Governor Ronald Reagan
State of California
Capitol Building
Sacramento, California 95814
Honored Governor:

There were many thousands like myself who voted for you, after careful consideration of the Brown Machine, realizing that only the passage of time would prove how capable and sincere you were and what favorable effects you would have upon our state.

the affairs of State. Your actions with respect to the continuing multitude of problems all adequately demonstrate you haven't the ability to responsibly discharge your duties. You can only be congratulated for your consistency and complete disregard for the feelings of the responsible majority. If the "silent majority" came forward, Governor, it would be with a rope!

Nothing will prevent my complete devotion of time, money, sweat and influence in insuring that you never again hold ANY office in this State of California. I only regret that we must face, day after day, the results of our past indiscretion.

Very truly yours,

onthefence

by Barbara

If you want to off a pig, off him. Don't rap about it.
If you want to tear down the fence, tear it down. Don't rap about it.
If you have to rap about it, if you need 35,000 people to do it with you, then you're not ready to do it.

Then you should shut up.
There are pigs out there, wild animals circling People's Park Annex, waiting for an opening, a breaking point. While we stand inside doubting each other. The fence is still up and we are frustrated. We sneer at each other. Liberal! Pacifist! Pig Lover! We split into factions and blame anyone, everyone but ourselves. We forget that all of us, ALL of us are the Park.

When we worked in our Park we did not ask each other for a loyalty oath. Why ask for one now?

We demand, we fight the Establishment for the right to act and think and say what we please. Then we look around at each other and narrow our eyes thoughtfully and begin our own eliminations. We begin cutting away those people who don't agree with all our personal ideas. And then there will be yet another Revolution to follow this one.

We were together until the parade. We fought-- each in his own way-- until the parade. And we won-- or would have won-- if we had taken those 35,000 people and turned them loose on the City of Berkeley. Not to smash windows, not to destroy property, but to follow the same tactics we had used in the weeks before the parade.

There is room for all of us in this Revolution. Because some of us are revolutionaries and some are pacifists and some are flower children and some are still trying to decide what they are, we can strike at all levels and on all fronts at the same time.

Our Park was beautiful. Each of us gave what we had. Each rock, each flower was important. The loss of any one thing was the loss of all of us.

We are fighting the pigs, Heyns, Reagan, Nixon. Not each other. Power to the People! Power to ALL the People!

upthefence

by Diane

It is absolutely imperative that the fence remains UP. I've got a few reasons for saying this. Firstly, it is necessary to keep the military, Burns guards, pigs, and lobotomized individuals fenced in.

We all recognize the need to keep the insane elements of society away from the saner elements in order that the saner elements may remain pure. Therefore, People's Park, now so-called Fort Defiance is the perfect looney bin for all the castrated, impotent, mindless morons previously free to roam the free earth. UP THE FENCE!

Practically speaking, if the robots of law and order must have a place in which to play what better place is there than a fenced in dungheap mudhole? This leaves all the surrounding area free for free people. The spineless guard could not make it over to the Annex last weekend to curtail the celebration because they found themselves fenced in, up the creek, with bayonets up their hemorrhoid asses and therefore, could not bust up our liberated territory.

Someone lost the key to the looney bin, and curfew was set. Since it is impossible to fence in the millions of free citizens, they had to fence themselves in. In a magnificent gesture they built their own concentration camp, with pay phones and pay toilets; and if they recognize their need to be locked up, who am I to argue with them? Therefore, UP THE FENCE.

As a lover of the underdog, the ugly, the starving, generally sympathetic with grotesquerie in all its manifestations and equally responsive to perversity, I say, I dig the fence. It is a monument to ugliness which the greatest artists among us could not have erected. Andy Warhol creates only beauty with Campbell's Soup.

I go everyday to look at that fence with more interest than I've ever had in any museum. I groove on the metal, the symmetry, the perfection of robot erections. Power to the People, UP THE FENCE.

Divide and Rule Never so Cruel

Dear Editor:

This writer was a Berkeley businessman and resident about twenty years ago. I am now approaching the ripe age of our supposed three score and ten.

On memorial day I decided to find out for myself what in hell is going on up there (I had long since located in another community. I was very fond of Berkeley and left it reluctantly for business reasons.)

On the day of the march, I arrived about 11 a.m. and parked my car on lower Shattuck Ave. and proceeded to walk to the disputed park. My first impression along the way was one of a quiet, peaceful town enjoying a sunny holiday rest from work. When I reached the vicinity of Dwight Way I was shocked by the incongruous sight of squads of helmeted police, armed to the teeth, complete with what appeared to be bullet proof vests, symbolic boots and snarling countenance.

I decided, before proceeding to the park, that I would go to the starting point of the march in order to mingle with the participants to observe and listen so that I could make an intelligent appraisal. What I saw and heard will stay with me until the day I die. It was like coming to oasis in the midst of a barren desert. These were the most beautiful people I have ever encountered in a group in my entire life.

Never a harsh word. Everyone minding his own business and allowing everyone else to do the same. Yet a heartwarming togetherness that transcended the antagonisms between people which I had observed every day over the years. Nowhere did I find what I had been told to expect-- dirty, contemptible, anarchists bent on destruction and evil. On the contrary, I found clean, sensitive, lovable young people concerned about a world gone mad with hate, wholesale human slaughter and degradation so that a few may wallow in their greed.

Heading home from Berkeley, I tried to understand the vilification of these wonderful people and came to this conclusion: it is the age old trick of divide and rule cunningly devised by cruel hypocrites to serve their selfish ends. Race against race, man against woman, nation against nation-- the examples are endless. And now the most heinous offspring against child. This is the reality behind the myth of the generation gap. Our glorious youth are the only hope for the human race. I plead with MY sick generation: DO NOT STAND IN THEIR way. A Senior also concerned.

TIME MARCHES ON

THURSDAY, May 29th. Chancellor Heyns held a press conference at noon at which he stated that the "only solution" was to lease the eastern portion of the Park lot to the city "for park purposes." The fence, however, couldn't come down lest it jeopardize "delicate discussions".

Earlier in the day a People's Park Corporation was formed as a non-profit corporation. Straights and streets are equally represented on the board.

At 6:30 PM, just before a City Council meeting, Mayor Wallace Johnson held a press conference at which he came out against the proposed lease.

The City Council met at 7 PM and granted a permit for the Friday march, changing the route significantly from a "converging" march to a "walk-by".

After several hours the council passes the lease resolution by 5-4. Councilman Swingle had changed his vote.

FRIDAY, May 30. People had been coming in to Berkeley all night, and the "Insurrection City" at People's Park Annex was occupied all night. Around 11 AM thousands of marchers had assembled on the two square blocks.

The march began after several speeches, and an estimated 30,000 people flowed over the route to the fence around People's Park. Several trucks carrying sod, trees and flowers accompanied the march.

At the fence a carpet of sod was laid down and hundreds of flowers were woven into the fence. Despite shotgun-carrying Blue Meanies on the rooftops and concerning barbed wire blocking off side streets, trees and flowers were planted around the periphery of the fence. Some people even dug holes in the paving with picks for a tree.

Most of the marchers never got beyond the park area, but dispersed after the festivities. A festive atmosphere prevailed.

Later that evening a wild celebration was held in the Annex, lasting all night. Noise complaints were long and loud from neighbors, and cops wouldn't go in to the crowd. Rapes were reported in Berkeley's sensation-mongering daily.

SATURDAY was quiet, with a celebration at the Park Annex which was not as wild as Friday's.

SUNDAY was quiet, with work progressing on the Annex as it had for the past several days.

MONDAY, June 2 saw the statement by Governor Reagan that the state of emergency, in effect since February, was to be lifted as of 6 AM Tuesday and the Guard withdrawn. Reagan also commended the cops in his statement for "showing extreme restraint".

Monday night the guard was withdrawn and the fenced-in People's Park was patrolled by several rent-a-cops. Bulldozers started to work at once on the Western half of the Field.

TUESDAY, June 3 was marked by a City Council meeting at which the cops were also commended for their actions (or lack of them) during the Friday march. Three councilmen abstained. A mass meeting was held Wednesday night at Longellow School, at which a mass rally and torchlight parade were set for Friday.

The fence around the Park was reinforced and floodlights were installed, giving the area a prison-compound feeling.

KILL FOR VOTES

Dear Sirs,

Rightwinger Reagan, the Berkeley cops, the National Guard, shotguns shooting people in the back, killing one youth.

Meanwhile, in L.A., Negro Bradley is running for mayor against rightwinger Yorty.

