last week.

On Friday, Apr 4, there appeared the same letter signed by two different people. The Chronicle was so impressed by the letter, it set the canned-philosophy in a special box. The Gazette ran the letter in full.

"We hear a lot about revolutionaries these days and revolutionary characters. Easter brings to our attention one of te most revolutionary characters of all times—Jesus Christ."

The letter goes on to state (as any reader of The BARB can already guess) that the Thing To Do was not to be revolutionary but turn the other cheek and be

"He made no strident noises in His own defense, but even meek-ly submitted to the agony of the cross...it's right there in the Holy Bible."

Okay - the Chronicle so-called letter-writer signed her name, "Betty J. Main, Pacifica." The Gazette Christian signed his name "Lee A. Redmon, Apt 7, 1824 7th ave., Oakland."

Obviously, the BOTH could not have written the same letter. The BARB is interested in hearing from readers elsewhere in the US to see how many more of the "Christian" letters appeared in the press. One of the lesser-known commandments, apparently, is "Thou Shall Not Lie." It's right there in the Holy Bible, G.K. Okay - the Chronicle so-called HANDY metaphor is a forest and a clearing in the forest. The forest is what is not known. The clearing is what is known. In the clearing are the people. Some of them face out. Some of them face in.

Those facing in pretend that what is known is the whole of what is. They do this by Science which assumes that what is not proven does not exist. They organise their days round the pursuit of stability and security. They do this by Politics and Economics which has, up till now, been concerned with protection rather than achievement and is thus negative. Those facing in are increasingly inclined to refuse or destroy new knowledge. New knowledge means risk and change. These qualities are despised by those who face inwards, into the centre of the clearing.

Those facing out are driven away from Those facing out are driven away from the centre by their own centrifugal thirst. They are incomplete, like an aroused but unsatisfied man. They are perpetually looking for the unavailable to grant them the ecstasy beyond ecstasy. No land is celestial enough, no orgasm bright enough. What is achieved is already insufficient. They operate by flight gesture faith and magic operate by flight, gesture, faith, and magic. They are not concerned to go into the areas that are mapped, or that can be mapped. They are concerned with precisely that part of the forest that is not accessible to normal rational enquiry. The best among them are makers of magical objects and magical ceremonies. They are called, in our Western European civilisation, artists. What they discover in the forest they perpetually plough back into the centre of the clearing for common enjoyment, which is the same as common use. as common use.

In a good society, a well-run clearing, new knowledge is perpetually used in the centre of the clearing to perpetuate change, which is the evidence and condition of life. People cluster round the magic objects. They join in the ceremonies and convert them to rituals. In a bad society new knowledge is refused, out of fear. Consequently the quality of life will fade, the urge to live will fade and collective suicide will follow. This is what is happening. The hell of it is that in a world-wide society, our society, there is only one clearing. Once that is littered with suicidal corpses, there is no other society to continue the business of being human elsewhere. End this scene and you end everything.

The clearing is increasing in size all the

The clearing is increasing in size all the time. This is history.

There are various techniques of negating the new knowledge which the artists plough back. One is academic criticism. By this back. One is academic criticism. By this kind of criticism the craft is held to be more important than the magic. The psychic explorer is criticised by the same yardstick as the maker of utilitarian objects. The present day adventurer is criticised for not possessing the same merits and producing the same artifacts as his predecessor. Thus Dylan Thomas is rejected by David Holbrook for not having the same syntactical clarity of meaning as Empson. Thus Ezra Pound is ignored by universities for not allowing his poetry to take place within the confines of philosophy, as does his less ambitious pupil, Eliot.

Thus art is perpetually subjected to the Thus art is perpetually subjected to the critiques only appropriate to more domestic pursuits, like philosophy, science, psychology and morality. Thus surrealism is seen as an illustration to Freud, and Brecht is seen as an illustration to Marx, and Picasso is seen as a 'reflection of his time.' Art is reduced to a definition of subservience to old knowledge. Art is permitted to find old knowledge. Art is permitted to find nothing out. Thus the unadventurous is exalted. Alvarez exalts Plath because she can be treated as a psycho-analyst. Cubism is considered as decoration and a host of douce French painters like Menassier and Singler are prepared to provide mere decor-

Another means of negating new information is by morality. As the academy works against art, so the law works against ecstasy. Clearly that which is not permitted is a field still to be explored. Clearly much that is unexplored is forbidden in order to resist change and inconvenience, in order to resist risk within the centre of the clearing. Artists who address themselves perpetually to the new, which is the same as the unknown, are not only ignored. They are forbidden. Galansov digs out the unbearable swamps. He is imprisoned. Bill Butler sells discovery. He ploughs news back from the frontier to the ordinary people in his little shop in Brighton. He is fined and persecuted.

