BACKGROUND TO TREACHERY

Backed into his corner, UC's top rat lashed out Tuesday morning with a four-page statement that was the final official word on People's Park. It's coming down.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Pat Carey, a park supporter, referring to the statements.

"He must have blown his mind; it's absurd."

It began last Friday morning when UC Chancellor Roger W. Heyns met with Sim van der Ryn, professor of architecture and chairman of Heyns' advisory committee on housing and environment; ASUC Senator Jondavid Bachrach, and Wendy Schlesinger, a member of the People's Park negotiation committee (which was formed this Wednesday).

Heyns gave the committee two and a half days to come up with means "to facilitate the design of a process to get a plan," van der Ryn said.

During the Friday meeting, Heyns offered a compromise proposal which showed his total misunderstanding of People's Park and the community spirit that built it. Despite misgivings about Heyns intentions, the committee held public hearings Saturday and prepared for its final meeting with Heyns Monday morning.

"Monday, the committee suggested that the park be declared an environmental design research field station," said van der Ryn.

"Heyns told us that we weren't giving him enough room to maneuver; he felt backed into a corner," he added.

Heyns' statement stresses over and over that it is the university and only the university that is of concern in the People's Park issue.

"I indicated that although the need for playing fields was important and had to be met, the plan might well be modified to accommodate the interest of other university recreational needs and purposes. I stated the following limits on a modified final design: 1. the functions of the field must be related to university needs, particularly student needs for recreational space, 2. the area must remain under the control of the university, with respect to planning and eventual use, 3. the field must not present police or other control problems, 4. it must not be used for the gathering of large crowds for meeting purposes."

And again:

"The northeast area can then be developed as an outdoor recreational area to include greenery and play equipment for the children of married students."

Campus activist Paul Glusman commented that the children of unmarried students could have the word "illegitimate" stamped on their foreheads so they could be kept out of the park.

And as a finale:

"The university is now prepared to proceed with site development.

"This property (Bowditch, Haste and Dwight) belongs to The Regents of the University of California and will not be available to unauthorized persons.

"Any equipment or other property on these premises not belonging to the University and not removed promptly may be deemed to be abandoned.

"Moreover, persons on these premises without authority from the university shall be subject to the laws prohibiting trespass."

Heyns also accuses the park supporters of "conveniently forgotten fact that the field is indeed the university's."

Heyns conveniently forgot that the university used its power of eminent domain to act in the public interest when it acquired the land in June, 1967, and drove hundreds of students and street people out of fine old houses because the Berkeley police were worried about a drug problem.

He also conveniently forgot that the "precious million dollars" used to pay for those houses is our tax money.

3:00 a.m. Wednesday morning, the university moved against the park.

A STRANGE ALLIANCE

On that first Sunday when the park was started, I got there at about 5:00 o'clock. My children had been there most of the afternoon. The grass was laid under the clump of trees, a flower grotto had been started, it seemed almost a hundred people were digging with picks, shoveling, raking, hoe-ing -- working with a joy and a hunger that hit me and laved me.

If I had been asked the week before to help do this thing I would have thought it couldn't be done. I would have said no, sadly. At 5:00 o'clock on the first Sunday I wept, shamed by my over-thirty defeatism; filled with a singing at this living, sweating, beautiful humanism, grateful that "they" had started it.

My children have no father. At the park, any time any day, there are five or twenty young men being fatherly, brotherly, friendly. One is standing with my 6 yr. old son helping him use a pick. Two more are rough-housing with my 4 yr. old son and he is ecstatic. Another is comforting my 7 yr. old girl who has twisted her ankle.

On a Tuesday morning a swing breaks and before the child has stopped crying there are two or three young men at the swing--repairing, caring. The child begins to smile and asks to help. The young men work with the child and the swing is fixed. The mother -- myself -- stands with tears in her eyes.

On the news one night a commentator spoke of the park as "creating a strange alliance of street people and housewives." It does not seem strange to me. Whatever other labels public-relations people give, we are and remain people. People working and caring together is not strange. It is health.

"They": bearded, long-haired, alien, and slightly frightening; they have started all this for me and my children. Every day since 5:00 o'clock on the first Sunday my children and I have been at the park, working and being. It's not "they" anymore; it's "we."

I am so tired of negation: protests, demonstrations, violence and hate. The creating of this park is a surge of everything that is best in people--joy, caring, growing, sharing, creating, being.

People of the University and the City: Will you form a "strange alliance" with me? I will talk with you, I will negotiate (whatever that means) with you. Let's be people together. Join us.

MEDICS READY TO HELP

For the past several weekends the 15-member, medically neutral Revolutionary Community Medical Corps has been at People's Park giving first aid for small cuts and bruises, but Mike Baxter, co-ordinator of the Corps, fears more serious injuries will occur if attempts are made to destroy People's Park.

"Our job will be to give medical aid to the defenders of the park if the University moves on them," Baxter says.

Every Wednesday classes in first aid--for small wounds, mace, tear gas, and shock therapy--are given at the Free Church by the Medical Corps. Chuck McAllister, a former Navy medic is in charge. The classes are at 7 pm and are open to all interested people.

Chuck is the husband of Sali McAllister who is currently in jail for protesting the draft by throwing red paint on a US flag.

The Medical Corps is still in need of supplies, especially bandages, gas masks and helmets. Those who can contribute, or participate may call 549-0649 or 843-2182.

DESECRATION THURSDAY

PRELUDE TO BATTLE

by Steve Haines

"The pigs are coming, 35 just left the Berkeley police station." And the Battle of People's Park was on.

The call came in to BARB at 3 a.m. Thursday. Ten minutes later, the 100 odd defenders of People's Park were warned and the battle of nerves began.

By 3:30, the whole south campus area was swarming with Berkeley and California Highway Patrol cars. Over 30 CHP cars filled along Collage Ave, headed for the UC parking garage below the tennis courts on Bancroft. This was the same staging area used during the TWLF strike.

Superjoel was screaming about the Fremont cops coming up the expressway. The defenders milled around in small groups, catching up on the latest rumors or trying to spot cop cars.

John Simon and I walked up to the staging area where three Rapid Transit buses line the curb and nearly 200 Berkeley and CHP pigs stood in small groups, checking helmets, gas masks and other gear.

Back at People's Park, other defenders watched several CHP pigs sneak into the three-story white apartment building at Dwight and Hillegass to emerge moments later on the roof.

Around a fire in the fish pond, people stood drinking coffee and

LAST DITCH

The People's Park fish pond became the last ditch as the pigs moved into the park Thursday at dawn.

The deep hole was a center of controversy Sunday afternoon before it was finally designated as a fish pond.

Three last ditchers were in it when the pigs arrived. They chose to be arrested rather than depart. At present their names are unknown.

The problem now is to get the fish pond back. It is hoped there will be no split on this question, discussing what should be done when the pigs attacked.

"Off the motherfuckers."

"Man, it's suicide. There are 500 pigs."

"Fuck it. I didn't work in this park to see them tear it down."

"But not now. There aren't enough of us, man."

"I was just down at the Free Church and there are a lot of people coming here."

"Here they come."

Down Bowditch from the staging area, the pigs came marching five abreast, followed by squad cars and paddy wagons.

At the corner of Bowditch and Haste, the pigs stopped and formed a defense perimeter. Other pigs pulled the same routine at the other three corners of the park.

The "all ready" was given over the police walkie-talkie and a 20-man squad walked into the park where the defenders had gathered around the fish pond.

A warning about trespass and the arrest of violators was read twice over a bull horn. The officer in charge told the people that "personal property" on the park ground would be deemed abandoned. There were so many reporters and photographers around that the people couldn't get very close to the pig on the bull horn.

The pig squad backed off and the defenders melted and split for the sidewalks, which were thought to be safe turf. Three guys remained seated around the dying fire. The pigs waited two minutes then moved in, explained their rights and busted them.

The three refused to give their names to the pigs. Two of them went limp and were dragged across Haste to the waiting paddy wagon.

Using the Sproul Hall routine, the pigs stood the first guy up against the wagon, held a card with "1b" on it up to his chest and took his picture, then pushed him in the wagon.

Numbers "2b" and "3b" remained limp through the routine. They were dragged and pushed into the wagon.

Over the police radio: "Who ever is broadcasting is around S-2." (This was KPFA, which did a fine job of on-the-spot broadcasting throughout the night.)

Things quieted down. The pigs see p 4

THURSDAY 5 PM.—The People's War started shortly after noon at Telegraph and Haste in Berkeley today.

One of the first to be felled was Gentle Waters, BARB circulation manager. He took a .38 calibre through the hip and forearm and was still bleeding as he phoned the facts to BARB at press time.

Ron Alexander, BARB cameraman and ex-Green Beret was also wounded with shotgun pellets in the hand.

"I was running across a parking lot at Channing Way," Gentle Waters told BARB, "and the pigs were chasing us with their guns drawn at hip level.

"Suddenly I heard distinct gunshots. I felt a pain in my arm and felt the blood and guns flowing.

"I saw someone hit square in the chest and go down," he said.

Gentle Waters found shelter along with four wounded brothers in a private residence hall near by. At least two of the others were victims of pig bullets, he said, the other two could have been from shrapnel from baseball grenades.

Later in Herrick Hospital, Gentle Waters found that he had been shot with a .38, and that a slightly different angle would have fatally pierced his colon.

National guard jeeps now patrol the streets seeking out groups of people. They threw tear gas at them and then fire into the scattering crowd with shotguns. At least 5 reports are in of shootings with .38 slugs.

The KPFA mobile truck witnessed this methodical massacre.

Pigs have been firing indiscriminately at people on roof-tops, at fleeing victims, and at people mere feet away.

Berkeley pigs, Alameda County deputies, Highway Patrol, and SF Tactical squad goons are roaming the streets of the south campus area, some armed with Stoner Assault Rifles, the pig version of the M-16.

The war began when a group of 100 pigs stopped a march to People's Park from campus and attacked with tear gas, grenades

AFTER THE FIRE

by Tari

The fire is out and the fences are up in PEOPLES PARK. Early Thurs. morning two hundred armed troops extinguished the fire which has burned there continually for a month; but in so doing they also created the mythology which will destroy them. The acts of retaliation which will follow, will not be vandalism, malicious mischief, or "arson and looting". They will be -- TREASON -- treason against your insanity, your inhumanity, and against the government you have perverted with your power-lust.

Heyns, Reagan, Regents, you'd better have mighty heavy security on that square block of land and every other piece of land you say you "own". Because the MYTH OF PEOPLES PARK is going to destroy your fences, the government which you manipulate, and then you.

You've forgotten one thing--remember the tyranny trip? You talk about it in your history books. We believed those books, and we still believe that when an institution doesn't act in the interest of the people, it must be destroyed.

You've pushed us to the edge of your civilization, here against the sea in Berkeley, then you pushed us into a square block area we called PEOPLES PARK. It was the last thing we had to defend, this square block of sanity amidst all of your madness.

But we let you take it, and we'll let you pretend you own it without a "confrontation" (your word).

We are now homeless, in your civilized world. We have become the great American Gypsies, with only our mythology for a culture.

But while we have let you expose yourselves for what you are, while we have let you make fools of yourself with your weapons, your fences, your official edicts, we have discovered something very important about people.

You see, it is still basic to human nature to prefer a flower to a parking meter, a tree to a steel-reinforced concrete monolith, a patch of green grass to that asphalt jungle of insanity, the parking lot.

That is the weapon we will use to destroy you -- HUMAN NATURE -- the same human nature which you have exploited to fuck up the world.

Because those of us who have walked through PEOPLES PARK were able to say like Paul Krassner--"I have seen the Revolution, and it works."

With the myth you have helped create, old white-haired Dorothy will still bounce into PEOPLES PARK every morning at 6 am with cocoa and doughnuts for the people who have crashed there overnight.

People will still gather around the primordial fire of PEOPLES PARK, tabernacle of the Word, to laugh and sing after a day spent working together.

And the bitter, the disgusted, the sick, and the wretched will still huddle together on that square block of land behind the Med and the Forum, along Telegraph Avenue. And if in passing you should happen to peek at us through the bushes, you will find us still... smiling.

The march to the park was planned as a mother's march from there to Chancellor Heyns' office. Many women with children in strollers appeared at the substitute Sproul Plaza rally.

Dan Siegel, President - elect of the Associated Students, said, "we must show to Heyns and the other bums who run this campus that the Park belongs to the people, and I say to take the park!"

At that the cry went up of "take the park!" and the crowd began to move down Telegraph Avenue.

A line of pigs halted the marchers, estimated at 3000, at Haste and the mayhem began. People scattered and reformed in small groups, some heading for campus. It was like a scene from "The Battle of Algiers," said an eyewitness.

Telegraph Ave, merchants were out in the streets wetting down people's handkerchiefs for tear gas relief.

The pigs were reportedly gassing every intersection every ten minutes.

The general tear gas attack rapidly spread down Telegraph Avenue and through the South Campus area.

Around Derby two men fell victims to Alameda County Sheriffs pigs who fired shotguns at point-blank range into the crowd without provocation.

People were seen moving up Parker street waving a bloodied sheet as a flag.

A barricade was erected at Dwight and Dana by the people, who held off the pigs with water hoses.

A man was shot in the back by a pig shotgun on the Avenue.

Crazed pigs then fired into the crowd immediately and felled at least one more.

Tom Luddy of the Telegraph Repertory Cinema approached some pigs on the street and told them they were shooting his employees.

"That's what you get for fucking around," sneered the hog.

WHAT THEY SAW

BARB received the following eyewitness report by phone:

"I am a student at SF State. My name is Mike. What I saw happened about two blocks up Telegraph Avenue from Derby--near the Chevron Station.

"Alameda County Sheriffs marched down the Avenue with shotguns from Derby street. They stood around for five minutes and the people stayed in front of them.

"The guy nearest to the pigs turned around and started to go away. The cop aimed his shotgun and shot him, it looked like in the ass.

"The guy grabbed his stomach and wiggled around on the ground. He stopped when he reached the curb.

"They fired five more shots at the people; into the crowd. I didn't see anyone else fall; I was busy leaving.

"While this was happening half a dozen ambulances came screaming up the street. Two stopped and picked up two people.

"After the ambulances left the see p. 8

held their line around the park, blocking Haste, Dwight and Bowditch. Small groups gathered at the intersections. Some people tried to engage the pigs in educational dialog.

Jon Read, of the People's Park negotiating committee rapped at some pigs. Berkeley badge #136 stood right in front of Jon, staring into the morning sky.

"Gentlemen, it is well that you know why you are here this morning," said Read.

"Chancellor Heyns has said that we will not form a responsible committee to negotiate on the park.

"This is not true. We have formed a committee. We have showed our good faith, but where is Heyns -- out of town.

"This foolish, destructive confrontation is not what we wanted. The best interests of the community would be worked out if Heyns came back to town, you gentlemen went back to bed and we will take care of the park. "We didn't ask you out here, Heyns asked you out here," Read told the unwavering pigs.

"Why don't you charge them, stud," shouted a frat boy out for the show.

Cops strolled through the forlorn park in the grey dawn. They looked at the flowers, read the bulletin board beneath the bulldozer alarm, sat on the church pew benches, abashedly tugged at the children's swings and glanced shamefacedly at the somber crowd in the shadows beyond the Parks.

The wreckers showed up at 5:35 and began towing cars off the east half of the park area.

A few minutes later, the fence crew showed up with a tractor that had a bull dozer scoop on the front and a post hole digger on the back. It was a mean looking machine and it was set to work at once clearing a four-foot wide path around the park, just inside the sidewalk.

Trees, flowers, shrubs and grass gave way before the tractor. Weeks of work and love were shot to hell in a few minutes.

CHP squad cars circled the park in what had become a routine. Most of the riders were sleeping in the back seat.

Berkeley pig councilman John DeBonis, a People's Park foe, showed up in a Berkeley police pig's outfit. He was being chauffeured around in a CHP car with three pigs as escorts.

He stepped out of the car to watch the bulldozer's progress and was greeted with jeers and cat-calls.