Get the plot? Use the cops to stir up conservative fears in the voters, so the conservatives come out better in the elections. What matters it, if a few young people get killed -- as long as it helps bring votes to the right-wingers!?

Okay, Yorty has won; now, Reagan can call off the National Guard...(until the next election, ie).

You have my permission to print any or all of this, if you want to. (I think it may help.) Yours truly,

Bruce D. MacGregor

ARMIES OF THE NIGHT TO BRING FENCE DOWN

by Steve Haines

"The Armies of the Night!" could be the name of the latest tactics in the struggle to bring down the fence.

Mass street actions along this line begin with a torchlight march tonight (Friday) to People's Park on Dwight.

A massive demonstration Saturday outside the Regents' committee meeting is also scheduled. The strategy was set at a mass meeting at Longfellow School, 1500 Derby St. in Berkeley Wednesday night. Meanwhile, development will continue on People's Park Annex at Hearst and Grant.

Tonight's march will begin with a rally at 8 PM in Sproul Plaza, complete with rock bands and the Mime Troupe.

Other tactics include daily promenades around the park at twilight and continue development of People's Park Annex at Hearst and Grant in the spirit of People's Park.

On June 16, there will be a rally in front of the Veterans Memorial building on Center Street where Judge Mario Barsotti will hear motions to dismiss charges against 482 people rounded up in the mass bust two weeks ago.

"We can't let our people get demoralized by forgetting them," Paul Glusman, a street activist netted in the mass bust, told the Longfellow meeting.

All of these activities will lead up to a major Bay Area rally on the UC Berkeley campus June 20, when the Regents meet here at the State Building on University and Oxford to decide the fate of People's Park.

The major decision coming out of the Wednesday meeting at Longfellow one to adopt the People's Park Corporation, with 31 directors chosen by drawing names out of a hat.

The Longfellow meeting was the smallest and most divided of the mass meetings held during the People's Park crisis. About 300 people packed the small gym floor as the meeting opened at 8. By 11, only 125 remained.

Most of the meeting was devoted to arguments for and against the non-profit corporation set-up to give the park people legal status and provide for liability insurance against injury or damage. The initial set of 31 directors would only hold office for one month, at which time a mass meeting would be held to elect new directors.

Two basic points were made against the corporation idea. First, many of the directors chosen out of the hat, like SF Chronicle Executive Editor Scott Newhall didn't help build the park or help defend it in the streets.

Second, there is no need for a corporate structure at People's Park until we get the park and unless it's the kind of corporation that anyone can join by signing up.

These points were argued by Frank Bardecke, Jacquie Rosenbaum, Al Kitt and others.

Speakers for the non-profit corporation idea included John Read, Mike Delacour and Art Goldberg.

When it came to a vote, there were 120 for the corporation and 110 against.

Similar splits over tactics added to the confused, discordant sense of the meeting. This is a sharp departure from earlier meetings. Several people said that it was just a fit of depression following the Memorial Day week-end successes.

In other Park developments, the Alameda County Peace and Freedom Party has announced that they will seek a grand jury indictment of the pig who killed James Rector.

A 48-hour vigil, which began Thursday noon, will continue today on the south lawn of UC Chancellor Heyns house on campus.

Meanwhile, the People's Park fence, has added features-electric bulbs to light up six Rent-a-Fuzz who went on duty after the National Guard pulled out Tuesday morning, and clipped resistant wires to hold the fence up.

What Did We Forget?

by Stew Albert

The great march was a mixed bag of beauty, defeat, triumph and foolishness. Ronald Reagan was unable to scare us off the street. The handful of conspirators turned out to be 35,000. But somewhere in the front of the march people forgot what it was all about. They gave flowers to the pigs and changed "we love the Blue Meanies." I can barely believe it but it sounded like a lot of people were trying hard to really mean it.

The opening rally at Insurrection City was tied up in political analysis and pacifism. There was nothing to raise the courage or confidence of the people. It was difficult for most to hear what was being said and when we did it was either boring or a tactical tranquilizer. We were supposed to move in groups behind rock bands and green-helmeted monitors. The bands were good but the monitors were too few and a lot of the marchers wondered who were those people in the funny green hats?

There was something great about being in the streets with 35,000 good people, to smoke some grass and forget about the shotguns and helicopters, to dance to the groovy sounds and to realize Eldridge was right when he said there were "more people than pigs."

I was really flying until we hit Oxford and caught sight of a line of pigs with flowers in their barb wire hair. Cheers went up as if the pigs were now pointing their guns at Roger Heyns and calling us Comrade. The sadists who murdered James Rector were now okay because they took our flowers and forced their lips into a smile.

Some brothers tried shouting something angry at the pigs--but the liberals shut them up saying "We must not antagonize the police."

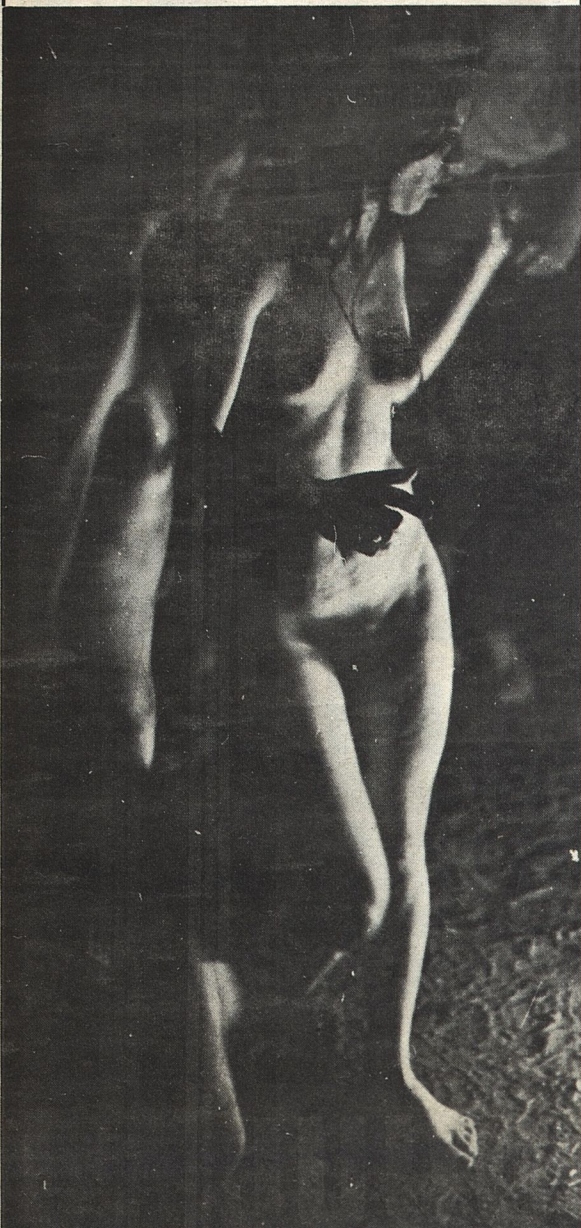

We reached a point of turning left in the direction of the Park. Some of the march leaders wanted to split the march, breaking from the pig-approved route and attempting to surround the park for a fence-shaking exorcism. Some of us headed down the side street but walked into a wall of pigs.

I learned later that the wall was originally built by liberals who called the pigs to replace them. These liberals are so scared of Sheriff Madigan they have him walking around in their brains barking orders.

When we got to the fence, it was very crowded and I found myself trampling on the newly-laid street sod. Someone broke concrete and planted a tree, there were flowers in the fence, and barbed wire next to the Shakespear Book Store and plenty of camera clicking tourists. It was a very circus sight.

After awhile the pigs began to order us back to Insurrection City. They were helped by the over-cooperative medics who decided that the best way to fight the pigs is to do their job. There were a couple of arrests and some shoving, but the pigs had things under total control so they played it safe.

THAT RIGHTEOUS FRIDAY NIGHT

by Country Girl

Friday night was Power To The People night at Insurrection City. A no-host freak-out, with BART, Frank Madigan, and the National Guard as sponsors.

Invitations were issued by Reagan, Heyns, and Alameda pigs with shotguns.

On the previous night, we had gathered had gotten high at the Park Annex with our heads at a "eat drink and be merry for tomorrow we die" mentality.

Then Friday afternoon we marched through Berkeley, past clubs, bayonets, and concertina barbed wire, in the memory of James Rector.

So Friday night was the celebration for the living. A stoned thankfulness that there had been no massacre.

We were all so fucking high on what was happening that the pigs were scared shitless to move on us; the bravest of the "brave" cruised by, every couple of hours, staring vacantly in the other direction.

People were stoned. There was righteous acid. And fine grass. A mysterious offering of twenty cases of wine.