Art work is condemned as bad or wrong, not because it is either bad or wrong. By previous critiques it is always bad. Van Gogh's perspective was poor. Pollack was uncontrolled. By previous moralities it is always wrong. McClure is cruel. Ginsberg is perverted. It is really condemned because it is unsafe, it is the engine of radical change which involves risk. It involves actual risk to those in power in the clearing. When change comes they will lose their power. It involves the sense of risk on the part of those who serve the power-figures, because their powers of individual thought have been so reduced that they can only ontologically define themselves as dependants within the existent power structure.

Scientific enquiry is not art. Freud was

Scientific enquiry is not art. Freud was

Psychological or psychedelic enquiry is not art. Leary is not an artist.

Community feeling, experiment in human relationships is not art. The Human Family and the Exploding Galaxy and Family Dog are not artists. They are setting up rituals which revolve around the discoveries of artists.

An artist exists. He must purify his condition. He must cut away his knowledge, he must cut away what of the past creeps into his being. He confines himself as exclusively to the present as possible. He makes no assumptions about the future. He listens to nothing but changing murmurs of his imagination. He exists. He reduces his existence to its pure present moment. Here his hands move. They re-arrange the elements before his senses, the sounds, the volumes, the spaces and the silences. He rearranges the elements before his senses so that they give an effect. That effect is the same effect as the effect the artist's imagination is having on him, at the moment of creation. If he rearranges the elements as he has been taught to, like an academic poet, like Philip Hobsbaum, he is not an artist. If he rearranges the elements to illustrate a rational idea like Renato Guttuso, he is not an artist. He is only an artist if he accepts the full responsibility for what he has chosen to do, interpret the possible in terms of the distilled imagination. An artist exists. He must purify his conof the distilled imagination.

The full range of future, of possibility, of what is not known, is, of course, chaotic. It is chaotic because it has not yet been ordered. It has not been ordered because it is not yet known. It may be that in this case to know is the same as to create. Chaos is not yet ordered because it has not yet been created. The shade of margin which been created. The shade of margin which may exist between the imagination as a perceptive agent and the imagination as an inventive agent is interesting here. Where does the unexplored forest exist except in possibility? What is the discovery of possibility but the invention of ideas. It seems to me that it makes little difference whether an idea is discovered inside or outside of the mind. It wasn't evident before the imaginang. It was discovered by the imagination. "was discovered and preserved in the artifact whose composition was the means of discovery. This is the important and useful thing. Then the idea can be ordered by ritualisation and rationalisation. Until the creative moment it is chaos.

Chaos is not only dangerous to order, to law, to security, which is the core of the clearing, the cooking fire of society. Chaos is the cosmic opposite. It is artificial to bring about harmony between chaos and order, between anarchy and law, between discovery and security. They are a natural dichotomy, not a situation of artificial alienation. The only way of harmonising them is by death. Thus artists die younger than most, very often. Thus artists lose the ability to conduct themselves in the centre of the clearing. They 'go mad' as it is called. Intelligent politics is the intelligent juxtaposition of the mutually repellent elements of order and chaos. Order is what is past. Chaos is what is to come. As soon as it arrives it can be turned into order.