Over on Dwight, a mother and two young children tried to pass through the police line to get to the park. Three brown-shirts stepped in her way and pushed her and the children back.

A blond chick began walking down Bowditch, across the street from the park. Two pigs grabbed her and shoved her back to the line.

At 7, a helicopter appeared over the south campus area. Just like Viet Nam.

The strategic field had been secured. 200 pigs came to arrest three guys for trespass. The first Battle of People's Park had been lost -- if you see it through pig-eyes.

A Thursday noon rally is scheduled for Sproul Plaza and then a march to the battlefield....

WHO COUNTS WITH CITY FATHERS

The Berkeley City Council heard over 100 citizens plead the pros and cons of mechanical traffic control devices in Claremont, seat of wealth and power in our town, for nearly three hours Tuesday night, then dispensed with People's Park in nine minutes.

Most of the people involved in the traffic dispute own a $500,000 house in Claremont, curse the university and make their bread off the students. Therefore, the city council heard each and every concerned citizen speak his piece about whether or not the traffic control device would be retained on Claremont Ave. near the intersection of Ashby Ave.

Mayor Wallace Johnson, who presides at council meetings, went through the audience row-by-row, making sure that the voice of the people was heard on this vital issue.

Then, at two minutes after midnight, when the crowd had dwindled to about 30 concerned citizens, the Mayor decided that "the problem of People's Park" could be discussed.

Craig Murphy, a spokesman for the Berkeley Coalition, was scheduled to speak on the agenda. Six other citizens had turned in cards with the city clerk, requesting an appearance before the council. However, these citizens did not live in Claremont and were treated accordingly.

"Since the Chancellor has stated his policy on People's Park, we ought to review it and then decide if we are going to hear the public on this issue," said Johnson.

The now-famous statement from UC Chancellor Roger Heyns was read. The mayor then commented that he thought "it is inherently a university issue."

Councilman John DeBonis replied, "It is a city issue."

"They are running a sewer line up there and building an outhouse without a plumbing permit," he added.

This convinced the rest of the council that at least Craig Murphy should be given two minutes to speak. The other six were ruled irrelevant.

Murphy rapped about the need for a park in the south campus area and urged the city to buy the land for a park. He was not quite through when Johnson rudely interrupted him to end the two minute session.

DeBonis then asked Murphy some important questions.

"What do you have to say about the 11-year-old child who was running around there last week passing around a marijuana cigarette," he asked.

"I feel that the city has an obligation to enforce the building code and sanitation requirements," said DeBonis, who was off on a trip of his own.

"I warned the regents several weeks ago that this was going to be a confrontation issue," he said.

"Why don't they have to get a permit to build an outhouse, if I have to get one to add a bathroom to my house," added DeBonis, revealing his basic anal fixation.

"I represent the people of Ber-

They Make Desolation And Call It Peace (Tacitus)

"Construction is going on". That's what the pigs call it.

Obscene concrete mixers spew forth their evil grey as the reality of fascism hangs like a pall over the true heart of Berkeley, and that which might be America.

Once more the pig has shit on the dove. This is no mere allegory. A half block behind Telly, the 2400 block of world-famed Telegraph Avenue--the pigs would call it notorious--around a park that was spreading joy in contrast to the rotten drabness of creeping fascism, a wire fence is growing.

Turf that was laid in tenderly by soft tiny hands and gnarled fists--by people of all ages and races is now being ground beneath Mammon's machines.

Some cops are ashamed as somber determined faces view their pitiful acts. To hide their shame from even a small part of the world that will soon condemn it, the battle-dressed pigs this morning were routing traffic around the defoliation of the people's dreams.

After noon today the pigs had even more to be ashamed of. Now the blood of the people is on their hands. This stain can only be eradicated if they withdraw and recant.

Over 3000 strong a hastily-organized meeting resolved to return to the People's Park. The lawless invaders of Berkeley met them with the weapons the fascists use best when they hear the word culture-- gas and bullets.

At latest report five of the people have been shot and wounded.

The memory is still in our minds of great men like Che who died that others might fulfill their dreams.

treachery

weirly place on Dwight, was working through the night. He saw UC workmen and Berkeley pigs place 2" by 2" pine posts with "No Trespassing" signs at 25-foot intervals around the park and parking area.

By 8:30 a.m. all the signs had been ripped off and the posts were burning cheerily in the People's Park fire pit.

At noon, a press conference was held in front of the park bulletin board. A public meeting for 5:00 p.m. was announced.

Women's Liberation Front announced that they were sponsoring a community march from the park to the Chancellor's office at noon Thursday.

By 5:00, over 400 people -- students, straights, and street had gathered to discuss organization and defense.

Art Goldberg led off by bringing people up to date on the many official and unofficial attempts to negotiate with the university.

"If anybody tells you that we didn't want to negotiate or that we wouldn't negotiate, tell them 'bullshit,'" said Goldberg.

"We have been trying to negotiate for four days and we can't get anywhere," he added.

"Cheit, Heyns -- he Cheys -- he doesn't want this park because it's groovy and because people like it," said Stew Albert.

"If the word gets out that we have a groovy park in Berkeley, more people will come here and Cheys doesn't want that--make no mistake," added Albert.

Jon Read, a local landscape architect who has worked in the park, said that the idea of the park may be more important than saving People's Park.

"Chairman Mao had to march 3,000 or 4,000 miles, carrying the idea; even he couldn't always hold on to the land," said Read.

"No matter what happens here, we must carry on the idea of the keley and they are sick and tired of our permitting the noise and the late hours, the stench of marijuana and alcohol," he concluded.

Tom McLaren, one of the new council members, lashed out at his fellow council members for allowing the public debate on the park.

"It's disgraceful the way we waste time on all this democracy bit," said McLaren.

"We don't have to let everyone have their say on every issue," he added. McLaren lives in Claremont, people taking their land and converting it to real social needs," he added.

Ted Pousselt, a long-time Berkeley activist, told the crowd that there had been a lot of talk about the leaderless aspects of the park.

"I just want to acknowledge my leader -- that redwood tree over there," he said. (This tree looms large in Heyns' mind too. In his statement, he says, "this plan would save the large redwood, a value learned from previous university experience." Perhaps there is some hope yet for the educational system.)

"And if this is a conspiracy, it is a conspiracy to protect trees and grass," Pousselt continued.

"I think we should follow the example of Jerry Rubin and ask for equal prosecution under the law if they try and hang a conspiracy rap on someone," he added.

A negotiating committee was nominated and, after some discussion, it was decided that the 11 people nominated would act as the committee to represent the park in press contacts and in negotiations -- if there are any.

The committee includes Mike Delacour, Art Goldberg, John Simon, Jon Read, Wendy Schlesinger, Bill Miller, Jackie Rosenberg, Doug Maisel, Tom Signon, Doug Boyn and Peter Zarbour.

Several people rapped about the need for publicity, door-to-door efforts to get support and contact with church and civic groups in Berkeley.

A list of 84 people was set up so that a 24-hour, round the clock command station could be set up in the park. The command station will always be manned by two people with a telephone for the next week or until the crisis passes.

By mid-night, the publicity committee was circulating a "defend the park" handbill.

At 2:00 a.m. Thursday morning, the telephone tree alarm system had been activated. The People's Militia gathered in the park. Reliable rumors had the pigs moving in at 3:00 a.m. -- as they had the night before -- only this time it was to put up the fence. Others said 6 a.m.

As the cat said at the meeting: "No fucking fence. No fucking fence. Hitler told the Jews that the fences around the concentration camps were only temporary. No fucking fence."

3:00 a.m. was coming up fast. The Battle of People's Park may be on as this is being edited. (Editor's Note: It is.)

ON WHO RAISED THE GUN

by Harry Shiva

UC Chancellor Heyns, in his May 13 statement on People's Park, says that "most people are worried about a confrontation, although some people are worried that there might not be one," and that "there is no serious shortage of people who would like nothing better than to have us all in a turmoil all summer."

He's quite right. But the people who want the confrontation and the turmoil are the people who run this town, and the people who don't are the people building the park.

Every step toward a confrontation has been taken by the people who run the town. It was City Councilman Birchy DeBonis who wrote the UC Regents and asked them to do something about getting the creeps and Commies off the land.

It is the Berkeley Gazette, and its proto-fascist editor Mike Culbert, who day after day have been saying that "the controversy over the 'People's Park'... is in fact a 'confrontation issue'"; that it is an "engineered, contrived, phony, dishonest, agit-prop event" designed in Havana or Peking; that "the good-hearted folks suckered into building the 'people's park' have no idea they are probably being used, once again, for Confrontation Issue No. 5314."

It is Heyns who is going to put up a fence and tear down the park, and who issued the "stern warning" that "persons on these premises without authority from the University shall be subject to the laws prohibiting trespass."

Heyns' statement implies that the park doesn't relate to "student needs for recreational space," which is bullshit; there are more students in the park at any given moment than there in the University's Underhill Field, half a block away.

It implies that people smoke dope and drink wine and sleep overnight and commit other heinous crimes in the park; just like they do in every other public place in Ber-

BORN EARLY MORN

In the dawn as one vision was dying another was born, Al Silbowitz, KPFA station manager told BARB Thursday morning.

He was referring to the spontaneous joint coverage of the Heyns atrocity against the People's Park from 2 to 6 AM by all the underground stations in the Bay Area as well as some of the straight press.

The stations included: KPFA, KFSAN, KFOP, KSJS, KALX, other assorted frequencies cutting in and out, and the audio part of TV Channel 5. Also on the air was someone monitoring police calls, and phoned reports from BARB, Rolling Stone, The Free Church, and other local switchboards.

"It just happened" Silbowitz said. "We had nothing pre-arranged. I hope the FCC isn't too freaked out."

UC (BERK) VILLAGE STENCH

"It stinks so badly that my eyes burn when I come home," UC student Thomas Jordan told the Berkeley city council Tuesday night.

Jordan and his wife, along with 1,000 other families living in UC's Albany Village, were protesting the foul stench that has settled over their housing project for the last three months.

"The disgusting odor is so strong that you can even smell it when we are cooking," said Jordan.

The council looked on in polite sympathy as Jordan wove his tale of woe before them.

The trouble, it seems, can be traced to one of two sources. First is the Berkeley dump, which is a means of filling in a part of the Bay with garbage and trash. To keep the Bay out of the dump, a retaining wall was built and excess water is pumped back into the Bay. The stagnate pond around the dump is one source of the stench.

Second, five or six industrial firms in East Berkeley are dumping their wastes into the Gilman Avenue storm sewer discharge into the Bay. The "industrial contaminants" are also a source of the big stink.

Councilman John DeBonis criticized City Manager William Hanley for allowing the contractor who is responsible for the land fill and dump operation for allowing this to happen.

Hanley, whose voice reminds you of well-oiled machinery, claimed that the contractor was not at fault and that the Gilman Avenue storm sewer was the only source of trouble.

Meanwhile, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan stood silently, while the council went on to debate the possible sources of the big stink and whether or not something was being done or could be done.

The matter was "resolved" when City Manager Hanley promised to report back to the council with "some firm idea of when each of the five or six firms can be expected to begin to take corrective action to eliminate the source of these odors, which is a highly complex problem, since there are many possible sources within each firm that have to be traced."

During this time, the polluted water will continue to stagnate in the Berkeley dump, the six companies will continue to dump industrial wastes into the storm sewer and Tom Jordan's eyes will continue to burn, baby, burn.

ON WHO DUNNIT

keley; tough shit.

It shows the Berkeley Establishment's fear that the park will become a focus for political organizing, which is what REALLY scares them about the park. And it says that the park builders won't negotiate with the University about "University control," and about "the planning and eventual use" of the park.

Heyns, the Gazette, and the other members of the Establishment who've opened their mouths about the park have all taken the line that the "masterminds" behind the park don't want a park, they want an excuse for a riot; and that therefore no one is willing to negotiate with the University. This is just not true.

No one I've talked to in the park, not the most stone revolutionary, has been in the least unwilling to negotiate with the University, particularly about leasing the land for, say, twenty years at a dollar a year.

One dude put it: "They've got these strange money-property rituals in their culture, and we wouldn't want to deny them their culture." Another: "If the white man relates to money, we'll give him money." Another: "I think we ought to offer them $24 worth of trinkets and a case of whiskey for it."

WHY THE WOMEN ARE REVOLTING

BY Gumbo

In last week's BARB an anonymous but obviously male chauvinist "letter to the editor" writer puts down the Woman's Liberation speaker at the Free Huey Rally in San Francisco. He couldn't by the way, remember the name of the speaker (while he did remember the name of a male speaker) but then, all these women look alike anyway.

The speaker, what's her name, asserted the letter writing paragon of male virtue, is probably to be forgiven because she's only a woman who hasn't had much experience in the masculine world of politics, but she made the cardinal mistake of putting the oppression of black people and their fight to survive.

There's no such thing as the right to bear arms, in a revolution it's your duty, regardless of your sex. The thing is that capitalism has fucked up women's minds (and men's, too, for that matter) to the extent that "nice" women are supposed to shriek at the sight of a gun and be totally terrified of it. And for women to take karate to learn to defend themselves from the pigs...

It's definitely the case that women have a whole ideological history to struggle against in order to become skilled revolutionaries. For example, all forms of fighting have capitalist-traditionally been boy's play, and most women have never even seen a fight up close, much less participated in one.

I don't think most women could ever become as good fighters as men, purely for size and strength reasons, but it is important that we overcome our fear of fighting and learn to defend ourselves adequately and by any means necessary.

Women's liberation isn't on a civil rights trip, and we don't need a man to project his confusion about that on us. Women's liberation isn't fighting for equality, or equal rights under capitalism, or any of that shit. We don't want to take over men's jobs in the corporation, we don't want to become bomber pilots and napalm the liberation forces of Vietnam, and we aren't out to emasculate men by forcing them to sit at home in frilly aprons and masturbate.

Women are fighting for their reality as human beings, for their psychic survival. We are fully aware of the fact that black people are fighting for their survival, and it's obviously true that the pigs aren't vamping on women the way they are on the blacks. Black people are waging a war against genocide.

But let's set things straight. Capitalist ideology and practice puts women in an oppressed, slave situation, although we are not colonial subjects. Women are oppressed by capitalism in similar ways to black people -- most concretely job exploitation and educational discrimination -- but more importantly, our minds have been fucked over for 2000 years to accept our position and like it. The American housewife's life is made tolerable by the ruling class throwing tidbits of saranwrapped plasticized timesavers her way.

Ironically, I only really became conscious of the totality of the woman's liberation struggle in a conversation I had with Eldridge. He asked me once if I would kill for women's liberation, and I replied that I thought there were probably more important fronts in the struggle where killing would be necessary.

His response to that was crucial for all struggles: "When you are fighting for your own liberation you fight to the death on all fronts."

The struggle for our liberation as women cannot be won in this oppressive system -- as a result we are revolutionaries.

As women we are getting our shit together and overcoming the alienation that the system foists on us; as revolutionaries we are learning and teaching those skills necessary for our survival.

We don't hate men (we dig them), but when men continue to oppress us after they have become conscious of what they are doing then they are part of the enemy. We will fight against our oppressors, regardless of their class, race or sex. We are part of the solution, and we will ally with everyone who wants to overthrow this rotten system.

Power to the people.

BERKELEY 3

Coak's old sweet song turns sour

Uncle Sam says he wants Paul Glusman. You'd think he'd now better.

Glusman is one of the Berkeley Three. Along with Jack Bloom and Pete Camejo, he has been indicted on conspiracy charges for having spoken at a Sproul steps rally prior to the sit-in in Moses Hall.

Conspiracy is the same tiresome charge that Alameda County's hack DA Frank Coakley tried to pin on the Oakland Seven. It didn't work then, but old Frank doesn't give up when it comes to radicals. He's hoping to nail Glusman, Bloom and Camejo for a three year jail term, not because of what they did in relation to Moses Hall, but because of who they are.

Camejo is a YSA activist, Bloom is a leading figure in the ISC. Glusman is a well-known independent new-left activist, and a long-time pain in the ass to the university administration. He has been a major figure in the "People's Park" movement.