People fucked. "Public copulation," it was referred to the next morning in the Berkeley Gazette. Bonfires burned symbolically, flames often leaping for twenty feet or more into the pitch-black night.

Music was supplied by everyone. Guitars, banjos, harps, flutes, winejugs, kazooos, and a few bands.

The beat was kept up by the Restless Natives, the Black BART Gang, and assorted speed freaks, whose pounding on the gratings adjacent to Hearst St. kept on until near-dawn, and could be heard as muted thunder six blocks away.

Live entertainment, (besides the balling) was supplied by beautiful chicks and guys, stripped down and paraded on the shoulders of brothers and sisters in the crowd, firelight flickering on their bodies. Flames often leaping for twenty feet or more into the pitch-black night.

Cars travelling in the area were cheerfully accosted for spare dope, beer, wine, etc.

Publicity was handled by KPFA, whose microphone was hanging out of a tree in the vicinity of the celebration.

Bad vibes were promoted the next morning courtesy of the Berkeley Gazette (screaming scarlet two-inch headlines read WILD PARTY IN ANNEX).

MARCHERS DEFY MAD DOG MADIGAN IN NOONDAY SUN

by Rick Heide

Never before had it been so clear. Bayonets and balloons. Sirens and singing. Gunmen and grass. All in crazed but crystal clear counterpoint. Not a collage. There was a real definition here with real boundaries of barbed wire and fear and law of the land and cyclone fence.

That's why they came, so many thousands of them. From all over the state and beyond—even students from France. To see if it was really true and to affirm which side they were on. The "authorities" said 10,000, KPFA said 25,000, the Associated Press said 30,000. Pick one. It was a whole lot of people.

The day before headlines blared that Madigan would again use Double-O loaded shotguns "if necessary." But the symbolism of Park vs. Police State was too strong to be threatened away.

They came in a peaceful, wistful, almost worshipful way and marched up to the park in what seemed a never-ending pilgrimage. Led by cycles, they came mostly on foot. But some piled on sod-bearing trucks, some young ones were carried, and at least one man rode a wheelchair.

The march started at the People's Park Annex at Grant and Hearst. Before it arrived, Alameda County's heavily armed deputies cleared the street of on-lookers near the original People's Park.

The people complied quickly as Sheriff Madigan's men held the street. When the marchers neared, though, they surrendered it. They had just wanted to remind us of their power over our lives.

There were other reminders. Helicopters flying overhead all day. Even a Browning Automatic Rifle (B.A.R.) was photographed in the possession of the Guard. It's said it can fire 400 rounds per minute. Pigs on rooftops held the highground with guns, cameras, and radios.

Yet the feeling of liberation was strong. People knew they might be shot. Madigan had already proved he was capable of ordering a massacre. And they were there, anyway. When the rooftop cops smiled, some yelled up, "You better smile."

All manner of men and women made up that swollen stream of people. Deacons and dandies, Freaks and Freddie's, Grandmothers and would-be Gurus. Young girls with bouncing tits and hips that made your tired body come alive.

Freedom, sunshine, love of the earth. All were much in evidence. Men and women took off their upper clothing to bathe their bodies in the air and rays.

The marchers brought things of value besides themselves. A large wooden cross, a guitar, a big picture of Gandhi, flags of Anarchy, the U.S.A., Revolution, and Psychedelia. People handed out flowers, clamchowder, water all over your body, beer, weed, coke, lemonade, water in cups, wine. (Yes, it was a warm day.) And even more flowers.

Many paused as they passed the Park. Most commented on the barbed wire with mild surprise. And, if they had one, they'd go stick a flower into the fence or the barbed wire, which even went across the grounds of the nearby Christian Science Church. The men of law and order were not about to have their fortress surrounded. Only the side facing Dwight was open to non-military personnel.

"Hey brother, what are you doing over there?" a Black woman shouted at a lone Black soldier. He pretended not to notice her.

"You're on the wrong side, brother. You stand out too much," she shouted again. He turned away nervously. "Come on. Join the people."

Portable parks were set up on Dwight, watered, and enjoyed as rock music boomed out of friendly houses. Holes were dug in the pavement to plant trees. Many stayed but many others walked on up Piedmont, where fraternity folk sunned themselves on rooftops. They ignored the benevolent chancellor's invitation to corral them in cavernous Memorial Stadium and straggled on down Hearst back to the starting point.

Those who stayed on Dwight started yet another People's Park, about a block from the original. We dug furiously, knowing they would soon drive us from the area but determined to make a start, as our brothers and sisters chanted Hare Krishna. They did. And we left.

Soon everyone was back at the Annex. A party destined to last several days was in progress. What kind of party? Typical comments were "Righteous" and "I've never seen anything like it."

It had been a beautiful day. Lots of love. Beauty everywhere. The heavens smiled and even some of the pigs smiled too as they accepted flowers for their helmets. A love-in in an occupied city. Only in America.

But at day's end the fence was still up.

Ames Misses

by Kathy

"Our reason for being here was not because of a dispute over a piece of vacant real estate," Major General Glenn C. Ames, commander of the National Guard troops states this week, "but because on last May 15th, law enforcement had broken down in the City of Berkeley."

Ames made the above statement, along with several others, during a press conference at the Berkeley police station, in which he announced the troop pull-out of Berkeley.

"On that afternoon, (May 15th), and early evening, law enforcement was being challenged..." he continued, "Single officers and even groups of officers were attacked, beaten, and in some cases disarmed."

It was in this "atmosphere," according to Ames, that the National Guard moved in to occupy Berkeley.

The objectives of the "enemy," the Berkeley militants, General Ames described as "1. Reoccupation of so-called People's Park #1; 2. Closing down the University; and 3. Closing down the Berkeley Business District."

At an estimated cost of over a million dollars General Ames stated that "the National Guard and law enforcement agencies have prevented the attainment of any of these objectives."

When questioned about the helicopter gas attack on Sproul Plaza two weeks ago, Ames defended the decision to gas, stating that the field commander had felt that his troops were "in danger."

"Steel magazine racks were being thrown off buildings at the troops," he protested. "Part of the dissidents were actually moving on the guardsmen."

But when asked by newsmen the location of the supposed "attacks" on his troops, Ames dodged making a definite reply. "I am not familiar with the area," he said evasively.

However, Ames was forced to admit that the "helicopters had been aloft, ready to perform their mission, for some time."

(Note: this reporter was aware of that; having been warned at least an hour beforehand by reliable sources that it would happen at the time it did. The army had planned on testing the gassing method at 2 pm that Tuesday, no matter what might have been going on.)

During the General's conference announcing the troop pull-out, he also emphasized the "sacrifices" of "his boys."

"They knew why they were here," Ames said staunchly, "and because of this their morale was surprisingly high at all times."

Ames had no comment concerning the troops who split from the ranks, the guards prohibited from flashing peace signs, or the hash cookies and LSD in the oranges incidents, as well as those threatened for reading the BARB.

Now that the guard is gone, who is going to keep the fence up around "the University's property?"

General Ames gave that honor to the local pigs, stating that he hoped that the "good intentions of city officials, University administrators, student and community would produce solutions to these problems."

The solution, as General Ames sees it, is "somehow these hard core militants, anarchists, and terrorists, must be separated from the campus and immobilized, so that a great University can get on with its business of being a great University."

Without its greatest scholars?

JUST LIKE EICH

"Let Berkeley mind its own business," Supervisor Robert Hanon barked according to the straight media at Tuesday's Alameda County Board of Supervisors meeting.

That's what happened right after another Supervisor, Joseph Bort made a motion on Berkeley's City Council's request for an investigation of brutality at Santa Rita. There wasn't even a second to his motion.

Bort is the only one of the Board who has visited the concentration camp recently.

"The dissidents would have stomped the guards if they had them alone," a supervisor named Murphy said. Implying, of course, it was OK for the guards to stomp the prisoners first.

The Supervisors felt outside investigation would only duplicate the work of Sheriff "Mad Dog" Madigan who promised to check out the "inconsistencies" in the camp.

That's like allowing Eichmann to investigate the "inconsistencies" at Dachau.

GUARD JUMPS FENCE

Among the 35,000 marchers in the street Friday was an off-duty National Guardsman from the occupying forces.

He had been turned on by the friendly atmosphere of Berkeley and marched in wholehearted support of the people's cause. After the march he joined other soldiers in the 49th support company on the other side of the fence.

The soldier, who called himself Bill, said he had been a political when he joined the Guards three years ago, but since then has changed his views considerably.

As a student at SF State he joined the walkout against Haya-kawa when he saw the Tac Squad brutalize students without provocation. Bill also became more bitter about the Vietnam war when he saw some of his friends come back maimed, or not come back at all.