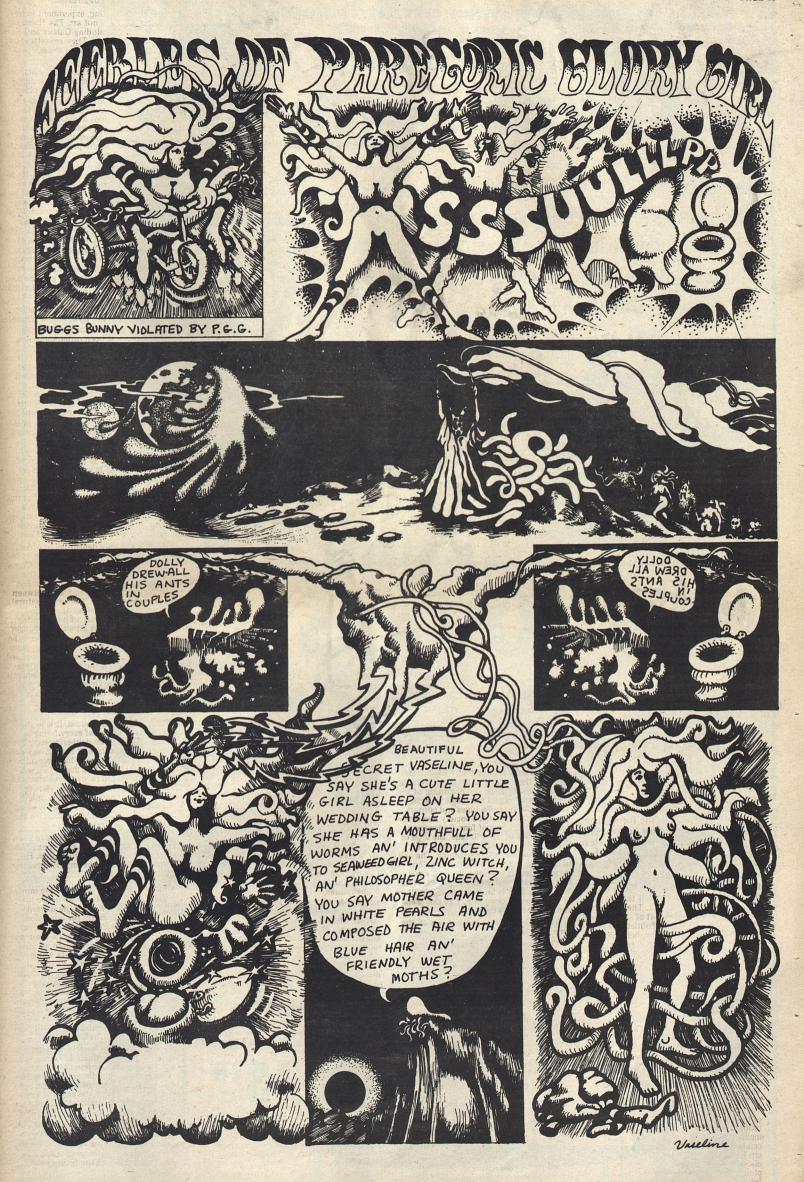

Chaos will not be ignored. It is in the interests of the safety of every home to acknowledge chaos by deliberate risk. Every hearth must admit its wild man. Every patriarch must permit himself his moments of crime and vision. If he doesn't he will find himself engaged in gross cruelties without realising what is happening. He will make war in Vietnam and burn people wholesale whilst believing that he is being entirely rational and only working for the best and safest interests.

Read Blake Pon't make of Blake a sen-what we are about is life. We are mortal. At the edges of knowledge we battle towards immortality. We struggle towards death. Death is obviously the condition about which we know least, the least explored area of forest. We struggle again and again to the edge of death where we send back what we have found, from which point we hurl back our artifacts so that the domestic folk among us can use them. If they do not they will stop enjoying life. They can only see life if death is near. They can only savour mortality if immortality is attendent among us. Art is a small beacon of death burning warmly by the legal hearthstone, illuminating the dimmer coals of the cooking fires. coals of the cooking fires.

We are sick in our society because our hearth is not illuminated. We are sick because we have constructed a culture amongst us which has discarded completely the authentic information that has been passed back to us from the edges of knowledge. We have made artifacts from the impulses of our rational faculty rather than from our imagination. We have refused the new knowledge which our artists are providing and as a result we are dying. We can only hope that our artists will take us by the back hair and fuck the future down our throats.

Does this professor speak for the public? No.

Then, for Christ's sake, who does he speak for? Answer: The private timber industry who wants to cut down more of our national forests. They also, by the way, pay him the fees and expenses.

This all came to light thanks to the SF Examiner's reporter in Washington, Leslie H. Whitten, who front-paged the story Sunday, Apr 6, 1969.

Dr. John A Zivnuska "did not tell the three congressional committees before whom he has testified in the last month that he is a paid timber industry in no way dictates hi testimony."