All three spoke on Sproul steps several hours before the Moses Hall sit in, and Camejo chaired a meeting, it is said, inside of Moses Hall. Anyone who knows anything about left politics will readily recognize that a conspiracy between these three could never be.

YSA and ISC are two of the seemingly endless groups in the Trotskyite spectrum, and are constantly at each other's throats over fine points of Marxism, as last week's debate between Camejo and ISC's Ernie Haberkern showed so well. Glusman views both groups' views with detached amusement, looking at things in an entirely different way.

Nevertheless, Frank Coakley sees a conspiracy, although he knows speech-making alone is not enough to convict anyone on a conspiracy charge. At least Lowell Jensen has learned. The prosecutor of the Oakland Seven has refused to prosecute the Berkeley Three, but Coakley has another flunky ready and waiting. The trial starts on May 26, at the Alameda County Courthouse, which after all these trials, is threatening to become an annex of the Med.

Tiresome as it may seem, battling these conspiracy indictments is still important. One more K.O. by a jury, and Coakley might get the point. If the Berkeley Three are convicted however, you might be next.

Meanwhile, Paul Glusman's friends and neighbors on his local draft board have ordered him to

MAYOR'S GARDEN DREAM

People's Gardens, Si, People's Park, No.

That's the gist of Berkeley Mayor Wallace Johnson's official statement to the public Tuesday. "What Berkeley needs is a dream, not a nightmare," said Johnson.

He blasted the "incredible pre-emptuousness" of the Telegraph Avenue street people for threatening to destroy $5 million worth of University property if People's Park is seized.

"Now is the time for the sincere people of Berkeley to step forward. If you are the owner of a vacant lot in a residential district of the city you can make known to the neighbors that your land is available for the growing season," said Johnson.

"By asking permission of the land owner the would-be gardener is showing respect for 'life, liberty, property.' This is the fundamental trio of human values defined by the founders of this nation."

Shame on us who thought it was "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" and were pursuing our happiness up at People's Park. We should have asked our mayor.

"What Berkeley needs is 'Harmony Gardens,' not ideologically involved projects which flut the good things in our culture. Let us have land, beauty and food. Let us do it with flowers and vegetables."

You do it with flowers and vegetables, Mayor, Baby; I'll do it with my old lady.

HOW UC COULD HOLD IT

Legally there is little that can be done to halt Cheit, Heyns, and their bulldozers from moving on the park, Berkeley attorney Larry Duga feels.

"The chances of getting a court injunction to stop the University are minimal," he told BARB Wednesday after learning UC had posted "No Trespass" signs early that morning.

"It's difficult to get courts to move against property rights, even to head off possible physical violence," Duga noted.

"I think the University is over-reacting," he continued. "It can protect itself very simply from legally losing the right to that property."

All that UC has to do to retain title to the land is to fence it off ONE day each year, Duga said. He pointed out this legal maneuver is used by Columbia University every year to retain its right to a publicly used street which goes through the middle of the campus. "That approach would be much simpler for UC than its absurd present stand," Duga said.

Duga personally feels that since the University doesn't have any definite plans for the land for a number of years its interim use as a park is an excellent idea.

COME N' SEE

Watch Berkeley's Paul Glusman enlist in Uncle Sam's "new action army" this Monday at 7:30 a.m. at the Oakland Induction Center.

Glusman, one of the Berkeley Three (see story this page) has been called for a pre-induction physical, but figures he will beat the army to the punch.

He hopes to serve in the front lines in Vietnam, or in the Army Security Agency. Secretly, he yearns for a Green Beret. Can a Berkeley radical find happiness in the U.S. Army? Come down Monday morning and find out.

show up for a pre-induction physical next Monday, May 19, at 7:30 a.m. at the good old Oakland Induction Center. (Glusman was kicked out of school following the Moses Hall sit-in.)

Paul says that he might enlist. He feels insulted that the army is trying to take him without allowing him to show his patriotism by volunteering.

Glusman says he is rooting for the NLF, and feels the best thing he could do towards that end is to go to Vietnam and serve in the American front lines. He might settle for guarding a big US airbase, however, or work in the army security agency.

If turned down for both those slots, he hopes to be accepted into the Special Forces so he can wear the green beret like his hero, John Wayne. "This new action army sounds out of sight," Glusman enthused in People's Park this week.

MUIR BEACH BUSTS

The Marin County Sheriff's Department, clutching their prurient interests in one hand and their badges in the other, swooped down on Muir Beach last Saturday and scored with a couple busts.

Cheryl Hatch and Don Nelson were netted and charged with disturbing the peace, though overground media accounts implied it should have been disturbing the PIECE.

According to Cheryl and Don, a complaint was filed by an uptight beach resident who had spotted the pair with his binoculars while they were sunbathing on a hilltop overlooking the sea.

Cheryl and Don both maintain that they were not engaged in any physical contact. "I would have had to get up and move five feet just to touch her," said Don.

In court Monday, attorney LaRue Grim's argument that nudity is not prohibited by law was rejected by the bench. Grim requested and obtained a July jury trial.

In the past several weeks more than a dozen people have been busted at Muir Beach by morality vigilantes of the Sheriff's Dept. It's the kind of heat that doesn't make for much of a tan.

Attorney Grim is interested in rapping with any and all who have been busted for nudity at Muir. He's in San Francisco at YU 2-6050.

In the meantime, sunfun freaks might make it further down the coast where the weather is still warm but not quite as sticky.

LUMBER VANDALS ALL OVER

by Keith Lampe

The Marin County Board of Supervisors will decide Tuesday (May 20) whether to ban all logging (except the Righetti rip-off) on the Bolinas Ridge.

If you (and a lot of other people) go to the meeting of the board and express your views, there's a better chance they'll decide in favor of the ban.

The meeting will be held in the Civic Center on the edge of San Rafael. Phone the county switchboard (479-1100), ask for the office of the board of supervisors, then ask the office what time of day the logging discussion will occur on the agenda. Flood that switchboard.

Bunch of people held a march last Sunday to protest the continuing redwood rip-off on the Righetti ranch. They started at the ranch and walked about five miles down into Bolinas. Lots of kids and dogs. Some music. No arrests and only light police harassment.

The U.S. Forest and Range Experimental Station in Berkeley has studied erosion in the south fork area of the Eel River—erosion caused almost entirely by timber rip-offs. Their figure: 8950 tons per square mile per year. That's six pounds per square yard per year. All of it topsoil, all of it irreplaceable. The soil-situation on the Bolinas Ridge is very similar to the Eel River area.

Turns out the Sierra Club officially is doing nothing about the Bolinas rip-off—but a couple individuals from the club tried to get onto the ranch May 8 to check on the "practices" being used by the loggers.

Even though they had permission from the sheriff's office and county planning department and even though they had an independent consulting forester with them, the loggers wouldn't let them view the operation.

One logger said, "We can't let you on the property because we've had too much vandalism."

BARB has received a report that the same logging outfit—Walker Lumber Co. of Coos Bay, Oregon—is also ripping in San Mateo and Sonoma counties. Anybody with info please get in touch.

Michael McClure's newest play, "The Cherub," will be performed for the first time anywhere by the Magic Theater at the Mandrake, 1048 University Ave., on Friday, May 16, at 8 p.m.

Poet, playwright and lecturer, McClure is primarily known for his controversial play, "The Beard," which was performed in San Francisco two years ago.

McClure's latest effort is a departure from the style of "The Beard." According to McClure, "The Cherub" is the first in a series of "meat fantasies and protein dramas."

Visually, the play is a series of gargoyle cartoons. To the ear, it is a gross concert. Aesthetically, McClure sees his play as expanding the principles of "lung philosophy."

According to Magic Theater director John Lion, "The Cherub" is unlike anything I have ever seen before.

"It is slightly reminiscent of Jarry's 'Ubu Roi,' only without the scatological content," Lion told BARB in a leisurely rap.

"I see the play as a synesthetic framed picture in which actors, music, lighting and even the inanimate objects on stage are completely interchangeable in terms of the poet's main theme," said Lion.

According to Lion, the play's main theme is expressed in a line from the play that states, "all nature is coming to life and I simply have to sing about it."

The Magic Theater's performance of "The Cherub" will be preceded by a concert by the Berkeley Improvisation Ensemble under the direction of Robert Strizich. The group will play a work entitled "Meat Poem," which involves the musical interpretation of a series of McClure's poems.

Performances will be held on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from May 16 to June 1. Thereafter, it will be performed Friday and Saturday nights until July 1.

Admission is $1. Seating is not reserved. No minors are allowed.

VIRGIN AUTO OFFERING

by Keith Lampe

A (nearly) virgin Rambler will be sacrificed to the gods during the Ecology Action Environmental Fair next Saturday (May 24).

The fair starts at 11 a.m. in Provo Park (Berkeley Civic Center Plaza) and will continue till about 6 p.m.

Though a '58 model, the Rambler has a virgin transmission and otherwise is in mostly ravishing condition. It will be a real sacrifice for its owner, who wants to make a very serious point about air pollution. From now on, I guess, he'll hitchhike or ride buses.

Sometime after 1 p.m., when the last drop of gas passes through its idling engine, the Rambler will be turned into a sculpture (in the style of a group happening)—and later presented to the non-directors of People's Park for use as a monument there.

At about 4 p.m., ecology activists will stage a ceremonial credit card turn-in to dramatize their renunciation of the economic-growth fetish and the rampant consumption which are destroying our life-support system. Bring your cards and join them.

Members of the group also are trying to make arrangements with a laboratory so that samples of mothers' milk can be taken during the fair and later analyzed for DDT content. (Mothers' milk has been reported to contain toxic amounts of DDT.) Anybody who can help with the lab arrangements should phone 452-3673.

Between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. music will be provided by two new groups — The Andrew Hallidie and Mount Rushmore. The Migrant Theater will present a puppet show hourly all day.

The fair will emphasize the fact that "economic expediency must give way to ecological reality."

It will deal with pesticides, population, pollution, bay-fill and other issues. It's euphemistic to say we are polluting our air and bodies; we are — dig — destroying them.

Among groups participating in the fair are: Active Conservation Tactics; Community Projects Office; Northern California Committee for Environmental Information; People Against Pollution; Planned Parenthood; Save the Bay; Technocracy, Inc.; War Resisters League and Women for Peace.

Environmental fairs will also occur May 22-23 at SF State (on the Commons) and May 28-29 at San Jose State (near the 7th Street entrance). Call Dave Halprin at 333-4495 for info about the SF State one.

NOT SO POWER HUNGRY

Mills College students got a taste of student power a while back. They don't seem too eager for a second bite.

Nine demands were granted when the B.S.U. and their supporters surrounded the college president in his office and called the first public faculty meeting in Mills history. Since then some strange things have happened at the all-somen's school.

First, College President Robert Wert changed some of the demands all by himself. He then presented his version of them to a closed meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Then he sent out a letter to all "parents, alumnae, and friends of Mills" to "explain" the demonstration and demands. Students charge him with several falsehoods in this letter.

Some students feel there is a "purge" of radical and liberal faculty. Other faculty members are reportedly quitting in disgust.

A recent poll shows most students want the school to become co-educational. Recently Wert put it on the line. He said he'd prefer a "respectable demise" (for the college, that is) to going co-ed.

"It's amazing how quickly he's lost the respect of the students," says one student. "I think he should be fired," says another. "But if we forced Wert out," says one, "we'd probably get someone just as bad."

There are only two political

CHURCH BURNS; ARSON THEORY

A church in the Santa Cruz mountains which served as a well-known refuge and shelter for travelers was burned down last Monday.

"We believe the fire was deliberately set," Reverend Patrick Thompson of the Church of Tomorrow told BARB. "We lost everything, the building was completely destroyed."

"Even the fire marshal thought it was arson," Rev. Thompson said. But he noted that the fire department wasn't too concerned in fighting the early morning blaze. He also mentioned some neighboring residents who were overheard to say, "I hope it all burns, good riddance."

"It was a bad trip all the way around," the long-haired young Reverend said. "When the cops came they checked all ID's and arrested two of our members as runaways."

Rev. Thompson said one of those arrested was an AWOL who had just been rescued from the blaze and had second and third degree burns over his body. "They didn't give him proper medication," the Reverend charged.

Besides losing all their belongings the church members also lost a dog who was trapped inside.

The church had previously been hassled by uptights in the area for "harbouring hippie types."

The Church of Tomorrow has been in existence since 1964 when it was licensed by the state of California, Rev. Thompson explained. The basic tenet of the Church is that all people are free to do their own thing. He said members of the Church greet all with a smile, even their enemies.

How do they feel now that their smiles have been answered with fire? "We're not giving up," Rev. Thompson said with a smile. "We'll start rebuilding from scratch right away."

DESIRE

"Desire Caught By the Tail", Pablo Picasso's only play, was premiered by Co-Operative Theatre Action at Berkeley's Cafe La Front last Friday, Saturday and Sunday to packed houses.

The anticipated bust of the controversial play never came off, and performances are scheduled for tonight (Friday) and tomorrow.

This week's performance will be held at Finnish Brotherhood Hall, 1970 Chestnut, Berkeley, as part of a benefit for KPFA.

The benefit will include the play and a rock concert/dance. Tonight, "Womb", Mother Bear and Last Mile will play. Tomorrow, it's Sons of Champlin, Lazarus, and Last Mile.

Tickets for both the play and the dance are $5 a head. For the dance only, $2. The play starts at 8:30 p.m. both nights.

Light show for the play and the dance is by Optic Illusion, one of the best around.

You can get tickets at the ASUC Box Office or by calling 848-0485.

organizations on the Mills campus. They are the B.S.U. and the Third World Liberation Front. Yet Blacks and Third World people constitute only a minuscule portion of the student body. The only white political group dissolved after the demands were met.

Many students agree that the college will achieve its "respectable demise" unless something is done. "It has to learn how to solve current problems," says one. Their solution is to adopt a "wait and see attitude."

They deplore the autocracy of Wert's administration as he consolidates his empire. You can't accuse Mills students of being power hungry. -- R.H.

HEYNS' DIRTY WORK ON TA'S

The bare-fanged face of the Multiversity is again showing from beneath academic robes.

In this case the administration is purging several Teaching Assistants who had been leaders in the fight against official racism. Dale Gronemeier, Vice President of Local 1570 of the American Federation of Teachers, is being given the axe.

Last year Gronemeier prepared a report known as the Union White Paper of Racial Discrimination in Employment, citing the U for a miserable minority hiring record. Although Earl Cheit and others in the apparatus claimed that they couldn't possibly do better, Gronemeier as part of a six-union committee pushed through a plan which raised the rate of minority employment from 18% to 58%.

Now Gronemeier has been informed that he will not be rehired this June. This is the polite way the University has of saying "you're fired."

On May 2, Dale filed a grievance with his department chairman, Dr. Leonard Nathan of the Dept. of Rhetoric. Nathan's response was straight out of 1984.

"I do not know what procedures are open to you," he wrote. "Since, in my opinion, you have no grievance, I have no further suggestion to make."

On May 3rd or 4th the department's union grievance files were stolen off of Dale's desk. He filed a complaint with the police and requested of Dr. Nathan that he be allowed to copy the originals which were in the Chairman's files.

The secretary relayed the message back that Dr. Nathan "would have to think about it." Gronemeier wrote to Nathan formally requesting the copies and offering to pay for them.

Back came a letter one sentence long. "...since you have chosen to put yourself in the position of an adversary, further correspondence between us concerning your so-called grievances appears unwarranted."

This can be translated to say, "Fuck you and your union contract too!"

Two others in the Rhetoric Department, all AFT members, have received this treatment, too. Gronemeier says that "several of my friends are afraid to be openly associated with me for fear they too will be subjected to attack. I guess this is how it was during the McCarthyism of the 1950's."

On Wednesday, May 14, a rally was held to discuss the case and march to Nathan's office to demand an answer. Nathan wasn't in and the march was not held. The leaflet asked the question, "Is Hayakawa running the rhetoric department?"