When he was called by Raging Ronnie to come and occupy Berkeley he expected the people to greet him with hostility. He was surprised they didn't hate him, only what he was doing. The people who were down on him were the officers.

When he took cookies from some chicks, an officer told him it was a court martial offense to take good from the enemy. "What enemy?" Bill asked in amazement. The officer pointed to the young Americans in the street.

Later other officers warned him again not to be too friendly. Bill said many of the Bay Area Guards were relaxed and favored the People's Park. The ones who were confused and hostile were those from the valley, he noted.

During his occupation of the city Bill saw who the real enemy was. Daily he overheard the cops inside the Berkeley Police Headquarters talking about provoking a confrontation. The pigs were the only ones who were eager to bust some heads, Bill said.

DON'T TAKE THE GOBI FOR EDEN

by Kathy

At last the people in Berkeley have their own turf. People's Park Annex #1, at Hearst and Grant, otherwise known as Insurrection City, BART Park, or Gobi Desert #2. It's what you make it.

A number of problems, however, have cropped up in and surrounding the Annex. It is not all peace, love, and good vibes. The far-out freak-out that went on for four days there Memorial Day weekend was marred by a lot of little bummers.

Like rip-offs. Like a rape or two. Like a few split skulls. And, as should have been expected with a happening like last weekend that attracted thousands of people, a lot of little punks, burn-artists, and fucked-up kids also made the scene.

The Annex is not the same as People's Park. It was not meant to be, and never can be.

The Annex was created as a war tactic. It was conceived and seized as a military move by the street masses, in a state of emergency, in an occupied territory. Later on, tents went up and the "ground people" moved into join the ranks.

The original People's Park was a community effort at making something beautiful and permanent, a Garden of Eden in a blacktop jungle.

BART doesn't deserve shit for so graciously letting us borrow the land down there. BART fucked up that area; BART, in the name of Progress, created the barren strip of land that stretches for blocks in west Berkeley.

BART should have supplied the sod that the people have laid down in Gobi Desert #2, in an attempt to lessen the swirling clouds of dust that move endlessly down the strip.

The Annex has got potential; it's already taken shape as a good neighborhood recreational spot with some beautiful little gardens dotting the landscape, if it can be properly called such.

But the community on Telegraph Avenue shouldn't have to walk 16 blocks to find a People's Park. Dwellers on the Ave are starved for a patch of grass under a tree that they can call their own. Children in the Telegraph district need a place to play that isn't a dust-bowl a mile away.

Insurrection City is over. Most of the marchers have gone home. L.C. served its purpose, it was a heavy, powerful scene.

Now, the Annex could be improved on as a loosely organized neighborhood project, for the people in that area that it serves.

But it should not be taken as a substitute for People's Park #1. Too many bodies were beaten, busted, bayoneted, gassed, and fired upon to make the distant Gobi Desert a fair trade for the Garden of Eden.

STANFORD PREX MUM ON S.R.I.

Kenneth Pitzer, Stanford president, has spent most of his time lately trying to keep the college open. Students have occupied several buildings, demanding the school take itself out of the war business.

Sunday Pitzer spoke at the Mills College graduation. His topic was "Humanistic Values in a Technological Society." Since the Stanford Research Institute works on counter-insurgency methods for the government, I expected an interesting talk.

Yet Pitzer never even MENTIONED S.R.I. in his over-long address. Though he appeared quite nervous (probably expecting the disruption he must feel he deserves), the crowd was quiet and polite. Too polite. We heard all his irrelevant pieties without so much as a loud "Bullshit!"

TOMMY SMOTHERS FIRST 'HAIR' THEN THE AIR

Tommy Smothers came to town this week. Bouncing up after CBS-TV put him down, he's now one of the producers of "Hair." Rich people and stars capitalizing and making money--it follows.

But then I heard someone say, "The air waves belong to the people!" Tommy Smothers was the one that was saying it so I gave a listen. I explained to him that people were interested in what happened to his show.

And he explained to me, "It's a bigger thing now than the show. It's a question of whether the people have access to the media. Look who they put on television for black people--Julia and Bill Cosby. That's bullshit."

William Burroughs writes about junk. You have to write about what you know. He knows about junk. Through exploring the junk world he comes to the point of showing that the media must be freed from the greed-creeps--everything is going to continue to be fucked up as long as the people don't have complete access to the media and information.

As Tommy Smothers says it,

"If the people could get complete access to the media, we could turn this place upside down."

Tommy is optimistic about his fight to open media. "Look at that woman down in Alabama who refused to go to the back of the bus. Things looked bad then, but look where we are now."

The Smothers Brothers seem to have gotten into the thick of it and are currently waging two suits against CBS. They've also been talking to some of the top FCC dudes, and have found a couple who are willing to help.

As far as TV plans go (if you're interested): the Smothers Brothers are going to do 3 or 4 specials on some network--not CBS. The first one is scheduled to be on in maybe September. The specials may originate in San Francisco.

But right now Tommy Smothers is a producer of "Hair," a Broadway musical due to open at the American Contemporary Theater August 29. "Hair" is a production about freaks, dope and rock and roll--you know, about life. There's dirty songs, nudity, de-

MOTHERS SMOTHERS?

"The air waves belong to the people. The networks think that they own them and can do what they want with them, but they're wrong."

The screwy half of the Smothers says that he's going to push this thing "to the point where everybody has access to the media."

He believes that one of the reasons that things are so fucked up today is because the people are misinformed. "It's like those polls. The poll companies send out a questionnaire. The people who fill out the questionnaires don't have the necessary information to judge from. The politicians get the results of the polls and base their campaigns and policies on those polls. Like McCluhan says, we function in an environment of information. If we're misinformed then things go wrong."

Tom Smothers is well aware of the power of the media. "They can take someone that you've never heard of and make him a household name in 13 weeks. They can take a nobody and make a top political candidate out of him in six months."

monstrations and a souvenir booklet that gives the sign of everyone in the production.

So "Hair" had a news conference with strobes, rose and blue filters on the lights, jasmine incense up the ass and beads.

Tickets are going to be expensive.

But Tommy Smothers explains that "Hair is to show people who don't have any hair necessarily--so that they'll get some."

He seems to think that "Hair" will be able to communicate to the straights a bit what we and our lives are about. I hope it does. It seems that most straight people won't really listen to something unless they have to pay to hear it--so maybe it will.

The parts for "Hair" are now being cast from San Francisco people. It was explained to me that the show is so flexible that it always takes on the character of the town that it's being done in. I don't know what "Hair" is going to do for San Francisco, but maybe San Francisco can do something for "Hair."

And maybe Tommy Smothers can do something for us. --dn

FRANCK PLEA FOR REAR GUARD TO BACK TROOPS

Dear Editor:

What would one say about an Army which led its troops into battle and then withdrew all the officers and NCOs? This, I think, is what the People's Park Movement has done.

It has given great, even brilliant, leadership to the struggle for the park, in the streets, on the campus, in the city, and on the media. But in the course of this struggle over 900 people have been arrested, and are now being hassled through the courts. Repeated court appearances, hassles with bail-bondsmen and lawyers, long trials, the real danger of heavy jail sentences, all are casualties which this movement has suffered.

So far the leadership of the movement, and most of the activists who don't have a personal stake, (i.e., they were not busted) have paid no attention to this struggle. They have not done anything to help the defendants organize; they have not raised the demand for amnesty in a forceful way, in short, they have not related to the struggle which is starting in the courts as an extension of their fight.

Many leaders have said to this, "Yes, that's right, but there are more urgent things to do now." It is a little like an Army which says that infantry and tanks are so essential that they don't detail men to bring up the field hospital, the evacuation helicopter, or even ammunition supplies.

A great deal can be done with the kinds of criminal cases we are now facing, but what the lawyer does inside the courtroom is only the surface of the iceberg. A great many decisions are about to be made. Some cases have been dropped by the prosecution, charges have been reduced in others. Juries will be coming in to decide the cases of many people.

All of these things can be affected by the climate of opinion. There are thousands of potential witnesses who need to be interviewed. The city council, which is trying to calm things down, must be faced with the demand that it request all charges be dropped.

To compel people who were herded into Santa Rita like cattle and then treated like the inmates of a Nazi concentration camp to sit through endless days of arraignments, where they have to wait up to four hours to stand up before a judge who then tells them to come back for more the next week, is indensible treatment, yet this is what is going on with the mass arrest defendants, without a peep of protest from anyone.