Instead, he got up in front of the Congress committee and said he was speaking "simply as an individual citizen" in favor of allowing more trees to be cut down.

dividual citizen" in favor of allowing more trees to be cut down. Furthermore, Dr. Zivnuska, apparently, is also something of a tax-expert. He spoke as "part of a panel from the forest industries committee on timber valuation and taxation—a timber industry group. They were before the House Ways and Means Committee looking into capital gains in the timber business, "a multimillion dollar tax question."

What in the hell this has to do with Forestry is a mystery. Is sure has a lot to do with profits. Perhaps this law and order professor, this fine representative of fessor, this fine representative of "the silent majority", can explain away THIS aspect of his depart-ment by "simply speaking as an individual."

QUESTION: I am 62 and retired by necessity (and how). Well, in the first place I have an incurable heart disease or rather two of them (infarctions and arteriosclerosis) plus high blood pressure. Also assorted other conditions. The big trouble is that I have anxiety neurosis, so I never know whether any symptom is physical or not. I have been like that since I was about 16. Though they really did try I have wasted a small fortune on psychiatrists without any results whatsoever.

Tranquilizers make me sleepy and depressed or fearfully nervous after the effects have worn off. Alcohol simply makes me feel sick. Now marijuana, on the few happy occasions I have had an opportunity to smoke it, has made me calm, relaxed and happy and seems to leave no after effect. My great difficulty is contacting a reliable dealer since I cannot get around too much and my age would be against me also. How I wish I could!

I seem to have read somewhere that tests were being made with tetrahydracannabinol (THC) the active principle of marijuana. Now I know that drug companies give samples of new drugs to physicians for clinical testing under field conditions and I wonder whether THC has arrived at that stage yet. For that matter, I would buy it on the black market if it were the genuine stuff. Do you happen to know any physician who would like a subject to test it on?

P.S. I am very careful about the use of ALL drugs. Marijuana did not seem to affect my heart or blood pressure at all.

ANSWER: This year the Government has authorized about 50 research projects dealing with marijuana and THC. Most of them, however, do not seem to include human experiemntation. No drug company has yet been authorized to conduct clinical trials with marijuana but the increasing illegal use of this drug by many segments of the population—old and young, rich and poor—will undoubtedly lead to widespread legal experiments.

QUESTION: I am without kidney function and am being kept alive on an artificial kidney. I enjoy smoking grass with an occasional boost of 5 to 10 milligrams of dextroamphetamine sulfate (Dexadrina) by mouth dextroamphetamine suitate (Dex-edrine) by mouth. Will the latter stimulant com-plicate my current health status? ANSWER: The metabolism of marijuana is unknown at this time but more is known about amphet-amines. AFter amphetamines are absorbed from the gastrointestin-al tract, a large proportion is ex-creted unchanged in the urine. The rest is probably detoxified by the liver.

The rest is probably detoxified by the liver.

I think you should let your physician know you are using these drugs. He should be able to weigh the benefits you feel are received from them against any possible physical harm. The occasional oral use of 5 to 10 milligrams of an amphetamine is rarely harmful to a normal individual but yours in an exceptional case.

No matter how uptight you may think him to be I doubt that your physician will turn you over to the police. Few prisons have artificial kidneys.

But if I can understand them, so can you, If by now you don't, that is a reflection on my lucidity, not on their rationality.

It's often made me wonder too, why Ethnic Studies, worthy an aim as it is in itself, should be such an inflammatory issue, and draw so much blood-sweat-and-tears so willingly from so many young people who are not even ethnic in the intended sense. The answer is that it is a tangible worthy is that it is a tangible worthy aim that can be used to get a little initial leverage on the hopeless system. Okay, the artists on this album are great. Muddy Waters, Chuck

The songs are mostly classics.
"Forty Days and Forty Nights."
Little Walter's "Key to the Highway," which Steve Miller did on his first album. "How Many More Years" by Howlin Wolf, which Fleetwood Mac did on their first album. "Off The Wall," with Little Walter's exquisite harp playing. No shuck jobs here, this album has the finest blues musicians doing their finest work.

What could go wrong?
Read the small print. "Electronically altered for stereo." The point is, if you play this album at a decent volume, it will hurt your ears. The shit sound will make you not want to hear these far out songs. You will be sorry you bought what could have been an incredibly groovy blues sampler.