Later in the afternoon Nathan was confronted by Gronemeier, who read him a list of eleven questions. To each one Nathan replied: "Everything I have to say is in the correspondence on the matter," which was stolen.

Elsewhere in the crackdown is the case of Prof. Yank, who was recommended by Chancellor Heyns to be fired specifically for his strike activities. Yank, who is active with SDS, was the subject of a letter to the Academic Senate from the Iron Chancellor.

The letter cited 1) Yank's alleged participation in a serpentine picket line in Barrows Hall, 2) his alleged non-conducting of classes during the strike, 3) his alleged conducting of classes at different times and places than scheduled, and 4) his alleged use of unauthorized sound equipment during an unauthorized rally.

Once again, liberal Chancellor Heyns is pulling the famous trick of foiling the forces of oppression by doing their job for them. He probably does not remember Churchill's adage about an appeaser being one who "feeds a crocodile in the hopes that it will eat him last."

BLACKS TO TRY KILLERS

A Black Ribbon Grand Jury representing the black community of San Francisco will sit in judgment of the case of the killing of Joey Linthcome.

Black Panthers, Willie Brown, and Rev. Cecil Williams will sit along with many others to hear the testimony this Sunday, May 17 at the Burnett Grammar School in Hunters Point.

"There will be testimony from witnesses to the killing of Alvert Joe Linthcome," reads the announcement of the Black Inquest of Death, "and the things that happened because they told the truth."

Mrs. George Baskett will be a special guest.

Father Otis Hyde will preside over the inquest, which will take place at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at 1551 Newcomb Ave. It is being conducted under the sponsorship of the Bayview-Hunters Point Co-ordinating Council.

E. A. Dawley, head of the Council, commented that "It is hoped that the Black Inquest of Death in Hunters Point will have at least the same effect as the Black Tribunal held in Detroit after three white police who had killed three black men in the Algiers Motel had the charges against them dropped."

"In that case after the black community, some 6000 strong, expressed incredulity with the fiction of no responsibility and justifiability, the three policemen were rearrested and tried."

He went on to note that the Detroit trials were resuming this week in the town of Mason, Michigan, where they were moved because of "black indignation."

The autopsy report and the coroner's jury transcript will be closely examined at the inquest, Dawley said.

PORTABLE POT GIFT TO FACULTY

Merritt College's Faculty Senate was locked in a room for over four hours a few weeks back. Some asked to leave "in the name of human decency" so they could go to the toilet. Angry students kept up the pressure by refusing the call.

Now a well-wisher has donated a portable chemical toilet to the Faculty Senate, saying, "Security is more than a blanket." No reference to the quality of debate in the Senate was included.

SLAIN MAN'S FAMILY

PIGS TO ROAST FOR MALCOLM X

Malcolm X's birthday will be commemorated by the Black Panthers with several pig roasts in Oakland Sunday.

"He was the one force who opened the eyes of 22 million blacks in America to the political truth of oppression by their so called government," Big Man, editor of The Black Panther paper said.

"It was Malcolm who have a new definition of politics to the people and exposed some of the so called Black liberation leaders for the opportunists and bootlickers they were.

"It was Malcolm who traveled the African continent spreading truth and destroying the myths about American blacks. Malcolm told it like it is.

"It was Malcolm who challenged the manhood of black American by telling them they better stop singing and start to swing," the Panther editor further stated.

Big Man said it was the wisdom, strength and love of mankind of Malcolm which was the motivating force for the founding of the Black Panther Party. "His spirit is manifested in Huey, Bobby Seale, and Eldridge Cleaver," he said.

The commemoration, which will be held at Bobby Hutton Memorial Park Sunday will start at noon. Black Panther Party leaders will be there to rap with the people. A similar celebration will be held Sunday at Roberts' Park in East Oakland.

TO PAY OR NOT TO PAY

A teach-in by seminary students is taking place at Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley as BARB goes to press Thursday.

Most seminaries in Berkeley have suspended classes for the afternoon long session dealing with the Black Manifesto. The manifesto, authored by the Detroit based National Black Economic Development Conference asks for reparation by white churches to pay for the centuries of slavery blacks were subjected to in this country.

Expected speakers at the meeting among others will be three black Bay Area ministers: Rev. Hannibal Williams of the Ecumenical House at SF State, Rev. Cecil Williams from Glide Memorial Church, and Rev. Hosea Williams, director of the Center for Urban Black Studies.

AS EXPECTED-- O'BRIEN GETS TAP; BLACKS GET A CRUMB

by Kirby Higbe

They threw their crumb to the blacks last Monday, when the Police Commission offered Michael O'Brien from the force.

The decision surprised nobody, least of all Jake Ehrlich and Michael O'Brien. Rumors had been going around for over a week, and the rumors were absolutely true.

The Commissioners voted unanimously, they said, to dismiss O'Brien for "unofficer-like conduct." More specifically, brandishing a pistol, calling people names, and failing to identify himself as a policeman.

Ehrlich ranted the next day about how the decision was a political one, and he was absolutely right. Can you see the Police Commission firing a cop just for calling blacks "niggers" and forgetting to let people know he was a bona-fide pig?

O'Brien was fired because he killed George Baskett. Mayor Alioto knows that he has to give the blacks something. He gave them O'Brien's slapped wrist.

There is no doubt that Dr. Washington Garner, the black member of the Police Commission would have voted for O'Brien's dismissal in any case. But would he have Elmo Ferrarri and Richard Miller? Not unless Uncle Joe urged them to.

Not that one should thank Alioto. He is just playing politics. He has already sold out to the Police Department in his passion to run for Governor. Now he hands the black community a crumb.

If you doubt this is true, listen to what happened just before Commission president Ferrarri read the decision on the O'Brien case.

John L. Brennan, a young lawyer representing the family of Alvert Joe Linthcome, the black youth who was killed by a white policeman in the Hunter's Point, soon after O'Brien was acquitted of manslaughter, asked to speak to the Commission. Ferrarri seemed annoyed, but since the straight press was asking why Brennan was being denied a chance to speak, he reluctantly granted him a few minutes.

Brennan said he was having difficulty getting any of the police reports about the shooting. He said Chief Cahill claimed they were "confidential." Brennan said that he needed the police reports inasmuch as the Coroner's jury which acquitted Roberts, was a "complete whitewash."

"We'll leave that in the good hands of Chief Cahill," Ferrarri said quickly. "I'm sure he'll give you whatever he feels you ought to have."

Cahill got up from his desk just in front of the Commissioners bench to protest. Ferrarri soothed him with some softly spoken words.

"We'll leave it in the good hands of Chief Cahill?" Brennan asked with a cynical smile. Ferrarri nodded.

Afterwards Brennan said: "I knew it was a waste of time to come over here. I used to be a probation officer. I know how they run things down here. I just wanted to show them that I'll be around until that damage suit against the city for Linthcome's death is settled."

Brennan is no idealist. He's a personal injury lawyer with offices on Montgomery and California Sts. But he was friends with the Linthcome family. He ought to take the case. Now some of his law n' order friends won't talk to him, and some of his law n' order clients have dropped him.

Things are getting tough, even for an Irish lawyer from the University of San Francisco Law School, the place if you want to get away from legal circles in San Francisco. People have to choose their own side. Either they are part of the problem or part of the solution.

"If I was doing a rapist," observed Brennan, "one would cast a stone at me. Not even Jake Ehrlich, but Bobby Seale."

At his Tuesday press conference, Jake whined that he was "irritated by the constant divisiveness among our citizens." As if he has made great contributions to racial harmony in the recent past. Poor Jake. I hope he doesn't get more irritated this summer when an occasional crumb won't go far enough.

THE PAY-OFF

Millionaire Louis Lurie has invited the entire Tactical Squad to a feast at his Fairmont Hotel this Monday night.

Outside the SF Peace and Freedom Party will picket.

"The city's wealthiest people and their political front men are organizing this dinner," says a PFP leaflet.

The leaflet credits: "Louis Lurie, millionaire financier, who bailed O'Brien out of jail, George Gillin, banker, Tim Richardson (ex-cop) and James Rourke, teamster gangsters with a long history of selling out rank and file Bay Area teamsters."

Inside the honored guest will be Jake Ehrlich, the little old lawyer who race-baited the jury for three days straight to secure O'Brien's release.

"Our oppressors are celebrating," says the leaflet. "We cannot sit by and witness congratulations to San Francisco's own gestapo and its legal mouth-piece."

Festivities will begin at 7:30pm.

HOW TO PONDER

by G.K.

VIENNA, May 10 -- The phenomenon of the London Times "Banking Correspondent" Anthony Thomas, doing a "lead article" on the "rush to D-Marks" without understanding one word of what he said is about to be demonstrated.

What is even more interesting is that he uses terms reported TWO WEEKS ago in the BARB (by Sgt. Pepper -- by the way, where is he?). (Underground--ed.)

What Thomas misses is the Marxist point-of-view that profit destroys the profit system, a self-defeating factor first pointed out by Karl Marx in 1848.

Cause of the current money-crisis is the gaining of 8% or

MORE on your money INSTANTLY when West Germany INCREASES ("revalues") its money... and, man, the whole WORLD is sending their cash to Bonn!

The Times calls it a "Tidal wave" and "in Frankfurt the market was in such a shocked state that transactions were often nearly impossible."

This drive for quick profits collapses governments. Central banks (in Germany, England, France, USA) were "forced," as in Germany, "to intervene to support the British Pound, the Dutch Guilder, the French Franc, the Swedish Kröner, the Italian Lira, and the Belgian Franc."

Isn't this delicious? While the pillars of society scream out for "law and order," they are collapsing their governments much faster than Jerry Rubin or the street people.

Even the good old USA fucks up. The Times man reports, with awe, that "the confusion was highlighted by the N.Y. Federal Reserve supplying D-Marks at a cheaper price than the German banks."

"As a result, some foreign exchange dealers made a large profit yesterday by simply taking advantage of this difference in rates."

It is so much out of control, he reports, that Bundesbank's attempt to stem the flow of cash into Germany "proved self-defeating."

The bank lowered its interest on loans but that meant the "operators were able to borrow Eurodollars at an artificially low rate to convert into Marks again."

This problem of not being able to close one door without opening another also plagues Nixon.

The N.Y. Herald Tribune reports that Nixon is uptight because the money we "lend" England is immediately sent on to Germany. If this keeps up, the USA will be drained dry.

I write this Saturday morning in Vienna. I haven't seen the papers yet. My guess is that this weekend W. Germany will "revalue" the Mark, England and France will "devalue" their monies, and the USA will -- within six months -- "devalue" the dollar by 50% via raising the price of gold to $70 an ounce or more.

HOW HE LIVED TO TELL

Dear Editor,

Last Wednesday night I was visiting Berkeley all night waiting for the bulldozers to show at the People's Park. I was walking up University Ave about 5:30 a.m. heading for coffee and donuts at the park when a Berkeley Pig (in this case the title fits) pulled over, jumped out of his porkchop, and began to hassle me about ID, weapons, and dope. After I assured him that my only intentions were honorable, although idealistic he attempted to search my person without cause just or otherwise.

I assured him that even though I under stand the Catch-22 situation existing on the streets, he wasn't going to go digging through my pockets. Then he acted like he wanted to take a payoff to not bust me but when I got the car it was "Hands on top and don't give me any trouble."

Nothing about being under arrest. So I did an about-face and did some adrenalin walking. The pig fagged out after a block and one-half and I was home free.

I have two things to say: (1) I'm alive probably because I'm white and (2) The Berkeley Pigs need some education about respecting ALL the People.

HARE TALKS

LIKE IT IS,
IT'S NOT SWEET

by Bil Paul

Dr. Nathan Hare, de facto chairman of Black Studies at San Francisco State hasn't faded away during Hayakawa's sanctimonious policing of the campus -- he's gone international with speaking trips to Harvard and London.

Hayakawa has told Hare that he has no job for him at SF State because Hare had held the line for a black-controlled Black Studies Program. And Hare was one of those who upstaged and angered the Doktor during his speech to the faculty this spring.

From all appearances, Black Studies at SF State is no closer to being implemented than it was before the strike and the "agreement" that ended the strike. Hayakawa has spent his time lately bringing Duke Ellington to his gym to bolster his image and seeing that new flowers are planted all over his campus.

Hare was a panel member at a meeting of the Parents for Self Determination at Howard Presbyterian Church in the Haight Friday night. The purpose of the meeting was to prevent the dissolution of predominantly black schools into the new SF master plan for centralized school complexes.

The other panel members were concerned with fighting the consolidation plan, but Hare didn't limit himself to purely local problems.

Hare is hard to make out sometimes--his thoughts ramble as he makes connections. Here's the meat of what the man was talking about:

Black students haven't been acting brilliantly on the whole, seizing "symbols of power (buildings, deans, etc.) rather than the instruments of power."

Don't expect much from the media-fed masses. Numbers mean little because the majority does not rule. "Most successful revolts are planned by one man and carried out by a dozen" he said.

About SF State, Hare suggested that the National Guard was never called because Alioto wants a mediator image to carry him to the governor's chair.

And Hare termed the strike convocation at State an invention by the previous president to delude Blacks into thinking they were getting somewhere. The press coverage of the convocation convinced Blacks on other campuses that they too needed convocations. But it got them nothing.

Dr. Hare called the Ford Foundation "a front for the CIA", saying that the supposed philanthropy is really a super-subtle influence to soften black militancy.

The meeting about keeping some schools black was packed -- with whites, mostly. Mothers, high school students, some middle-aged men. Looking at this absurdity, Hare said "Blacks have had it or they're invisible men."

pigs shot once or twice at the crowd. Then they advanced.

Another eyewitness reported: "It was at the Chevron station, I think it was at Carleton Street. The Sheriff's pigs, the Blue Meanies, came around and tried to encircle us after the Highway patrol had blocked us off."

"They came out and were brandishing their shotguns. They had shot over the heads of the crowd before and hadn't hit anyone. We stopped throwing rocks."

"They just stood there and we just walked toward them and they started pointing their shotguns at us."

"I saw a big fat pig whom I recognized had been on the campus before. He was brandishing his shotgun and we started running away from the pigs."

"Then the pig turned and shot this guy in the back."

"The guy fell to the ground and went into convulsions. He rolled over to the curb and stopped there."

"After that fat guy shot, each of the other pigs had to get their shot in too, so they all shot at the crowd.

"At least one person fell down. 'I've talked to a lot of people who have buckshot in their arms and bodies."

"Everyone was splitting to go get their guns."

"I also saw a guy fall off the roof of the laundromat below Dwight when a pig shot a gas grenade at him. They let him lie there and continued shooting tear gas at everybody."

"After that people overturned a pig car and set others on fire."

Warren Wells' second trial is completing its first week in Alameda County Superior Court before Judge Lewis Lercara.

Wells is the first Panther to be tried in the "shoot-out" in which Oakland pigs killed Bobby Hutton and wounded Eldridge Cleaver. The first trial resulted in a hung jury, 10 to 2 for acquittal.

A new witness, shown off by the prosecution on the first day, was a Mr. Brown, a Negro who said he saw the whole thing. He had not testified at the Grand Jury hearing and said he had been contacted first by the FBI a month after the incident. Brown gave erratic and contradictory testimony, once claiming the incident lasted two hours, and later saying the shooting took only 4 minutes.

Pulling a well-worn psychological trick, the DA showed the jury 15 guns he said were found at the scene. This was to convince the jury that Wells was "violent"

A cop, Mike Hoefling, said that he had taken notes on that night. They read, "weather, clear... Black Panther ambush... off duty."

Defense Attorney Charles Garry got a cop to admit that at the time of the incident the department was listing the descriptions of twenty Panther cars.

Officer Carlo Cristiani of Emeryville said that he saw no firing and saw two "young unarmed men" not resisting arrest.

Garry expects the trial to be given to the jury for acquittal in two weeks.

HEYNS' FINGER
IN U. C.
CASES

The UC administration is coming down hard on people who pushed through the Ethnic Studies Department during the recent campus strike.