When a movement has 900 people going through the courts in a demoralizing fashion, feeling that they have been abandoned by the movement, when days and days and a great deal of money are being absorbed by their cases, and no support from the community is being organized, a large core of activists is bound to be diverted from the fight, and many more will be scared off. This movement has to recognize that its health and vitality, and in an important way, its integrity, are involved in the question of whether it is going to come to the support of the people who have been arrested during the demonstrations and the state of emergency. So far a small core of volunteers, law students and lawyers have been trying valiantly to struggle with this situation. Huey Newton would be on death row today if the Black Panther Party had left his fate in the hands of his lawyers alone.

HUN JAILS SUPERJOEL

One minute of shouting, stomping and anarchy was observed by the mass meeting Wednesday night at Longfellow School in honor of SuperJoel.

Sometimes known as Joel Tornabene, the practicing anarchist had been put away earlier in the day; his probation had been revoked.

Alleged to have cut the People's Park fence, SuperJoel was hauled up before Judge George Brunn known by local lawyers as (Atilla the Hun) who piously sentenced him to serve a forty-five day suspended sentence for a prior malicious mischief rap.

Attorney Doug Hill asked Brunn not to send Joel back to Santa Rita; he had been one of the most brutally tortured victims there during the mass bust scene.

At Santa Rita Joel was made to lean his head against a post which was beaten by the pigs until he began to bleed from the nose.

Judge Brunn dourly commented that he might show some humanity and consider sending Joel to the Oakland Jail.

SINCLAIR JAMMED

John Sinclair, Minister of Information for the White Panther Party and Manager of the MC5, began his dope trial in Detroit on June 3.

The charges are that he allegedly gave a narc two joints on Dec. 26, 1966. So much for the Christmas Spirit.

On January 27, 1967, in the midst of a hysterical pig attempt to stomp the whole Detroit scene, John was busted on a warrant for sales. 55 other brothers and sisters were snatched up the same night.

John fought the charges for over a year on the grounds that the state's dope laws are unconstitutional. But last week, when a panel of judges said otherwise, Sinclair was ordered to trial.

As the trial began, John's lawyer, William Ravitz, took the offensive with a motion that all charges be dropped on the grounds of entrapment.

Entrapment is like when an undercover cop in tight levis, stands pensively rubbing his thigh beside the urinal in the men's john of a fag bar. The judge considered the motion and called a 3 week recess so that the prosecution can get its case together on this new issue.

While John has been fighting, the pigs have been plotting. He was charged with assault on a rented cop in a Michigan teen club. During the action John and Fred Smith (guitarist for the MC5) were beaten and Sinclair was maced.

At the trial's end, two weeks ago, Fred was acquitted but John was found guilty. As sentencing was about to be passed, the owner of the teen club came forward and admitted that it was all a frame--sentencing has been delayed.

That's surely enough for one man, but that ain't all. On May 23 a pre-trial hearing was held charging John with "failing to register as a narcotics offender" at the American - Canadian border.

Sinclair and the MC5 were on their way to play a gig in Canada but the customs men thought that John was trying to escape and arrested him. The warrant also states that Sinclair is a nomad. (That he doesn't have a permanent place to live.)

John Sinclair lives with his wife and child at the Trans-Love commune, 1510 Hill St., Ann Arbor. The people want him there but the pigs want him in the slam.

PEPPER ENTERS HOME FRAY

by Sgt. Pepper

"An unmitigated military disaster" -- London Sunday Times on Sheriff Madigan at UC.

And like the Arabs, they shall fold their tents and silently steal away in the night--but the National Guard left the fence.

"The University put up that fence and the University will take it down," Bill Miller, a street recreation worker told Sgt Pepper this week.

He was talking about Cheit's fence around the People's Park at the UC campus (Cheit is a recreation worker for the Board of Regents, the Timer Industry, and the Oil Companies).

And that's where it's at "unless somebody takes it down before BARB press time Friday," Miller added.

Sgt Pepper has been told the fence is coming down, officially, by June 15, on University orders. Thus ends the Berkeley Bay of Pigs.

This "unmitigated military disaster" has left some rather serious echoes. Listen to this one: "Although there are people who have other intentions, it is clear that the community has demonstrated its rejection of violent confrontations and its desire to use regular processes of decision-making" --Gov. Reagan.

Okay -- is a street-march of 30,000 people a "regular process of decision-making"?

The complete flip-out of Reagan over the park was expressed this Tuesday at his press conference, KPFA taped the following voice of the governor saying: "Some of that greenery planted to bring happiness to the people turned out to be marijuana plants."

Reagan is a goddamned liar! If the governor is so upright about pot, what does he think of the Wall Street Journal's story (same day) that airline stewardesses often light up a joint "before a rough trip" and "take a trip of their own."

A rough trip is defined by that paper as one which includes the law-and-order businessmen feeling up the girls as they go about their many duties.

The only sexual freedom league these leaders of business and finance can belong to is the feeling up league of TWA.

These pillars of society are pillars of shit--and Gov. Reagan is their chief toilet.

Meanwhile, up in Canada, another Bay of Pigs is developing. In a special report from Toronto, the SF Chronicle states, "It's the Americans, not the Russians, the Canadians are worried about."

What's the beef? Oil (naturally). Former prime minister of Canada, John Diefenbaker, claims "at least" one US oil company has printed its own maps, showing Canada's Northern islands as "unclaimed territory."

Sgt. Pepper can safely make a prediction--that any land up north with oil automatically becomes "unclaimed territory." Proof?

The Chronicle reports "there was also an unfortunate incident during the governor-general's tour" of what he thought was his territory.

A Capt. Mullis, of the US Airforce, loudly asked, "Who the hell is this governor-general anyway?"

Here, once again, we see the military / establishment mind of Madigan, Reagan, and the Captains Mullis' by the THOUSANDS sounding off.

Governor-General Roland Michener at that very moment was on a "flag-showing tour of the Arctic to assert Canadian sovereignty." But he most certainly had his nerve, claiming his own land in the presence of a US Airforce Captain.

He will know better next time and remain silent, for--as we all know -- the fucking US Airforce brings democracy, oil fallout, tear gas and napalm, to the entire world, including Canada.

RONNIE FUST RATE

THE BODY BEAUTIFUL

Motion picture studios aren't the only organizations in California that put the husky and handsome screen stars to work. For instance, the life-class of the University of Southern California knows a good model when it sees one, which explains the above. Ronnie Reagan, who plays the immortal George Gipp in Warner Bros. KNUTE ROCKNE - ALL AMERICAN, poses for Prof. Merrel Gage and his art class at the university.

Ronnie, according to professor and students, is a first rate model. He's slim, well-formed, tall, and has the same 'ideal' proportions which caused Phydias to hail the Greek athletes of 2000 years ago as the epitome of beauty (the great architect considered women far less attractive).

Reagan shares honors with Pat O'Brien (who plays the title role) in KNUTE ROCKNE - ALL AMERICAN.

KAYO SEES WIN

As BARB goes to press a decision is expected to come down in the 2 month long trial of the last 14 defendants of the Presidio 27.

"I actually believe we can win," Terence (Kayo) Hallinan attorney for the GPs told BARB. "We've proven beyond the shadow of a doubt no mutiny took place in the Presidio."

Hallinan was preparing his final summation for the Fort Ord trial when he rapped to BARB Tuesday night.

"This trial has opened up the eyes of middle-class America to what's happening to their sons," Kayo said. "Congressional committees are starting to investigate our outdated military prison system. More and more people have been turned off by the military's blatant injustice."

"We've exposed the Army for what it is and how it treats men who don't fit in," Hallinan continued. He described his 14 clients not as criminals but young men who have been kicked around all their lives and have no business being in the Army. They had no criminal intent when they sat down October 14 in protest to intolerable conditions and the shooting of Richard Bunch, Kayo said.

Hallinan was confident that his expert psychiatric witnesses have demonstrated amply to the military jury that his clients acted under extreme stress after the death of Bunch. According to testimony by black psychiatrist Price Cobb the prisoners were "niggerized" by their degrading treatment in the stockade.

But what if all of the expert

HELP 'PARK RAPE'

"Park Rape," a film on the history of the People's Park and the Berkeley Occupation, is in danger of being ruined forever. It is on ekachrome commercial which doesn't dig projectors. Funds are needed to make an answer and release prints of the flick.

Money can be donated, or loaned, to save the film. The new prints will be shown at benefits to raise bread for the People's Park Fund. The film was shown last weekend at the Telegraph Repertory Cinema for the Alan Blanchard Benefit, and the audience really dug it.

If you can help call Underground Photo Service, 841-7471, People's Park Media Committee, 848-9282, or the Tamalpais Film Society, 848-3945.

testimony and witnesses aren't enough for the military jury and his clients are found guilty, BARB asked.