A LeRoi Jones First

The Group, a talented bunch of The Group, a talented bunch of young writers, actors, musicians, dancers, cinematographers, etc., will present an evening of Black Drama on Friday and Saturday, April 11 and 12 at the Oakland Auditorium Theatre.

Two plays by LeRoi Jones, "SLAVESHIP" and "GREAT GOODNESS OF LIFE" are on the boards.

"SLAVESHIP," though little known, is considered by some to be Jones' best work. It is experimen-tal in concept and engenders the spirit of creative improvisation in the actor and the audience. This is the original and only production of this play on the West Coast.

"GREAT GOODNESS OF LIFE" is a brand new LeRoi Jones play making its world premiere on Friday night. It is in the Jones' tradition of intense theater and displays his further envolvement as a great playwright.

Tickets are available at Sherman & Clay, U.C. Box Office and Merritt College Bookstore. Seating is reserved.

from Chess, and before I get to the groovy music thereon, I think I'll cut the company a little more.

I'll cut the company a little more, Except for the streetcar on the cover, I can't see what this album has to do with San Francisco. And Buddy Guy didn't leave his blues anywhere excepton the record. It's just that "San Francisco" sells records, just like "Electric" on ELECTRIC MUD sells records. The bass player on this album is really, really good. Who is he? Chess won't tell. Theyrarely tell. They many whatsa matter with bass mean, whatsa matter with bass players that we don't get to know who they are? One of my best friends is a bass player, and he's alright.

The music on this album is a real treat -- soul blues with a strong R & B influence. In other words, music that MOVES you, physically music that MOVES you, physically and spiritually, Buddy Guy's singing here, as on his recent "live" album, recorded at our very own New Orleans House, is free and nearly instrumental. It sounds like he can do just about anything he wishes to do with his voice. Listen to his singing as if the notes were played by a guitar, and you'll hear what would be beautiful, virtuosi solos.

"Buddy's Groove" is an interesting cut because of the manner in which the instrumental section is shandled. It's sort of a jam, in which each instrument really gets into the handled. It's sort of a jam, in which each instrument really gets into the basic rhythmic and melodic pattern. I've noticed the same technique on the new Stones and Traffic lp's. It's perfect for a recording, because the polyphonic interplay has more potential, in terms of durability, than a single instrument, or typical blues sogo. I mean simply that there is more to be interesting.

ENGLISH ROSE: FLEETWOOD

The usual criticism of this young English blues band is that they are too imitative. For me however, their simplicity of approach is appealing, and I'm glad they trust the old riffs enough to rely upon them. For example, the twelve bar shuffle which Jimmy Reed and Elmore James used almost exclusively—Fleetwood Mac trusts a shuffle, a goddamn beautiful, simple shuffle; they get into a shuffle, and often let it stand out alone, without frills, just cause it's so groovy. In a sense, this band is three bands. Peter Green, who played lead guitar on Mayall's HARD ROAD, sings about a third of the material. When he sings, the lead guitar work is his.

Jeremy Spencer, who has his own album coming out soon, sings another third of the songs, those on which you hear his bottleneck guitar. He's an Elmore James freak.

Danny Kirwen is their third guitarist. Like the others, when he sings it's his guitary ou hear, He's not a great singer, but on his "One Sunny Day," he gets an interesting, effective sound by accompanying his singing lines with his guitar. His is a heavier sound than Mac's usual stuff, more liked Canned Heat, more electric.

His is a neavier sound than Mac's usual stuff, more liked Canned Heat, more electric.
You'll dig Peter Green's slow blues. He keeps them simple and moving, and he knows how to use silence. I mean, he knows when NOT to his note.

silence. I mean, he knows when NOT to hit a note.

"I've Lost My Baby" is a typical Fleetwood Mac song and performance. An easy moving shuffle, like Jimmy Reed's shuffles it just FEELS good. That's because John McVie, the bass player, and Mick Fleetwood, the drummer, are so proud of the blues. They know they don't have to fuck it all up. The important thing is how into it they are.

Anyway, if you were me, you'd own the album. It's reliable. And watch out for their next al-bum too. Last time I saw them live, they were into fifties' R & B, afterwards. "Every one had a and hopefully they'll get some onto their next album. I heard far out versions of "Blue Suede Shoes," "Good Golly Miss Molly," "Twist and Shout," and others.