About 50 cases have already been decided by the campus Committee of Student Conduct with most students getting suspensions for several quarters, or being placed on probation, Dan Seigel Boalt Hall law student and ASUC Student Advocate told BARB.

For such minor offense as blocking, some students were suspended one or two quarters, he said. He told of one case where Chancellor Heyns personally overruled the Conduct Committee and suspended a student for 2 quarters instead of leaving him on 3 quarter probation as the committee had recommended. The student was accused of "disrupting" a class by informing it about the reasons for the strike.

One good point for the students has been the fact committee has at times acknowledged that cops who testified could be lying or mistaken. "This would be unheard of in civil court," Siegel said.

The Conduct Committee is made up of 5 faculty members, all appointed by Heyns, and 4 students chosen by non-representative judicial committees, Siegel told BARB.

"We should have a student court that is representative so students can be tried by their peers," he noted. But there is little chance of the Regents agreeing to such democracy on campus, he said.

Meanwhile, the civil cases of those busted during the strike haven't come up yet. The UC Legal Defense Committee is still seeking photographs and witnesses for those arrested. If you can help call 845-0180.

Noonan has been in jail since then, hoping to have his bail reduced. He finally gave up and paid a bondsman $2500 of the Commune's funds for his freedom. His trial is set for July 14th.

27 not guilty, 25 guilty, and six undetermined.

That is the up-to-date box score on the trials of the 436 people arrested in the mass round-up at SF State.

The nine will have new trial dates set for the charges on which the jury deadlocked.

The SF State Legal Defense Committee must raise $1700 by Monday, May 19th for appeal bonds. At that time the ten defendants will be going up for sentencing and may have to go to jail if the bond is not made during the appeal.

Contributions may be sent to the committee at 546 Fillmore St.

BOYCOTT OFF TAKE

by Bil Paul
There was at least a 50 percent drop in business at the 30th and Mission Safeway in San Francisco last Saturday while 150 pickets at the entrance told shoppers that this was not the place to do business.

During the afternoon a truckload of Chicanos dropped by and had a little confrontation with Burns guards and SF cops in the store, but everyone stayed cool. In fact I saw a Chicano cop giving one of the leaders a revolutionary handshake. That's REAL cool.

The truckload, in a festive mood, drove on to the next Safeway. Out on the picket line cars entering the parking lot weren't hassled but had to bear the stony glances of their neighbors telling them that they were wrong.

It was a neighborhood kind of affair at this store, the largest Safeway in the Mission district. Neighborhood grade and high school kids were in the line along with vets of the SF State strike and all afternoon cars drove by waving Huelga flags and giving the raised fist sign.

The manager hovered by, telling me that he's been through this sort of thing before, that his concern was "that no one would get hurt." His store still carries grapes picked by people who hurt. Still, Safeway goes on insisting that it is only "in the middle" between the growers and strikers.

There was one troublemaker driving a yellow ex-taxi who made like he was going to run down the line at about 2:30. When he saw me take a picture of his car he stopped and pointed to a realtor's shingle in his rear window which, he said, carried his name. Just what his game was I don't know; he wasn't here to shop.

On Monday a Burns guard was still in the store. When Safeway is convinced that protecting the grape growers is unprofitable they'll cooperate with the strike.

NEGOTIATIONS

Farmworkers and Safeway bosses are attempting to negotiate on the grape boycott controversy as BARB goes to press Thursday.

Dolores Huerta and other leaders of the United Farm Workers Union are expected to meet in the National offices of Safeway in Oakland. At issue will be the removal of scab grapes from the chain stores' shelves.

"That's ALL we'll negotiate," Kathy Murguria of the SF office of the farm workers said. She noted that Safeway is already on record as supporting Senator Murphy's proposed legislation against strikes during harvest seasons and against secondary boycotts. The farm workers are against these union-busting laws.

"The turnout on the International Grape Boycott Day was great," she said. Thousands of people picketed over 50 Bay Area Safeway stores last Sunday. She feels the strong turnout was in part responsible for the quick reaction by Safeway.

On another front, Dominion Foods, the largest food chain store in Canada announced this week it would remove all scab California and Arizona grapes from its shelves.

Meanwhile in the Coachella Valley, near the Mexican border, about 150 farm workers started a march last Saturday to gather support for the Farm Workers union organization work down there.

TEACHERS TALK OF SICK SCENE IN RICHMOND

by Jon Jacobson

"Richmond is straight out of the Kerner Commission Reports. The whole town is demoralized by white racism," six teachers from that community told BARB this week. "People just cannot get along with each other."

The teachers, all of whom are young--two black and four white--were very upset about what has come down in their town the past several weeks.

They charged that none of the higher-ups in the school district are doing anything constructive to breach the racial gap.

"The administrators are just trying to survive. They just keep the lid on with police and pray for the next Friday to come. Bircher types are in control of the school system." These are some of the foreboding statements they made.

And all are certain the situation will become even worse soon. "I think the schools will have to be closed down," one of the black teachers said. "Black parents are talking of boycotting. They don't want police assaulting their children. It's impossible to teach with pigs on campus."

The racial tension in the town has recently come to a head with violent clashes on high school campuses, and police attacks, clubbings and macings of black teenagers.

Black parents met last Sunday at Richmond's Neighborhood House to work out a series of demands for the protection of their children. They expect to present them to city officials within a few days.

In part they will be protesting School Superintendent D.E. Widel's proclamation in a letter to all parents last week. The letter states; "Now we are in a position to make an even better use of police, for we have police officers stationed right on our campuses."

Richmond police chief Robert Murphy has also announced that plainclothes cops are stationed on two campuses, John F. Kennedy HS and Richmond High South Campus.

The main demands of the black community are: no mace to be used on students, no police dogs on campuses, no beating of students by police, no suspension without sufficient evidence, protection for black students from attacks by whites, and more cooperation between school administrators and parents.

The parents will ask that instead of police they themselves be allowed to patrol the campuses.

The causes of the black community's fears and concerns were explained by what the six teachers told BARB. While documenting the eyewitness accounts of the turmoil that beset their schools one teacher suddenly stopped.

"Oh! This is just too depressing. Even I didn't realize how bad everything is," she said.

The teachers all charged the school administrators with just existing day to day, without trying to solve the causes of the problems.

Already the Richmond School District is in near financial collapse. On April 15 the white voters again rejected a school tax increase. For 17 years no tax increases have been approved for Richmond schools.

As a consequence the district has had to cut down not only its faculty, but also its maintenance and administration staff. The new school board just elected will contain all conservatives. "It'll be much worse than before," one black Richmond mother told BARB.

Ironically the spark that engulfed Richmond into violence came from outside the city, from Pinole, a white workers town just north of Richmond. The trouble started April 30 at Pinole Valley HS which has 90 blacks bussed in from Richmond and about 1800 whites.

Off that day a violent clash started between white students and the badly outnumbered blacks. According to a report in the underground paper on North campus, the Liberated News, the incident started when a white student hit a black girl on the head with an iron pipe.

"An ambulance took away black track star Eddie Ayers who was badly hurt. This is the gratitude he gets for representing Pinole Valley in athletic contests," the Liberated News rejoiced.

Other sources give much the same account of what happened at Pinole Valley. The teachers who talked to BARB said very few of the white students responsible for the violence were taken in by police.

The following day, May 1, black students held a rally on South Campus in Richmond. During the rally a California and an American flag were burned. "It was so crowded it was impossible to know who was responsible," one of the teachers who was present said.

Yet, later, 520 17 year old black students were arrested and expelled from school. One of the black community demands is that they be reinstated because of the insufficient evidence against them.

On that same day police dogs were used on North campus, attended only by 9th and 10th graders. Some students had requested permission to attend the Free Huey rally in SF. This of course was refused. A voice came over the intercom telling teachers to lock the students inside the classrooms.

The most violent incident occurred May 7 on North Campus. This time it was not merely a student scuffle, but an attack by the Richmond police on black youths. When police arrived on the campus to quell several fist fights the scene became more violent. The white students disappeared leaving the blacks alone to face the cops.

Carolyn Wilkes, a black teacher at North Campus told BARB of seeing cops walk by the students, taunting them with yells.

"I think the accusation of the Richmond police being racist is true," she said.

Jane Fitzgibbon, another teacher on North Campus said one of her black students suffered a broken wrist when he tried to protect himself from a cops' club. Other teachers spoke of two 14 year old black girls who were blinded by mace when the pigs charged the milling students.

As the blacks left, they had to walk through the white section of town across the railroad tracks to the black area. The police chased and beat them once they were off campus.

There were also reports of several shots being fired, and a white

WINKER FINKED ON -- FIRED

By Leo E. Laurence

A man who was fired from his job at Tower Records, Bay and Columbus streets in San Francisco, solely on grounds that his boss "suspected"; that he was a homosexual has joined the picket line at the States Steamship Company, 320 California street, SF., organized by the Committee for Homosexual Freedom.

"I simply smiled and winked at a customer after a long hassle was resolved over a refunded record," says Frank Dinero, 24, a graduate of the Univ. of Buffalo.

"It was an act of courtesy to my customer, but a private security guard reported it to my boss and I got fired -- for a wink.

"I'm not gay or straight. I'm bi if anything, but my boss tossed me out saying: 'We don't tolerate that free spirit around here.'"

As in the States Lines confrontation, Company executives of Tower Records told reporters a curt: "no comment on the dismissal."

A possible strike line by the militant CHF outside the Tower Records store will put me in a "tight spot," Assistant Manager Herb Hoyt was reported saying.

Reports are that other employees of Tower records may respect any picket line established by the CHF.

Straight support for the CHF strike at the States Steamship Company is growing, meanwhile.

"Your beautiful love picket line moved me to tears," Regina Meiers, a straight girl from Sausalito wrote to CHF headquarters, #15 Beaver St., SF.

"It was so inspiring to see your courage and unabashed love," she said in comments typical of hundreds of "straights" impressed by seeing proud homosexuals marching hand-in-hand every weekday noonhour at States Lines.

The CHF strike line has been maintained for over a month, but still no response from the company on demands that States Lines cease discrimination against homosexuals.

Grass roots support from San Francisco's gay community is beginning to build. Gay leaders joining the picket line recently include: DORR Jones, past president of the Society for Individual Rights; Andrew Bettencourt, S I R Secretary; and Ramone Contreras, former S I R Board member.

"Before the confrontation started at States Steamship Company," says Contreras, "I believed what I was doing was sufficient to guarantee eventual homosexual equality vis-a-vis the heterosexual."

"I became an active S I R member, patronizing businesses and events owned or sponsored by gays. Yet, at all times, I maintained a facade of straightness while confronting straight society," he added.

"I hope this confrontation will dramatize to all homosexuals their forced alienation from society by the Establishment," Contreras said.

"The Establishment don't want us to work together," Julio Ramirez of the Greater Mission Switchboard said to a CHF meeting at the Cabaret Cafe this week.

"That is why they make distinctions between Latins, Hippies, Homosexuals, Blacks, and other minorities. But, the street people must get together," Ramirez said.

STANFORD BATTLE MOVES TO STREET

Mobile street tactics will be used in an effort to close down the Stanford Research Institute in Palo Alto today (Friday).

The April 3rd Movement, which has been conducting a campaign for close University supervision of the academic brothel, voted overwhelmingly in a mass meeting Wednesday to adopt such "Oakland type" tactics against the Institute.

In a reconnaissance-in-force action Wednesday night 200 activists converged on the building and scouted it out. The car of the President of the research facility was surrounded and detained and several small fires mysteriously started.

The whole bay area is invited to come down to the SRI today (Friday) to help. It is located one block beyond El Camino Real on Page Mill Road, which connects with the Bayshore Freeway at Oregon Avenue. SRI is on the right.

The action was precipitated by the Stanford Board of Trustees' high-handed decision to cut all ties with SRI. The Movement's spokesman also commented that ending of counter-insurgency research was "neither feasible nor desirable". SRI will be given a free hand, and the Trustees, who are the moguls of Peninsula industry, will have as much control or more over it now as before.

The April 3rd Movement has been conducting a months-long campaign to put the SRI under close University supervision and to end the war-related and counter-insurgency work.

A nine-day sit-in in the Applied Electronics Laboratory and a one-day sit-in in the college administrative building produced only wholesale suspensions and a tight injunction against the activists.

A class and boycott "political carnival" Monday and Tuesday yielded encouraging results, but not the sort to sway the trustees.

Thus, the call to the barricades, of course, Palo Alto being what it is, the action is more likely to be on wheels. A whole new chapter in street conflict may be written.

CHICO PEOPLE'S FARMS

The people of Butte county have gone hungry because the Board of Supervisors refuses to approve a food stamp program, but food grown on land returned to the people by the people may soon be available.

Butte County is located north of Sacramento; it contains Chico State College and the Gridley Farm Labor Camp. Unemployment there averages 11% and hits seasonal highs of 23%. One fifth of the population suffers from malnutrition.

The students of Chico State who have the highest per capita income of all the state colleges; are mostly from the Bay Area. Chico was listed as the #2 party school in the nation by Playboy, but black students (there are about 100 minority students out of 8500 total enrollment) can't get a haircut in Chico and hip students are routinely thrown out of the city's restaurants and pelted with vegetables.

Chico State cooperates with the power structure to the extent that the college maintenance department has manufactured billy clubs for the local police department.

Typically, radical professors are not tolerated; Michael Pincus and Jerry Carr, two professors who were extremely popular among the students but who are considered left of the maintenance department have recently been denied tenure; Pincus by way of an administration veto. The President of Chico State has received large kickbacks from dormitory construction contractors.

The former D.A., Lucian Vandergrift, who is now Reagan's #2 man in the state welfare system, was big on welfare fraud prosecution; He sent one man to jail for five months for allegedly defrauding the people of California of $1.29.

Butte county needs a food stamp program; 17% of the population suffer from malnutrition. But the Board of Supervisors has refused to approve such a program on the theory that there is no hunger or poverty in Butte county.

Students from Chico got involved with the local Economic Opportunity Councils and decided to push the Board of Supervisors into making a decision on the food stamp program that had been "under consideration" for two years. They went to the community and collected 3500 signatures endorsing the program, a record for any petition ever circulated in Butte county.

Convinced that the Board of Supervisors will never pass the food stamp program the students have decided to return the unused subsidized land in Butte county back to the people to be used for their true needs and desires. As the "Friends of Sammy Young" they have started a peoples farm on a large parcel of unused land, but are paying no rent to the "owner". The farm will be used to feed the people of Butte county and aid them in their struggle to break the grower's stranglehold over the use of the land, exercised through their absolute control over the Butte County Farm Labor Bureau.

The students hope to further their alliance with the farm workers of Butte county by setting up a recreation program this summer. Children in the rich area of Chico have access to a $150,000 pool located at the local high school; but in "Chapman Town" where the farm workers live, there are no such luxurious school facilities.

The idea of returning the land back to the people for the people's use is catching on. In Berkeley there is the People's Park and now Victory Gardens are starting to spring up in bank "owned" vacant lots in the Berkeley ghetto. In Chico there is a peoples farm, and shops and houses are beginning to spring up on subsidized vacant land owned by monopoly farmers or absentee landlords, holding the land for speculative and tax break purposes.

People are learning to seize land by use. The basic function of the police in this society is to keep people from using the natural resources of the society for their real needs instead of for producing profit, but there aren't enough cops to go around; not one to guard every vacant lot, and every country field in America.

The Chico Peoples Farm needs seed, livestock and mainly money. Send your goat or dollar to:

PEOPLES PARK, GARDEN UNITED

Despite the Police Gazette crud, the Black People's Vegetable Gardens and the People's Park are together, brothers, together.

"Scorning all those concerned with 'People's Park,' a group of Negroes announced plans to take over vacant lots and convert them into People's Victory Gardens," according to the Gazette.

Bullshit! The park people are working in West Berkeley Victory Gardens, and the garden organizers, mostly black, have been digging in the park. Sunday night two Victory Garden organizers came to the park campfire to recruit workers.

"When the black people have their own gardens to defend," rapped Calvin Briggsby, "they're going to see an attack on any People's Land as an attack on them, so they'll defend the park, too."