"If the military system doesn't do justice to my clients," Kayo said, "We'll have to ask for clemency from the civilians who supposedly control the military--we'll appeal directly to the Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor."

ROAD TO HELL GETS PAVED

To the Editor:

The "reward offer" in last week's article on the Wayne Greene trial by George French, a member of the jury, was the most damnable thing a radical paper could have printed.

The offering of a reward for information leading to the conviction of a revolutionary in our community is not only damnable but dangerous - dangerous to those brothers who have already risked their lives in the beginnings of our struggle; dangerous to those who would offer a reward; and especially dangerous to any informer who would ever try to collect such blood money.

Whatever the action taken by anyone here (right or wrong) we as a community are responsible. If the act was wrong (and I do not believe it was) we, not the pigs or their racist courts, should provide the justice.

Mr. French started writing a very perceptive article. He described how a racist jury, a lying pig (Dean Fuzz), a racist D.A. and a gutless judge (for not throwing the case out of court) tried to imprison an innocent black political activist. In the face of all this he then turned around and tried to put the blame for Wayne Greene's frame-up on someone else for not turning himself in. Mr. French refuses most of what he himself said by putting the blame for Wayne's attempted frame-up anywhere but back in that courtroom where it belongs.

Much better if Mr. French would publicly withdraw the reward and instead donate that $100 to Wayne's defense fund whose financial plight he himself described; and if the Editor would take steps to see that an offer of this kind never again appears in this newspaper.

THE 14 AT ORD KID'S BRAVERY SHARP CONTRAST TO EXPERTS' SHAM

by Corey Miller

A frightened kid bravely testified for the defense of fourteen GIs, part of the "Presidio 27" on trial here for "mutiny". Then from the witness chair, before the judge, jury, and a roomful of spectators he gently announced "I'm AWOL. I want to turn myself in."

George Ray, tall, slim, dark-haired, stepped up to testify in rebuttal to the army's picture of the stockade prior to October 14, 1968, the day the twenty-seven GIs stepped out of formation walked out to a grassy area, sat down, locked arms, singing and chanting "We Shall Overcome" to protest the killing of fellow prisoner Richard Bunch and the conditions in the stockade at that time.

Ray, in the stockade from August 14 to November 13, 1968, said he knew Johnny Cain and James Clark, two of the prosecution's witnesses who were also in the stockade then. Cain, now a civilian, and Clark, now stationed at Fort Ord, offered testimony to support the army's contention that all was spic and span behind bars.

Ray's testimony cast some doubt as to the credibility of the Cain-Clark testimony and offered some insight into the state of affairs inside of the stockade.

"One time I was in the downstairs latrine with Cain," said Ray, "And he told me he was a personal friend of Major Chamberlain, (psychiatric consultant for the stockade) and that he was going to help him get a discharge."

Cain, who was a parolee, lived in the same quarters with the 163rd MP company, and never served his full sentence. He said, "I got out early. Got Christmas clemency." (He was released January 6, 1969).

"Clark was what you might call an ass-kisser." Defense attorney Terence Hallinan asked Ray if he talked to any of the other prisoners about Clark. "There was a fairly wide rumor that he was a dime-dropper."

"Dime-Dropper" is a stockade term for an informer, like a guy who drops a dime into a pay phone to "rat on a guy".

When Rey finished his testimony, assistant prosecutor Capt. Dean Flippo said, "I'm sure the MPs would like to see him outside".

Ray walked out of the barracks court room only stopping once to shake hands with Michael Martinez, an earlier witness for the defense, himself just released from Leavenworth for going AWOL and refusing to wear his uniform in the stockade. Outside the courtroom MP Lt. Hart, nearly seven feet tall smiles, "Welcome back".

Last Wednesday Capt. Edward Schmidt, environmental sanitarian for the stockade, continued telling how the army saw the stockade. Everything must have been bright and shiny even if, as Hallinan pointed out, the windows must have been nearly eight feet from the floor. "Were you able to see the trees," he asked?

Schmidt said "I never looked at the trees, I looked at the windows. I never was interested in the view from the stockade windows."

On Thursday court was dismissed almost before it began when Law Officer Lt. Col. Hagan refused to allow the prosecution to examine two eye-witnesses to the killing of Pvt. Richard Bunch, whose death triggered the "mutiny" demonstration.

Monday dawned dark and weary as everyone marched into the court room to begin the ninth week of court.

The army's assistant prosecutor Capt. Stephen Carlotti called Col. Robert Keim to the stand. Col. Keim is the chief of the department of psychiatry and neurology at the Presidio's Letterman General Hospital.

Dr. Keim stated his opinions, the army's opinions, regarding Buddy Shaw, 18 years old, Roy Pulley, 19, Michael Marino, 20, Richard Gentile, 20, Ricky Stevens, 20, and Danny Sales, 22.

Carlotti asked Keim's opinion of each: "Was the accused at the time so far free from mental disease, defect, and derangement as to be able to tell right from wrong?" Col. Keim: "He was free."

Adn so it went on like a bitter litany: "He was free," Dr. Keim (as had the army doctor to follow) had read the psychiatric evaluation already prepared.

Earlier Hallinan had said they (the Army) "don't like the results of their own psychiatrists because for the most part they agree with our psychiatrists."

But Col. Keim stuck to his guns. The second army doctor, who diagnosed the remaining eight prisoners, was Maj. Kenneth Kaye. Maj. Kaye who bore a faint resemblance to Oliver Hardy, is the Letterman staff psychiatrist and said he had "enlisted under duress" in August, 1968.

Dr. Kaye testimony related to Richard Duncan, 20, Patrick Wright, 19, Allen Rupert, 20, Stephen Rowland, 21, Francis Schiro, 20, Danny Seals, 21, Ernest Trefethen, 18, Danny Wilkins, 19.

Kay minimized the character disorders he discovered in the one and a half to two hours he spent with each prisoner. He said, though, he had spent three hours with Pvt. Rowland.

Kaye admitted that Danny Seals suffers a "mild" retardation.

"Did you conduct an investigation?" asked Hallinan.

"What do you mean?"

Hallinan rose, walked over to Danny Seals and gently exposed a scar on his head, "Look at this scar all over his head."

Danny Seals had been kicked in the head as a child by a horse.

Then proceeded a humorous lesson in brain anatomy. Attorney Hallinan treated Dr. Kaye to a

what did we forget?

acted at being human.
The scene at Insurrection City was weird. It resembled a hedonic hell. There was an endless series of human circles with fires at their center. A rock group with light show blasted away but was lost in the overwhelming sounds of oil drums beaten by stoned madmen. We poured out into the streets directing traffic and running races and shooting fiery flares into the night sky.
One guy asked me for bread to buy a lid. I told him I was broke and he gave me 52 cents.
There were people camping out in little tents, playing guitars, making love and dancing. Late at night little children played fiercely on the swings and a basketball game was proceeding with a garbage can used as the hoop.

I thought of Lincoln Park in Chicago during the Democratic Convention. The Yippie festival of life would go on to midnight then the pigs would bring a tank and nausea gas into the Park and clear us out.

Insurrection City would have been a terrible trap if the pigs moved on it but they let it run its course, figuring it would be a good way to turn our sleepless neighbors against us. One woman who called the police to complain about the noise was told, "Well, you support the People's Park, don't you?"

In the last few days the leaders of the Park committee have been on a down trip about the March. They feel our lack of militant organization let the liberals cop out. The fence is still up and a lot of marchers went home happy, thinking a pleasant walk in the sun was a major accomplishment. We got hung up in bringing large numbers to Berkeley and forgot the reason we wanted them was to force Reagan to take the fence down or to rip it off ourselves. I don't think we could have taken the whole fence down but given our protective numbers we could have announced our eventual intentions by cutting up a huge chunk

PROTEST MOTHER IN COURT

A Berkeley mother who fought to have her son reinstated at Berkeley High School went on trial this Thursday. Both she and her son, Jim, are charged with "trespassing" at the high school.

Mrs. Jean Lewis feels "the high school is on trial, not us."
"The whole thing is as lunatic as Reagan calling the Guard to the People's Park," she said. "I don't know why we have to go through all this. I'm sure we'll be acquitted."

Mrs. Lewis and her son were arrested at their home April 25 because she accompanied Jim to school earlier that day. She had gone to BHS to protest his suspension "without due process."

At the trial, she acted as her own defense counsel. Mrs. Lewis plans to spend at least two days selecting her own jury. People interested in seeing her in action should go to Berkeley Municipal Court Monday.