Monday morning, about twenty park heads were digging on Grove

"People gotta eat, man."

And last Saturday, a weed-covered lot near the corner of Stuart and Milvia, Berkeley, was seized and made into a People's Garden with corn, beans, tomatoes, green peppers, peas and other good things to eat.

"This is the first of many such gardens which we plan to create all over the Bay Area," said Rev. Scott B. Smith, spokesman for the Samuel L. Younger Jr. Memorial Foundation.

The "Friends of Sammy Younger" are the prime movers behind the People's Gardens. Sammy Younger was the first black college student killed in the civil rights struggle. He was shot to death Jan. 4, 1966 in Tuskegee, Alabama while trying to use a "white" men's room at a gas station.

Nearly 50 people turned out to help the "Friends of Sammy" build the first garden.

"It was great," said Rev. Smith, an ordained minister of the Universal Life Church.

Rev. Smith and Rev. Calvin sat on the front steps of Rev. Smith's house in the Saturday dusk and rapped about the gardens.

"We had neighborhood people out there, blacks, chicanos, yellows and whites - not just the radicals - but all kinds and views," said Rev. Smith.

"See those signs that say 'Black Victory Garden', 'Chicano American Victory Garden' and 'White Victory Garden', well each day of the week the gardens are being dedicated to a group.

"It's for everybody," he added.

"At harvest time, we're going to take part of the crops down to the Berkeley Welfare office and distribute them," said Rev. Calvin.

"If they give us any static, we'll just take over the welfare

Among those helping with the garden Saturday was a group of students from Chico State.

"We've got 40 acres and some People's Gardens up at Chico already," said the Colonel, a sociology major at State.

"We just got tired of the political ideology bit and decided to do something," said the Colonel.

"I don't care if your a Wallace supporter, a McCarthy liberal or one of those PL freaks -- being hungry isn't political.

"This is a basic human response to a real problem and everyone can get involved," he added.

Monday morning, work began on the second garden. This one is at Grove and Oregon, just around the corner from the first.

By 11:00 a.m., nearly 20 people were hard at it, digging up tree roots, clearing weeds, picking and hoeing.

As on Saturday, chicks showed up to cook and feed the workers. The soup was hot and the tea was nice on a cool, gray day.

The cat on my left was from Norfolk, Virginia. He was just drifting through and heard about the People's Gardens the night before when he crashed up at People's Park.

"This is really great," he said, "but things are really uptight back in Virginia -- it would never work back there."

Scott St. John, editor of "The Stone Epitaph" in New Haven, Conn., said he was going to get People's Gardens going back east.

Raymond 'Alraay Omega' Greer, a Bay Area activist, sees these People's Gardens as the beginning of a self-help movement for the rehabilitation of blacks and other oppressed groups.

"We need this activity to stimulate dignity, pride and intelligence," Greer told BARB.

"We got to get water for the vegetables," said Jackson, a middle-aged black plumber from Local 444, who was pushing a wheel barrow.

"I'll bring my tools down tomorrow and find the meter lead in so we can get some water," said Jackson.

Berkeley Mayor Wallace Johnson dropped by the Grove Street garden about 2:00 Monday afternoon and gave his blessing to the project.

"This is a fine, public-spirited activity you are undertaking," said Johnson.

"I will try and help you by asking other owners of vacant lots to let you use them," he said.

Not everyone was pleased with the Mayor's unscheduled appearance. Rev. Smith saw it as an attempt to co-opt the "Friends of Sammy" and gain political mileage for himself.

This isn't the Mayor's project, it's the people's project, and we want that clearly understood," said Rev. Smith.

Monday night, Rev. Smith outlined plans for the People's Gardens to a meeting of the Economic Opportunity Organization - Berkeley Area.

The EOO-BA board indicated that they would have to help as individuals, not as a group, because of the possible legal status of the land seizures.

Wells Fargo Bank, owner of the Milvia-Stuart lot, was notified by letter of the move to take over its land. A Wells Fargo representative came out Monday to see the lot and told Rev. Calvin that the bank would take no action against the garden.

"Hell, we saved the bank $200 in clearing the lot, which they would have to do once a year anyway," said Rev. Calvin.

Some attempt was made to find the owner of the Grove-Oregon lot, but no one seemed too concerned about it.

"We are ready to move on other lots already, including the land the city took for a park on Prince Street," said Rev. Smith.

The next step is to get animals - chickens, goats, pigs, even dairy cattle."

We have to be able to feed ourselves if we are really going to be free.

"We can't go on eating this DDT-poisoned food the Man gives us through the system," said Rev. Smith.

Rev. Smith asked for more people to work on the gardens.

"We have a soup line and crash pads for workers at 1936 Stuart.

"If you can't work, go up to Cody's Bookstore on the Avenue and buy the book, 'Sammy Younger Jr.' by James Forman.

Fred Cody is donating all profits to the 'Friends,'" he added.

In a show of solidarity with the defenders of People's Park, supporters of the People's Gardens project called off a Wednesday dedication ceremony in favor of more productive action up the park.

FESTIVAL

Some people want to change Oakland's head, and make it more beautiful and free this summer.

Embarking on what they call a "super-positive trip" the Pumpkin Company is hosting a giant Festival June 1 in Oakland's Mosswood Park (Broadway and McArthur).

There'll be free clothing and food to share or trade, as well as good sounds. The park is big so things will be going on in all parts, including an agit-prop theater. Musicians and other creative people interested in the venture should contact Doug at 655-5602.

frame after frame

Fred C. Shapiro has written a very fine book about a police frame-up called Whitmore -- about a young black whom the New York City police -- the same who are roasting Mayor Lindsay's ass, through pressure applied by their PBA association (kill the civilian review board! wipe out the Brooklyn Panthers!) -- of how the NYC police framed -- say it loud: FRAMED -- a young, dimwitted black, George Whitmore, for the murders of Janice Wylie and Emily Hoffert.

Now, the murders of Misses Wylie and Hoffert were particularly reprehensible, by a New Yorker's lights, because they happened in the wrong neighborhood, the East 80's! Class! Minka. They (the sinister they: blacks, chicanos, Pr's) -- they start carving up white folks in the East 80s -- boy, that's anarchy!

So Shapiro shows how the NYC police, under tremendous pressure to bring to justice the felon who murdered two CLASS citizens -- WHO LIVED IN THE EAST 80s became overzealous and hung the crime on George Whitmore, a black who had no prospects, no family, even, really, who slept under a stoop because he had hung around his aunt's home till she was sick of the sight of him and because he had no other warm place to seek refuge in.

Shapiro in Whitmore takes us, the readers, painfully, step-by-step through the whole disgusting operation of the frame-up -- The police interrogation with its Mutt & Jeff routine; two detectives: "I'm Mutt: friendly, loving, trust me" -- "And me? Ah'm Jeff: a real prick -- Why'd you kill those two girls, nigga?"

Shapiro shows us how the cops stage the confession by thoroughly intimidating and then confusing their patsy -- and getting him to admit to anything, Jesus! anything.

For instance in the interrogation; one place they asked: "You mentioned that this building (where the murders took place) was about four or five stories, could it have been eight or ten stories?" George: "I don't know if it's that high or not." Question: "Could it have been eight stories?" George: "Yes." Question: (Really nailing it down) "But it could have been more than four or five stories?" George: "Yes."

If Shapiro were an underground reporter, he couldn't have gotten the goods on the police as he has -- "Get outta here, you crumb. You draw flies!" Shapiro, a New Yorker, is a former reporter for the Herald Tribune ("Ooh, class, a real class sheet there. Whitney, a leading banking family, the publisher, yet!"), and a New Yorker writer ("A beautiful magazine -- with multilith -- exquisite tone diverting").

The truth is, Shapiro is an old-style reporter who saw his duty -- to tell a story -- and set about it with all the skills at his command. Whitmore (read Huey, Linthcome, Baskett) was being crucified, the police were lousy characters --

EXPOSE 'EM. And Shapiro did. And his expose was printed in the New Yorker, where the tradition of the old, great reporting (Liebling, My God, when will his like come again!) persists, weakly.

But now why des it become of interest to BARB readers? Because the three-part series, since published as a book, hasn't been reviewed Nowhere! For a three-part -- New Yorker -- series -- made into-a-book NOT to be reviewed in the New York Times is extraordinary. In addition, the two victims -- career girls were Newsweek wouldn't touch it, either.

Why? Because times have changed in New York, especially in the editorial offices of the cop-loving Times (whose reporting of the Brooklyn Panther busts, and the Columbia-SDS sit-ins has been slimey). To Times editors, a book about a police frame -- painfully, scrupulously, unchallengeably detailed by an Establishment writer (one of Eustace Tilley's own men, no less!) -- Christ, Jesus, is a millstone, to say the least, a lead-weight -- better it should be buried...

WHITMORE is being muzzled; damned by no mention. In the eyes of the fancy-assed, purse-lipped, venomous, money-raking, sell-outs of the New York publishing scene, Whitmore is a non-book.

But for BARB readers it's an important book. The sheer volume of detail about how the frame is put on is available probably nowhere. It ought to be read if only for the scene where the fat, florid, arrogant Irish deputies, commanders, inspectors come down to Brownsville station to be on hand when Whitmore is revealed to the press. These are cops who are going to on to being vice presidents of Coca Cola and Diamond Match at 50 to 100 thou., all trying to get a piece of the credit for nabbing this twerp black.

One of the bits of "evidence" they, the cops, tried to hang on Whitmore was his bloody undershirt -- til a police chemist told them, sourly: "The kid's got acne, on this back -- Running sores, for Christ sake!" --C.F. WHITMORE, by Fred C. Shapiro; The Bobbs-Merrill Co., $5.00.

HOMO MURDER COMPLAINT SET

Murder complaints against the two Berkeley pigs involved in the gun shot killing of Frank Bartley in Aquatic Park April 17 will be signed at the DA's office this week by Bartley's brother.

"I'm taking Frank's brother into Frank Coakley's office to sign the murder complaints, and I don't think he is going to like it one bit," said Mary Montgomery, a local attorney and personal friend of Bartley's.

Bartley died of a gun shot wound in his head on April 24. He was shot in his car by Weiker Kline, a "sex squad" plain clothesman. Kline and his partner, Frank Reynolds, were attempting to arrest Bartley for "homosexual advances" made in Aquatic Park.

The Berkeley police and the DA's office have both closed their official investigations of the killing finding both pigs not guilty of any misconduct.

As a protest of this official whitewash, the Society for Individual Rights, the Committee for Homosexual Freedom and other Bay Area supporters of the gay movement held a mock funeral procession from Glide Memorial Church in San Francisco to Berkeley's Hall of Justice. SIR plans see p. 19 man on his porch with a shotgun threatening the students. The bus that usually takes the black students home didn't stop to pick up the large throng of youngsters.

"You can't teach when kids are upset about police. About all they learned last week is how cops treat them," Carolyn Wilkes said.

Cops are present not only in the high school, but also on the junior high campuses. Joanne Gearing, a black teacher at Roosevelt school told of police coming on to that campus with dogs, with long sticks in the cafeteria. They seem to be trying to instigate trouble," she said.

On another campus, Downer Junior High the students have put up eleven demands to improve their education. The list includes an end to unfair suspension, more black cooks and janitors, counselors who do counseling instead of discipline, and charged some teachers treat black students unfairly. One point states, "We've been promised Black history and haven't got it yet. Now we Demand it!"

The six teachers feel little help can be expected from the faculty in easing the racial troubles. Many of them are old, and don't know how to relate to black people, Jane Fitzgibbon said. The younger ones are leaving the city by the score, 79 have already resigned and won't be back next year, she noted.

"Integration just hasn't worked in Richmond, it hasn't been given a chance," Carolyn Wilkes said. "It's always been a one way thing, just bussing for the blacks. Maybe community control of our own schools is the answer."

Richmond is like a part of the old South transformed to Northern California several of the teachers noted. The John Birch Society is strong in the town because so many of the whites originally came from the South. "They are the kind who support Rafferty's moral code, but not racial equality," one of the teachers pointed out.

"It's a hideous racist town, and I can see little hope for it," another teacher said.

MUTINY COURT MEMBERS DROP OUT

by Corey Miller

First there were five members of the mutiny court martial board. And then there were three.

Following a nerve-racking week of maybe there will be a court session and maybe there won't, the whole merry-go-round of the mutiny trial broke down when the father of one member of the court martial board died and the president of the court martial board entered the post hospital at Fort Ord with a gall bladder condition.

Major Billy Doremus returned to Philadelphia to attend the funeral of his father, Maj. Doremus is scheduled to return May 13.

More serious to the fate of the 14 GIs charged with mutiny when they walked out of formation at the Presidio stockade on Oct 14 is the absence of Lt. Col. Richard Potter.

At an out-of-court hearing on Thursday, law officer Lt. Col. James Hagen said the trial would be postponed indefinitely dependent upon whether Col. Potter will need surgery or not.

Army regulations say there must be a minimum of five members to hear a court martial. If Col Potter must retire from the board, then a new member must be named, but the new member cannot sit until he has read the record of all that has taken place in the barracks court room.

The trial was into its 24th day. The judge estimated it would take four weeks for a new member to catch up (Hallinan estimated one week). One spectator said the judge said the transcript must be re-read in front of all present, meaning the court martial board, the law officer, both sets of attorneys, and the prisoners.

Some of the spectators at last Thursday's unscheduled hearing felt that the appointment of spyskipper, Commander Lloyd Bucher to Monterey's Naval Postgraduate School made an embarrassing presence in the Monterey Peninsula area for the army's "mutiny" trial in light of the fact that Bucher was let off despite a five-admiral naval court of inquiry's recommendation for court martial for Bucher.

Thursday's hearing was also unusual because after the judge left, a very relaxed MP, one not seen near the court previously, did not clear the court room immediately which allowed time for the spectators to visit with the 14 young men on trial. "It was almost like a tea party," said one young lady who has attended court regularly.

At the last court session on Wednesday, San Francisco psychiatrist, grandfatherly Dr. Maurice Spottwood said that "Pvt. Patrick Wright was very anxious and confused."

"His is a character disorder of the passive aggressive type. The situation in the stockade brought back the early situation in his life, the fear of his father... In talking with Pvt. Wright about what he expected from the sit-down he said he expected to get some kind of praise... It certainly borders on delusion if he expected this to come from a sit-down on the compound."

"To say he had no choice would be an exaggeration, but his choice of action was diminished a great deal. The situation at the stockade was so stressful, more stressful than many situations he had run away from. He must have had a strong desire to run away. Since he wasn't able to run away because he was incarcerated, it took away one of the mechanisms he used... Unconsciously the aim of the sit-down thing was somewhat the same, to get out of the thing, to get away."

And so, Pvt. Wright who wanted "to get away" and Pvt. Gentile, who wanted "to get out of here", and the other 'Presidio 27' GIs on trial down here for an act they committed on October 14 of last year are held in the Fort Ord stockade without bail.

KAYO HOPEFUL--

PROMISES TO HIT ARMY EVEN HARDER

"I feel optimistic we'll beat the mutiny rap," Terence (Kayo) Hallinan, attorney for the 14 men on trial at Fort Ord told BARB this week. "The Army is not used to anyone fighting back so hard."

Hallinan was back in San Francisco during a week-long break in the Court-Martial inquisition at Fort Ord. Two members of the board have left Monterey for personal reasons, so the trial has been recessed until May 19.

When the court battle resumes, Hallinan will continue with his determined defense, producing 7 more psychiatrists to attest to the state of mind of his clients during the October 14 sit-down.

PRESIDIO STOCKADE LETTER

Dear Editor of the Berkeley Barb:

Here we are again with some more news. Yesterday, early in the morning a man was brought into the stockade. He asked to go on emergency sick call, for some 3rd degree burns on his legs.

They told him to shut up and stand at attention with his nose against the wall. He stood there for about 30 minutes, then asked to get on sick call again, when they refused him again, he told them his legs were hurting too bad, and asked to sit down, then they yelled at him and said what are you trying to be, a wise guy and threw him in the box, where he stayed all day.