That's unless the DA wises up --and drops the charges.

There is a lot of madness going down about learning to love a cop. Some people felt that the non-violent march and the pigs taking flowers was a sign of communication. The only thing you communicate to a pig when you give him a flower is your weakness. The only thing Ronald Reagan understands is your willingness to make him pay a price for his dictatorship. A real battle for the Park would be costly for both sides. But the Park is worth the fight. It was so beautiful, giving us the chance to come out of our mind closets into a community of creators.

The liberals say a mere piece of land isn't worth risking violence. It isn't just a block of land Reagan has taken from us. He has confiscated the best of our humanity and surrounded it with a fence of fascism.

BLACK WORKER PUTS US ON TRIAL

After five years of harassment and delay, a case of racial discrimination in Federal employment will reach the courts.

It will be the first such case ever to go to court.

"If I had known then what I know now, I probably wouldn't have pursued it," Mrs. Helen Bowers told BARB.

Mrs. Bowers, who describes herself as "a colonial subject" has been carrying the fight since October of 1964, when she filed a discrimination complaint against the Alameda Naval Air Station where she was employed as a Flexwriter trainee.

Unlike all the other trainees, she was denied promotion. Until her complaint was filed no black person had ever been advanced from trainee to her supply annex.

For five years Mrs. Bowers continued the fight against harassment by her supervisors. She had to raise four children on a GS-3 ($350 per month) pay.

"In most of these cases they use the time to harass you or deprive you of the funds to continue the fight. I hung on by some hook or crook," Mrs. Bowers said.

"They would take me in the bathroom and do things that you'd think would happen in police stations," she remarked.

On May 9, the same day that the first preliminary hearing was scheduled in court, Mrs. Bowers was promoted to GS-4 pay. She had previously found herself doing GS-4 work without promotion, she told BARB.

The case will come up for trial on August 11. Mrs. Bowers is looking for support from Federal employees at other installations. She may be reached at 2212 25th Ave., Oakland.

HOW BERKELEY SCENE LOOKS FROM VIET NAM

May 28, 1969
Dear Governor Reagan, The University Administration and Berkeley Police:

I work in the emergency room of a large hospital here in Vietnam. Everyday I am a witness to the same scene of torn and maimed young men arriving by helicopter for treatment.

After reading about your reaction against some of the citizens of Berkeley in regards to the People's Park, a very powerful idea manifested itself. I realized that I was not only looking at sick and wounded soldiers, but in reality, all the youth of our country.

The everyday scene in this room is no different than the scene last week on the Berkeley campus. A man with a load of birdshot in his guts is not much better off than a man who walked into a booby trap. It is not so much the similar physical damage that creates the parallel, but the similar forces of ignorance and blind pride that allow such horror to occur.

The only real difference on this side of the ocean is that the "cops" (establishment, etc.) don't directly do any of the dirty work. Here, the youth of two countries are faced against each other; the fat cats don't have to finger any triggers. The magic levers and pulleys of politics keep their hands clean.

The obvious course is to eliminate the middle man and get the Berkeley police to come to Vietnam. After all, our society is founded on the ideal of "maximizing" potential--and who, by virtue of intelligence, training and sensitivity is better equipped to hunt and kill than the Berkeley Police? Who would make better field officers, with their ability of instant response, than the University Administration? And who could make a better General than you Mr. Reagan, with your single-minded devotion to what you think is just and "right"?

This whole thing is so insane. I could spend a year in this hole, come home without a scratch, and then get shot by a cop as I walk down the street.

NOTE TO THE EDITOR:
I would have sent you a flak vest, since I'm sure you need it much more than I; however, since I am a conscientious objector I wasn't issued one.

BOARD NEVER BORES

"LET IT BE CLEARLY UNDERSTOOD, MY SWEET BROTHERS AND SISTERS; I Did not defy bullets in the March for nudity, drunkenness, or sick drug addiction. I marched in support of youthful desires and creative expression and the bringing together of the street youth and college youth..."

The bulletin board down at People's Park Annex pretty well tells the story of the people who made, are making, and are using the park.

Hopes, fears, travels, and loves are pinned, pasted, or nailed onto the sheet of plywood, put up as a communication device for the thousands of people that made Insurrection City at the Hearst and Grant Annex last weekend.

A scrap of paper scrawled with advice for mothers reads: "Children tired in the morning?? Drop Acid in their orange juice!!"

Separate sheets of cardboard list rides available to all points of the country and locations to which rides are needed. Yosemite, Oregon, New Mexico, NYC, New Orleans...

The poster with the stoical Indian asks the reader "Who Owns the Park?"

Messages: "Lenny and Wally: I went up to Oregon. See you sometime, somewhere, Chris."

A notice commands the attention of those who glance at the board. "NO NOISE AFTER 11 PM!" Beneath is the additional plea "Would it be possible to be a little cool after 9 or 10? That's when kids go to bed."

The Thirteen Point Berkeley Liberation Program takes up the upper left corner of the board; another sign on the opposite side invites everyone to an Open Air Workshop in arts and crafts, to take place June 7th, from 10 to 4.

Safety warnings are not excluded from the board. Below a twisted exploded metal pressure canister is the message "WARNING: These cans can kill."

Various notes to rip-off artists (Please return my wallet for the ID; no questions asked...) are numerous; there is some wry humor in the plea scrawled under a two-inch nail from which there hangs only a dirty string; "DO NOT STEAL THIS PENCIL..."

Among the most beautiful additions to the board is the torn scrap of paper which reads

I LOVE EVERYONE
-MONA
THIS MEANS YOU.

An Experiment In Creative Living

We invite interested persons from the Bay Area to participate in the development of a center for personal growth and new experience. We wish to provide a center in which persons may participate actively in the initiation and development of programs for their own growth and experience rather than being passive members of an audience. We provide the raw materials: food, lodging and equipment at a twenty room country chateau located one-hour's drive from San Francisco on thirty-five park-like acres.

You, as part of a group of 15 carefully selected persons provide innovative organization and direction and a desire and openness for new experience and perspective. The possible directions are virtually limitless: Camping, farming, gardening, woodworking, sewing, cooking; classes in Yoga, group sensitivity training, etc. Competent professionals will be available to provide guidance--but you must provide the direction.

Cost is $75 a week beginning June 20th, June 27th, July 4th etc. Singles, couples and families from all walks of life and of all ages welcome.

For information contact Dr. A. Kastl at 931-8000 ex. 397 or Hobart Wright at 332-5030 or 707-823-4590.

GAYS WIN RECORD DEALER BOWS TO GAYS, REHIRES CLERK

Militant gays won important concessions this week in their fight for homosexual rights.

Tower Records of San Francisco yielded to organized gay pressure to rehire a man it had fired for suspicion of being gay. However, the strongest demand of the militant Committee for Homosexual Freedom wasn't met. Tower management refused to sign a pledge that they wouldn't discriminate against homosexuals, and instead an ad-hoc union was formed and agreed to enforce such a pledge.

"It's a fink union. I don't trust finks," Leo Laurence chairman of CHF charged. He claims the union is powerless and called the agreement reached with Tower Records "a sellout."

His views weren't supported by most of the membership of CHF. "This is a precedent in the gay movement," said Steve Mathews enthusiastically. He is a member of the group's negotiating team that hammered out the victory with Towers's management and labor representatives.

The battle against Tower Records began three weeks ago, when Frank Denaro, a clerk at the San Francisco store, Columbus and Bay, was fired on the grounds that he was a homosexual.

Denaro contacted CHF and they moved the following Saturday with an eight-hour picket line.

"We turned away about 25 or 30 percent of their business," said Gale Whittington, another member of the CHF negotiating team.

The next week, CHF picketed on both Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday line was attacked by teenage hoods and a store security guard called in the SF Tac Squad, but they arrived too late.

The CHF negotiators met with Denaro, Tower Records management and labor representatives Thursday, May 29, to discuss a list of five demands made by CHF.

The first demand was that Frank Denaro's job be reopened, if he wanted it back. Management admitted that a mistake had been made and offered Frank his job.

CHF demanded that Denaro be given all back pay, benefits and allowances. Tower management and CHF have agreed to submit this to binding arbitration by an outside party acceptable to both sides.

CHF demanded and won a guarantee that Tower will not take any retaliatory action against other employees who honored the picket line or participated in it.

"They have already honored this demand by not firing an employee who honored the picket line and have also agreed that no other action will be taken against any other employees," said Matthews.

CHF also demanded that Tower Records sign a pledge not to discriminate against persons because of sexual orientation. While management would not sign such a pledge, Mike Edwards, a president of the Brotherhood of Tower, a recently-formed employees union, did agree to enforce the terms of the pledge.