Later, that night they were having an investigation, so the young man asked to go on emergency sick call again, and the guard he asked turned around and asked the sergeant, what should they do about the clown with the burnt legs.

The sergeant said you had better take the S.O.B. to the hospital before he blows the whole thing. He was taken to the hospital and treated for his burns and returned to the Stockade.

He was then put back in segregation.

In the Stockade the prisoners do all the cooking, this morning when one of the cooks was awakened by A FOOT IN THE FACE. When he started to complain the guard said shut up or you'll go see the man in segregation. Well we must close for now, and remember we'll always be free in our minds.

With love,
(name withheld to protect the sender)

His culminating witness will be noted black psychiatrist, Price Cobb.

Hallinan said that at first the board didn't believe his testimony on conditions inside the stockade. But later, as witness after witness gave consistent testimony, board members started to listen. They reacted the same with the first psychiatric evaluations, he noted. But now the Army jury is taking notes and asking questions for the first time.

"It takes a long time to get through to military people," Hallinan noted. "But we're doing it."

The defense will finish its testimony by next Friday, Hallinan said. Then the prosecution will take about a week for rebuttal. The case is expected to go to the Jury by the first of June.

Meanwhile the 14 soldiers are being treated like "criminals, not sick kids," by being confined to the Ft. Ord stockade, Hallinan said.

He noted that on May 7 the Army had another possible embarrassing case on its hands, but avoided the mistake it made at the Presidio. Seventy men in the Ft. Ord brig staged a sit-down because the guards refused to let them talk to members of Secretary of the Army Restor's committee investigating prison conditions.

Instead of reading a collective mutiny act the guards got the prisoners to give in by talking to each soldier individual, Hallinan reported.

SARGE SHIFTED

Sgt. Thomas Woodring, the heavy in the Presidio 27 drama has been replaced as stockade head BARB's undercover sources learned this week.

Woodring, who was noted for his brutal treatment not only of prisoners but also guards, was transferred to Fort McArthur in LA on May 2. He's a provost-marshal now, not in charge of any prisoners.

One of the sarge's most publicized achievements at the Presidio stockade was the deliberate breaking of Pvt. Roy Pully's fingers while the young prisoner lay defenseless on the ground. Even the Army thought that was bad publicity.

But improvements aren't really on the way for the Presidio brig. Woodring's replacement is a Sgt. Goodrich whom one of the guards described to BARB as "big, rough, and very nasty."

REIGN OF TERROR IN SF'S MISSION SINCE COP'S DEATH

by Rick Heide

San Francisco's Mission District is occupied territory. There are no visible roadblocks, checkpoints, or gun towers but tension and repression pollute the air like smog. The occupying arm is the San Francisco Police Department.

On May 1 a cop, Joe Brodnik, was shot and killed with his partner's gun. Clad in a T-shirt, Brodnik met death as he lived—as an undercover agent, a spy. At press time six brown youths are in jail, charged with murder, and a seventh is being sought. Since the shooting, a reign of terror has been enforced.

Brodnik and his partner, Patrick McGoran, have been pictured as heroes by the straight media. Both were heavily decorated by the S.F. P.D. "Twenty-nine citations for bravery but it was for harassing our brothers," says a young Chicano.

The straight press has leaped on the law and order bandwagon. The accused are regularly referred to as "hoodlums" and "thieves," rather than "students" for example. In the Mission one finds a different view of "Los 7 de La Raza."

"The media has stamped them guilty. We know they're not cold-blooded murderers but they ARE a threat to the system," says a friend.

The accused were active in Confederation of Brown Race for Action (C.O.B.R.A.). The organization stressed getting young people from the barrio into college. Now its members are working to save their brothers. They charge the arrests are politically motivated.

They point out that at least one of the suspects, Nelson Rodriguez, was not even in the area when the shooting occurred. Furthermore, they say the cops, the D.A., and everybody know it. He was fixing a truck miles away, says Ralph Ruiz. Still, Nelson remains in jail, charged with murder.

Police reaction to the shooting was swift, furious, and lasting. They started shooting. It is rumored that during the orgy of gunfire the officers were mistakenly shooting at each other. Their marksmanship was as bad as their target detection.

They did manage to wound a 14-year-old girl during the seige of a suspect's family home. Oscar Rios, brother of the accused prisoner Jose Rios, told BARB, "They shot up all the furniture, the TV, the whole house. They almost killed my little sister. And she had already told the officers no one was home."

Apparently they didn't believe her. After an intensive fusillade (reportedly even including machine gun fire), they entered the house. As she had said, they found no one but her, lying on the floor with a hip wound.

Later in the week Oscar and three friends were stopped in a car. Within minutes 14 S.F. pigs were on the scene, though none were suspects, Oscar says a Lieutenant Ellis told him, "This isn't a threat but a promise. I'll put you in jail for 5 years for helping your brother."

It appears that anyone young and brown is now subject to arrest, beating, or harassment. One student told of a friend's case in an impassioned voice. "They came to his house and got him out of bed with a shotgun on him," he said. "Then they beat the hell out of him right in front of his mother."

Another time, BARB was told, a pack of pigs came to a house where four brown students were talking. They stayed for a half hour on the pretext that they'd received a "wife-beating" complaint.

"Friends of the family would come to a suspect's home," said one young man. "They would be put up against a wall, searched, and questioned intensively."

The young people of the Mission spoke of numerous arrests for things like faulty taillights or improper signalling for a turn. A thorough search and roust was inevitably included. Some, who had been jailed in this wholesale attack on La Raza were afraid to talk about it. "It might get out to the wrong people," one said.

Stopping people at gun point became a common occurrence. One said, "There's nothing uglier than looking at a pig through the barrel of a gun."

"Law?" said one student. "The cops don't believe in it. I begin to wonder why I should." "They don't even know how to spell it," added a friend.

Tuesday a group of about 50 people—mostly young, from both the Mission and surrounding communities—met to discuss defense plans for Los 7 de La Raza. "We've got to make sure the city, the state, and the whole country know about this and don't forget it," said Jaime Solis.

He mentioned the similarity of the Huey Newton case. Huey, he said, "was charged with certain shit that were out and out lies. In this case some were not even present at the time of the incident."

"First they moved on the Panthers and now they're moving on us, because we don't sit on our asses," said Solis. "We're dangerous to them, getting people into school and all."

Several projects are already planned. COBRA members are spreading the news across the nation. Tonight (Friday) a dance will be held at Horizons Unlimited, 1249 Alabama Street in San Francisco.

In Berkeley a rally will be held at UC Tuesday, May 23. Speakers will include Oscar Rios, Rogelio (Roger) Alvarado, Alex Hing, Manuel Gomez, and someone from the Panthers. Contributions for the defense fund can be sent to: Los 7 de La Raza, 1249 Alabama Street, San Francisco.

After the meeting I rode down deserted Mission streets with Oscar Rios. "It never used to be like this. The people are all inside. They're scared."

Oscar, the brothers and sisters of COBRA, and their supporters may be scared, too. But they don't act like it. They intend to free Los 7 de La Raza.

BLOODY DRAFT

"We won't be happy with 50,000 troops withdrawn from Vietnam. We want FIVE HUNDRED and fifty thousand withdrawn," members of the UC Campus Draft Opposition said in a press conference Tuesday.

The campus group had just announced plans for a day long symposium May 23 at UC to honor draft resisters.

"We held one last year, but nothing has changed since then," Dan Siegel, ASUC student advocate and student body president elect, told BARB.

There might be some possibility of a hassle with the regents because the group will ask the faculty to permit students to be absent from classes that Friday, he said. "The regents have shown themselves to be irrational and unconstitutional in their behaviour," Professor Fredrick Crews, a member of the Academic Freedom Committee said. "We don't know how they'll react."

Featured at the all day conference will be Joan Baez and her husband Dave Harris.

"She is pregnant, while he faces a jail term for draft resistance. This is symbolic of what's happening to America," Siegel said.

Others who will appear at the conference will be Franz Schurmann, UC history and sociology prof, author Mitchell Goodman, attorney Terry Hallinan and several draft resisters and draft counselors.

earth read-out

by Keith Lampe

A new book: EARTH HOUSE HOLD, by Gary Snyder, New Directions, 143 pp, $1.95 paper.

Gary Snyder's first volume of mostly prose arrives at a good time. We have been bombarded this spring with varieties of information indicating we've so damaged the planetary ecosystem quite possibly we've extirpated ourselves.

Gary's book reminds us that for at least seventeen years he's been urging onto us -- again and again -- the kind of ecological consciousness/conscience that vastly increases chances of future human flourishings.

Way back in June of '52 Gary wrote a journal-poem which begins:

Blackie Burns:
GREEDY & SELFISH NO RESPECT FOR THE LAND

tin cans, beer bottles, dirty dishes a shit within a foot of the bed one sonuvabitch out of fifty fishguts in the creek
the door left open for the bear.

Multiply a-shit - within - a - foot of - the - bed by fifty Rockefellers plus fifty industrially-revolting capitalist/communist national regimes to the fiftieth power and you've maybe got the size of the thing facing us.

Gary's title comes from the pristine meaning of 'ecology': "eco" (oikos) meaning 'house' (cf. 'ecumenical'); Housekeeping on Earth. Economics, which is merely the housekeeping of various social orders--taking out more than it puts back--must learn the rules of the greater realm. Ancient and primitive cultures had this knowledge more surely and with almost as much empirical precision...as the most concerned biologist today."

Early sections of the book deal with his months as mountain look-out ('52-'53), beginning Zen student in Japan ('56-'57) and fireman on an almost-round-the-world tanker ('57-'58):

"Caruso: 'It's a long way to Suez'
Duperont: 'It ain't a long way man, it's just you got a short mind.'

I've spent quite some time leafing through the book looking for quotable snippets to stand as summary of this or that. Trouble is, the book is mostly quotable and mostly summary. You start to quote something--but then you see the quote really should continue right through several pages indefinitely. Probably because the book is the product not so much of long thought as long meditation.

Gary returned to the U.S. five months ago after having spent almost a decade in Japan studying/meditating mostly Buddhism but also a lot of Hinduism and a lot of other things including, especially, the "coming revolution."

His sense of what the revolution really must be makes most of the views rampant in the Movement seem less than radical--that is, less than "root."

In a recent poetry-reading tour of a dozen American campuses he has urged students to demand not only black studies but also "green studies" in order to learn and implement "the non-negotiable demands of nature."

Gary sees the thing coming down on us so fast--through a combination of political repression/chaos and ecological disaster--that "we owe it to our children to teach them how to subsist in forest and mountain and back-country situations." He thinks it imperative that American blacks and whites alike become symbolically, Indians in order to survive the next decades on this soil.

Certainly these perspectives are helpful -- even liberating--when viewed with the present brink-of-civil-war context: the black thing vigorous and courageous yet not really strong because packed into the central cities surrounded by armed suburban whites and also too easily controlled from the air--just a tiny step for the regime to graduate from the 1966 surveillance helicopters to helicopter gunships spurring death; the white-militant thing too often ego-ridden, faction-ridden, media-ridden.

What if the Pentagon had to deal with thousands of small tribes scattered across the American landscape? Tribes interiorly gentle but exteriorly capable of Indian-mobility. The suburban whites thus themselves surrounded --in fact opposed simultaneously front and rear. The strategic situation changes so much that possibly few shots will have to be fired.

Probably Gary's essay "Why Tribe" is the most important in the book--or at least for most of us at this particular time. The first half of it is an incredibly compact consciousness-history of the West since World War I -- and of Gary's own development since '48 when he played guitar in support of Henry Wallace: "The suspicion grew that perhaps the whole Western tradition, of which Marxism is but a (Millennial Protestant) part, is off the track. This led many people to study other major civilizations--India and China--to see what they could learn.

"It's an easy step from the dialectic of Marx and Hegel to an interest in the dialectic of early Taoism, the I Ching, and the yin-yang theories. From Taoism it is another easy step to the philosophies and mythologies of India--vast, touching the deepest areas of the mind..."

"Next comes a concern with deepening one's understanding in an experiential way: abstract-philosophical understanding is simply not enough. At this point many, myself included, found in the Buddha-Dharma a practical method for clearing one's mind of the trivia, prejudices and false values that our conditioning had laid on us--and more important, an approach to the basic problem of how to penetrate to the deepest non-self Self. Today we have many who are exploring the Ways of Zen, Vajrayana, Yoga, Shamanism, Psychedelics..."

"In the course of these studies it became evident that the 'truth' in Buddhism and Hinduism is not dependent in any sense on Indian or Chinese culture; and that 'India' and 'China' -- as societies--are as burdensome to human beings as any others; perhaps more so. It became clear that 'Hinduism' and 'Buddhism' as social institutions had long been accomplices of the State in burdening and binding people, rather than serving to liberate them. Just like other Great Religions.

"At this point, looking once more quite closely at history both East and West, some of us noticed the similarities in certain small but influential heretical and esoteric movements. Those schools instincts, especially sexual. To make 'human nature' suspect is also to make Nature--the wilderness--the adversary. Hence the ecological crisis of today.

"... The tribe, it seems, is the newest development in the Great Subculture..."

"... the modern Tribesman, rather than being old-fashioned in his criticism of civilization, is the most relevant type in contemporary society. Nationalism, warfare, heavy industry and consumerism are already outdated and useless. The next great step of mankind is to step into the

Because of midday heat it could only be done before 10:30 or after 4. In midday we napped in the shade of the banyan, or in the Bamboo House. Other work was fuel-gathering (dead pine unbranches; dead bamboo; or driftwood from the beaches loaded in a carrying basket and toted with a tumpine on the forehead) and cooking; done by turn in pairs in an open kitchen-shed with a thatch of thought and practice were usually suppressed, or diluted and made harmless, in whatever society they appeared. Peasant witchcraft in Europe, Tantrism in Bengal, Quakers in England, Tachikawa-ryu in Japan, Ch'an in China. These are all outcroppings of the Great Subculture which runs underground all through history...

"The Great Subculture has been attached in part to the official religions but is different in that it transmits a community style of life, with an ecstatically positive vision of spiritual and physical love; and is opposed for very fundamental reasons to the Civilization Establishment.

"It has taught that man's natural being is to be trusted and followed; that we need not look to a model or rule imposed from outside in searching for the center; and that in following the grain, one is being truly 'moral.'..."

"All this is subversive to civilization: for civilization is built on hierarchy and specialization. A ruling class, to survive, must propose a Law; a law to work must have a hook into the social psyche--and the most effective way to achieve this is to make people doubt their natural worth and in-nature of his own mind..."

"The Revolution has ceased to be an ideological concern. Instead, people are trying it out right now--communism in small communities, new family organization. A million people in America and another million in Europe. A vast underground in Russia, which will come out in the open four or five years hence, is now biding... Men, women and children--all of whom together hope to follow the timeless path of love and wisdom, in affectionate company with the sky, winds, clouds, trees, waters, animals and grasses--this is the tribe."

Yeah, you get quoting and you can't stop. Gary wrote that two years ago.

Gary himself places special importance on the final essay in the book, "Suwa-No-Se Island and the Banyan Ashram," because it deals with "an actual, concrete realization" of many of the ideas in the earlier writings.

The essay describes closely a summer (1967) he spent on a tiny island -- eight households, forty people--between Jyushu and the Ryujus. Getting down to the bone: "Daily work was clearing a new field for sweet-potato planting.

roof on an old brick campfire stove. Chinese style. (Our diet was basically brown rice and miso soup with potatoes and sweet potatoes and occasional watermelons or local bananas.) Also a lot of carpentry and construction work was continually going on, and a few hands every few days down to the village to join in on a village project, community trail-repair, or helping gut and flay an extra-large flying fish catch before it could spoil...

"In spearfishing we learned you must never choose a specific fish for a quarry; you must let the fish choose you, and be prepared to shoot the fish that will come into range. For some fish you must be one with the sea and consider yourself a fish among fish. But there was one large large and unpredictable variety (cobalt with a crescent-shaped tail) that digs the strange. When one of those was around I would change my mind and consider myself a freak and be out of place; in which case he will come to look at you out of curiosity.

"When you go down with the fishes minus your spear they treat you differently too..."

'TRY THEM IN THE STREETS'

by Stew Albert

People's Park may be a Pigs' Pen by the time you read this, Roger Heys has proclaimed his eternal loyalty to cement and soccer and his game begins with the motor of a bulldozer and the barrel of a mad pig's gun.

The creators of our Park wanted nothing more than to extend their spirits into a gracious green meandering plaything. They wanted to make beauty more than an empty word in a spray net commercial.

Our Park has been the greatest success in the history of New Berkeley. Thousands of sisters and brothers poured their flesh and sweat into the Roger Heys parking lot swamp and in an unfolding sod raised work to the level of art.

Each morning children come smiling into their Park and are instant equals. The People's Park is everybody's childhood dream--the big rock candy mountain in back of Telegraph Avenue.

On Wednesday the people of the Park met in a planned-to-be but still dry fish pond. The majority were longhairs of the street and university farmer-artists out to save their land. They had word Roger Heys was going to build a Berlin wall around their dream.

The mood was defense by all means necessary. Neither violence nor non-violence was ruled out or considered self-contradictory. Speakers stepped to the center of the human circle and the statements were almost always the same.

"We've got to build support in the community, campaign door to door, the Park is our candidate for President, it's wrong to exclude anyone."

Nobody except the Pigs want violence but nobody was preparing to go limp.

"The people should know that we have tried all peaceful means. We will use effective self-defense including taking the battle to the buildings and back alleys of the University. If they shit on our turf we will shovel it back to the source. It's going to be a long muthafucka's summer."

One pig lie was nailed. Heys claims we are unwilling to negotiate. The Park Commune elected representatives who will negotiate in Paris if that's the way Heys wants it.

All the hard line freaks are, as expected, set for war. The Park is their homeland and they are ready for its national defense. The strange trip is the straight cats who say:

"I have never been arrested or got cracked by a police club but I worked in the Parks, it's beautiful and I am willing to fight in the streets to save it."

The thought of a fence around the Park is grotesque. Is it meant to keep the children from the swings and sliding boards? Will the pigs electrify the fence? Will large savage dogs patrol the palm trees. Is Heys planning to shoot freedom fighters trying to escape into the Park?

The Academic Pigs hate our Park so much they are willing to replace it with an insane asylum.

Sometime ago the University decided to clear the street freemen out of Berkeley. A stoned longhair on the Avenue may think he is giving off good vibes. But that groovy warmth has never reached Chancellor Heys' office. This walking heel clicking computer looks out on Sprout Plaza and sees the carpet of freedom flying. His nice middle class kids are starting to look and act like human. The new culture does not stop at Bancroft and Telegraph. With Mamma and Pappa Babbit nagging at his earlobes, Heys must move against us.

The Park is our revolutionary Capitol, the best guarantee that we will stay in Berkeley. That is why Chancellor Heys would drop the H-Bomb if it was necessary.

The Pigs will not have an easy time of saturation bulldozing. Heys usually has the wild rebels divided from the liberals when he calls in the goons. Will he call the Peoples Park Neo-Fascist and its builders stormtroopers? The Hill liberals who allow us to play with their children know better.

The Peoples Park has blown the Universities cover. As they move against us the most naive liberal can see the Board of Regents planting both its feet firmly in humanities graveyard.

I really dig the Park. It's great fun to walk there in the morning and just rap with the sisters and brothers. Berkeley is a lot more funky, homey and liberated since we learned how to use shovels. Thousands of us will resist. If Roger Heys thinks he can destroy the Park and look grayhaired pretty on TV he is a fool. Both he and his edifice will pay for their perfidy.

I hope we save the Park without confrontation. But if it goes down, we will try the war criminals in the street; and we'll do it in the sweet silent summer night when, self assured, these enemies of something pleasant and good are fast asleep.

Benya, you rogue, you gangster, you half-crazed nut case, I applaud you. If it weren't for my disposition and present disinclination to worship heroes, I would worship you. In this, the people's hour of need, you have shown them -- I should say us -- the way.

Wandering in those darkening streets of an Eastern city, Benya realized that doubt had seized his heart, and it too was darkening. A tough guy, a big guy, an ox, this Benya, a wild man, stopped his working, and left his parents to moan and wail about the path their son had taken.

Was it not too late for him to find employment, to settle down and stop living off women, not to take odd jobs? And now at last, his mother saw him for what he was, through her red and watering eyes, clutching her snot rag to her chin, she would cry: "Oy, my Benya, what have you done to me? What will the neighbors think? You have become a gangster, a bandit, a mother's heart cries out to you Benya, behave yourself, be a good man like your father, make something of yourself!"

But Benya, as you must know, did not listen to a single word she spoke. He heard, but he did not listen. Harm his mother? Harm her any more than he had already? Never!

"Listen to me mommela," he would say, "I am what I am, and that's that."

"What's that?" she would say, and after this she would purse her lips and sit, like a rag doll scorned. "A mother's heart, you don't understand a mother's heart, Benya; if you did, you would find yourself a nice girl, a Jewish girl and you would not run around with all these shiksas."

Do I need to tell you that Benya didn't listen; that he only heard? Benya committed crime after crime, gathered much loot, and soon of brave and des- gathered Benya's mis- and laugh, his insane jokes, and most of all, those who cared to admit it, loved most his love of life. Benya never spoke of freedom, he only spoke of life.

You know of course that Benya had to fall. What he lived for did not go down with him when he fell. Benya had but two weaknesses, women and gambling. Gambling was his vocation, so he couldn't help that, and women his avocation, which he couldn't help either. A spy was sent to seek him out and win him over, and the slavemaster in their cunning choose well, they sent forth a blonde.

One day, having gained his confidence, she coaxed him, unwittingly, to cross a street with the light against him. "Cross at the green, and not in between," said officer Kelly, as he arrested Benya. The charge laid him was conspiring to commit a misdemeanor, jaywalking that is. Any kind of conspiracy in Benya's land was a felony.

Benya is behind bars now, the most they could give him was twenty years, or seven if he should get out on parole -- but you should live so long.

Maybe they have locked up Benya, maybe they have; but, people, it is only for a little while. Be impatient, people, for every day you are impatient you bring yourselves and Benya one step closer to freedom. Each night before you go to sleep, remember Benya, imprisoned behind stone and steel bars. Think of him looking up at his prison ceiling, as you look up at yours. Do not let the memories of his jokes fade, do not let the smile upon his face become dimmed in your heart, for Benya will walk again, and live.

"Dr. Schoenfeld: Here's an answer for the fellow who wants BARB classified interpreted. "B&D" is "Bondage and Domination/Discipline"—all the "S/M" (sado-masochistic) sex games. Now: lots of these sex-freaks invent their own terms. I recognize several of these terms as belonging to a cat who once, years ago, wrote to me and defined "Alabama Tailspin" and "Mason Thriller" and a few other ones. I may still have the letter in my files, but it's more likely the narcs copped it during one of my 3 busts, or else it was among the stuff that I still haven't found time to try and sort.

In any case, the descriptions were fairly graphic, tended to complex sexual routines, and--I'm fairly sure--have no relevance outside the originator's head. He DID get a number of female inquiries, though, which apparently was his motive.

In brief, then, the "meaning" of the terms is that he's looking to get laid.

Love & kisses
P.S. for the naive: Bondage; tie 'em up and play with them; anything goes; they can't get away; tease or torment. Domination: cf. --Story of O for male-dominant version. Discipline: heavy stuff--whipping, etc."

"Dear Dr. Schoenfeld: Reference is made to your article . . . in which you state that "Hensley's 17,000 ministers are draft exempt." I want to tell you that you are absolutely wrong, and that you are encouraging people to completely corrupt their file. We have probably handled something like one hundred fifty or more draft cases. In our view it is absolutely imperative that garbage like Hensley's ordinations be kept out of any draft file, where the registrant is seriously attempting to confront the draft system. The effect of filing something like Hensley's ordinations in your draft file is to demonstrate fraud. Since the test in many draft situations is merely "sincerity," Hensley's efforts to make himself a little dough can result in numbers of young men going to prison.

Recently I read that Selective Service Boards consider 100 hours a month as an active minister sufficient time spent to qualify for deferment from the draft.

Hensley is making some "dough" alright, but he's small potatoes next to ministers like Billy Graham. The other day I received a certificate and card making me a minister in the Universal Life Church for the cost of a six cents stamp.

Hensley is charged with issuing Doctor of Divinity (D.D.) degrees without a license from the State of California. For twenty dollars the Universal Life Church will send a packet containing ten lessons and a D.D. certificate. Perhaps some people could be duped by such a D.D. degree but this too is a centuries old tradition of the ministry.

I cannot urge you strongly enough to immediately retract the utter nonsense which you placed in your column which can only have the effect of screwing up large numbers of young men who don't know any better."

COMMENT: I don't doubt that Hensley's ordinations may be treated like garbage by draft boards. After all, worse treatment has been given to ministers through the centuries.

Recently I read that Selective Service Boards consider 100 hours a month as an active minister sufficient time spent to qualify for deferment from the draft.

Selective Service Boards would not be faced with these problems unless the American people knew they were involved in an unjust cause.

"Quite a while back a girl wrote her problem of severe pain during intercourse. Having been through this same problem myself I felt that your advice was singularly unhelpful, and finally decided to send some of my own along.

(1) Lubricate well as you can. Getting your boyfriend to eat you is a good idea.
(2) Take it slowly. Ease the cock in at your desired speed. Don't let anyone push you faster than you want to go at any time.
(3) Keep your legs fairly wide apart, but not to a point where it is a strain to keep them there.
(4) Relax. Relax. Relax. Sometimes this may mean thinking about something besides sex and what's happening at the moment.
(5) Part of it is just time, waiting till you get stretched out enough (or whatever happens). And Really, it does happen at last. Cheers."

I know there's a generation gap, because I've been told. But personally I have never been aware of it.

Sometimes people have commended me for my "ability to communicate with those who are younger." I don't feel it that way. This may sound like conceit, but to me it seems more like the younger generation has finally caught up with me.

I went to high school during the war years, when all my contemporaries were very uptight and earnest. When not thinking seriously about the Postwar World, they jitterbugged to the non-music of Freddie Martin. My taste for dark glasses, decadent poetry, and music with the beat didn't win many friends. They didn't have rock then, so I listened to Dixieland. But I was ripe and ready for rock, if it had been around.

In my college days it struck me that oral rendition of poetry was an art form worth cultivating, but nobody else seemed to think so. That was a decade before the Beats made poetry reading a recognized indoor entertainment.

And during that same period I was a Communist (and that was during the palmy days of HUAC and McCarthy). Later I put it down because I found that it wasn't me, but back then it was the only way of being revolutionary.

And as to the recent interest in astrology, witchcraft, and related subjects, I was intensively studying them when most of the present generation were in nursery school.

All my life I've been out of step with my generation, but now there's a generation that's more or less in step with me. And speaking of my life, I feel that it only began with the coming of this new generation.

Chronologically I am forty-two years old, but I don't feel middle-aged. Part of me feels 190 years old, and part feels to be just turning 21, and nothing in the middle. It's a hard combination to live with, and it can account for inconsistencies in my writing. If the 190-year-old Ratfink sees fit to launch some scathing criticisms of you young enthusiasts, please remember that the 21-year-old Ratfink is holding it in check, and hopefully in focus.

I may speak from the vantage point of 190, or the seeking point of 21, but never I hope from the smug "got-there" point of 55.

End of sermon. It's good to be living with a generation that responds to what I was responding to back when they were in cradles, and that nobody else dug in those days. And this is not a case of additional action over the pigs' refusal to re-open the investigation.

"The FBI has decided to make an investigation into the incident as a result of pressure from Congressman Cohelan," said attorney Montgomery.

"In addition to the criminal proceedings, we will file a $200,000 damage suit against the officers and the city within a week," she said.

"The ACLU has said that they are very interested in supporting these actions, particularly the criminal action," she added.

A 10-foot-high redwood tree has been donated to People's Park and dedicated to Frank Bartley by his friends, attorney Montgomery told BARB.

Attorney Montgomery asked that any witness to the shooting, which occurred at 7:20 p.m., Thursday, April 17, in the southeast corner of Aquatic Park, contact her office and leave a phone number. No names, please, she said, the lines are tapped.

pulling rank. It's more a case of feeling that at last I've come home.

I may not always dig your methods and your tactics, and I may say so. But while I may criticize, remember that it's coming from a man who is primed from a long way back, and by a long devious route, to understand what you're trying to do.

and then (Horseshit Magazine is great) she drew out my penis and looked at it. Her mouth opened (got Horseshit) and I let my eyes roam over the lush curves of her body. "Good God!" she said. (you can't live without Horseshit) "Aw, I know," she said. "I've had cases like you before. You've got a copy of Horseshit Magazine at home, haven't you?" (Horseshit is good for you) "Well, yes," I said. Then she said, "And the girls all come over and read it and then they go wild. I know." (Horseshit forever) "I've got all the issues of Horseshit," I said. "Oh my God," she said as her hips began to move. "All the issues!" (Horseshit readers make it) "Horseshit #3 has got Dirty Pictures in it." I said. "Stop! Stop!" she said as she unzipped her skirt. (This has been a subliminal message. Thank you for your attention.)

Dear Sir,

FRIDAY, 1969

I'll get to the point immediately! I deal in, shall I say, Special "sexy type movies" for free thinking adults. I have carefully selected (2) men and (3) luscious young girls who have proven themselves to be absolutely unashamed and very cooperative in front of my movie camera. I will not go into complete details about my films, this you must experience for yourself.

THE FOLLOWING FILMS ARE AVAILABLE FOR YOUR PRIVATE PLEASURE AT HOME:

FILM NUMBER ONE---- "DON'T STOP, IT FEELS SO GOOD"---Shows two cuties enjoying themselves, without the aid of their male friends.

FILM NUMBER TWO---- "THE VIBRATOR"---Nothing like it AND I MEAN NOTHING LIKE IT! I SHOW ONE OF THE MOST RESPONSIVE WOMEN I HAVE EVER HAD THE PLEASURE OF PHOTOGRAPHING.

FILM NUMBER THREE-- "SHE BLEW MY MIND"---One comment.....A MUST!

FILM NUMBER FOUR-- "THE WRONG SIDE OF THE BED"---The sensuality of this interracial film will surpass your most erotic fantasy.

Now let me get one thing straight These films are not the OLD pin-up, nudist stag type that have been around since 1947. No sir, my films are brand new and fresh. I go out of my way to hand pick quality girls that not only can act and react in different situations, that these films lend themselves to, but they are the most attractive ones I can lay my hands on. Most important, my girls love and really enjoy doing this type of film for you....you can see it in their faces. They become excited and stimulated, not just bored doing a job. One last footnote:

Unlike some films, all the girls agreed not to wear masks except for the first few feet in film No. (3) and the reason was justified because it was pertinent to the story. However, in 90% of the film you do see the girls faces. All female participants are completely nude, virtually all the time, throughout the films.

I certify that I am 21 years or older. Sign Here _____

Social Intercourse

Social Intercourse

ARE YOU HUNGRY FOR THE REAL THING...?

If you are, forget what's now being shown in some public theatres, and the stuff you can see on the open news-stand (and some of it's pretty hot). I may be prejudiced, but my film beats anything you've seen.

Let me tell you how it happened... My boyfriend and I and my girlfriend were in the middle of making a REAL movie. We were busy playing tongue-and-finger games with each other in bed, and so much pleasure was generated, we nearly went out of our minds. Pearl (my girlfriend) and Fred began to quiver and gasp as they tried every position they could think of. Suddenly they slid into one of the most fantastic ORAL sequences I've ever seen. I got so excited, I had to dive in myself... I just couldn't hold myself back...

You understand, I can't go into any more details about my film. You must experience it for yourself.

You can relive all of this with me, in this personal adult film...

Interested? Let me hear from you. Jan