"Frank's firing was the catalyst for the formation of our union," said Edwards.

Leo Laurence termed this group a "company union." However, Matthews said, "the fact that the employees are willing to enforce our non-discriminatory pledge against all minority groups, including homosexuals, puts us in a much stronger position than if management alone had signed."

"The union will be there every day to make sure that the pledge is kept."

"It's not the role of the vanguard to sit around playing watchdog," he added.

"For the first time in the history of the gay movement, militant, non-violent tactics have been used to win a major victory," Whittington bold BARB.

"The gay establishment has been trying for years to do what we have done in two weeks," he said.

"They have gotten some fair employment pledges, but the gay establishment has never gotten someone's job back."

"We have won at Tower Records and now we are going to win at States Steamship Company."

"The key to our success at Tower Records was direct contact with its customers. We haven't done this without picket lines at States Lines' home office, so we are going to escalate our attack and hit their customers with letters and picket lines."

"We are also seeking an alliance with the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union to boycott or strike States Lines' ships throughout the world," said Whittington.

Matthews added, "the situation at States Steamship Co. is much more serious than Tower Records was."

"First, States Lines has no union, although we understand one is in the formative stages there.

"Second, States Lines hasn't even responded to our letter with demands nearly identical to those we won at Tower."

"They think that if they ignore us, we will go away, but we have only begun our campaign there," said Matthews.

Gale Whittington was the States Lines employee who was fired two months ago when a photo in BARB revealed his homosexuality.

LOCAL LEFTIST'S BROTHER GETS SHAFTED IN MEXICO

Daniel Camejo has been sentenced to five years in jail in Mexico.

Daniel is the brother of Pete Camejo, West Coast Organizer of the Young Socialist Alliance, past candidate for Mayor of Berkeley and one of the "Berkeley Three" conspiracy defendants.

Camejo and thirteen others were sentenced May 14th for "conspiracy, inviting (not inciting) rebellion, and damaging public property."

The fourteen were arrested in July 1967 in an apparent effort to drum up a "red scare." The Cuban OLAS conference was about to gin. All have been held in jail since then.

"Confessions" were extracted from the victims by torture. They later repudiated the statements.

As part of the witch hunt, seventeen tons of books were seized from a Maoist bookstore. Mexico City dailies ran scare headlines for four days about the "trained terrorists."

Many of the accused conspirators met for the first time in prison.

Pete Camejo heard of the arrests and went to Mexico to do what he could for his brother. His accounts appeared in the BARB of July and August.

"My brother was picked up to add a Venezuelan coloration to the frame-up and help give it an international touch," he wrote. Daniel is Venezuelan by birth.

"Of prime importance in the widely publicized evidence against him is a film on Vietnam called 'Time of the Locust' and a film of Venezuelan social conditions and guerilla movement called 'FALN.'

"Both films have been shown throughout the United States and at the Mexico University."

Pete said that during his brother's interrogation "...police produced files containing information only the United States government could have provided for them.

"For instance, his questioner knew the day my brother first entered the United States in 1940!"

The CIA coloration became even more apparent when Pete was expelled from the country, apparently on the basis of what he had written in the BARB the week before.

When the pigs picked him up, Pete reported, they commented,

With reference to the "Discount Records" advertisement on p. 22 of the May - June 5th issue, please be advised that I neither consented nor approved use of my name in any record sale or political advertisement as the case may be.

I must insist you immediately print a retraction to correct any impressions on the part of the reader.

Further, I should like to emphasize that I never saw it (the statement or advertisement for a sale, however it may be construed) nor heard a word of it prior to publication.

The sentences for the fourteen ranged from nearly nine years down to two years.

Camejo stated at his sentencing that "the entire legal case was a farce, whose only purpose was to intimidate the Mexican people and those who struggle for their rights."

S.I.R. SECRETARY QUITS IN DISGUST

by Leo E. Laurence

"This is a dying organization," said Andrew Bettencourt, Secretary of the Society for Individual Rights, as he resigned from the gay club in San Francisco this Wednesday.

"The members of this organization never do anything constructive to really help end discrimination against homosexuals," Bettencourt told BARB exclusively. "They are just playing games."

The SIR Board member was especially critical of the strategy used by the conservatively oriented homosexual club in fighting back at the Establishment; or rather the lack of such fighting.

"When Berkeley Vice cops killed Frank Bartley, the SIR resolution was useless." SIR protested

With all the shit that has come down in Berkeley the past several weeks people have almost forgotten about the Moses Hall Three-- Paul Glusman, Jack Bloom, and Pete Camejo.

But not ol' Frank Coakley, he's still after them. The Three appeared in Alameda County Court May 26 and had their trial postponed to August 13. Lawyers for the trio asked for more time to file motions challenging the constitutionality of conspiracy indictments brought against the three radicals.

The indictments came down on the Three for their supposed "leadership" of the Moses Hall liberation at UC last fall in support of Eldridge Cleaver's 139X course.

Coakley tried to rip off the Oakland 7 on the same rap--but failed. "Now he's going to be knocked on his ass again," Glusman laughed.

While waiting for the trial Paul has another judicial battle at hand. He was in the "big bust" that sent 482 to Stalag Santa Rita on May 22. The first curt appearances for those arrested was Thursday.

the murder by asking for a police investigation of the police shooting.

"It (the SIR protest) was too polite, too mamby-pamby.

"We have all these gay dances at the SIR Center each weekend, but nothing is being done by SIR to get action in the community.

"We pass resolution after resolution and I'm disgusted.

"This outfit is dying and Larry Littlejohn (president) is responsible for it.

"The officers of SIR are ass-kissing with the Police Community Relations unit, and brown-nosing with Elliott Blackstone (CR officer) who is nothing more than a pacifier to smooth all sides when there's trouble.

What should be done at SIR?
"They should dissolve the entire Board and start new."

AND TRY HIDING BEHIND NOTHING

The full-page ad in the Sunday Exam-Chron is a massive photo of a cop's badge, with the caption "YOU try hiding behind it."

The ad was unsigned, nor was there any indication that it was a paid advertisement.

On the front page of the Examiner, however, was an editorial box to look up the ad and think about it.

I'm thinking--like why don't the Reagan troopers of the CHP hide behind it (they don't wear a badge).

Why don't the Alameda County Blue Meanies hide behind it (they don't wear a badge).

Why don't the Albany, Hayward, Newark, Concord police hide behind it (they don't wear a badge).

Why don't the Berkeley Police hide behind it (they don't wear a badge, at least when beating up students down in their so-called "Hall of Justice").

And also, why don't the ACLU or any of the many many attorneys around the street people make a test-case out of a court ruling on the Chicago cops without badges.

The court said they can't do it. I mean, what's holding up the action? People can make a few thousand bucks EACH in suits.

As the Examiner says--"Think about it."

"The best printed counsel available on everything from sneezes to orgasms"

In March, 1967, a young doctor named Eugene Schoenfeld began to write a column of medical advice for the Berkeley Barb under the now-famous name of Dr. Hip Pocrates. The column — which is now syndicated by eight underground newspapers in the U.S. and several abroad — deals candidly with sex, drugs, the pill, circumcision, venereal disease, allergies, pregnancies, psychiatry, homosexuality, and many other problem areas that are too "hot" for other columns to handle.

Other M.D.'s among his biggest fans

Surprisingly enough, Dr. Schoenfeld is as popular with members of the medical profession as he is with the hippie he addresses in his columns. California's Health, a monthly publication of the State Department of Public Health, said, "The Hip doctor is a boon to hippie health . . . If you don't know about him, you should."

Not only is Dr. Schoenfeld's advice medically sound, but it is also hip, bright and frequently very humorous. To one letter, asking if there are venereal diseases besides gonorrhea and syphilis, Dr. Hip Pocrates answered: "The diseases usually classified as venereal are gonorrhea, syphilis, chancroid, granuloma inguinale, and lymphogranuloma venereum. The last three are fortunately rare and usually found only in sailors and other visitors to exotic ports. VD is unpleasant and may be dangerous if untreated — but it's better to have had a positive Wassermann test than never to have loved at all."

Dr. Hip in book form

Dear Dr. Hip Pocrates is a collection of the best of Dr. Schoenfeld's columns. Playboy says the book is "funny, sharp, true, sensible and stands reassuringly with the Playboy Advisor as the best printed counsel available on everything from sneezes to orgasms — all those questions that come up daily in a troubled world, and told with wit, insight, scientific firmness and sympathy. The Dear Abbys of this world are to Dr. Hip Pocrates what Booth Tarkington's Penrod is to Stanley Kubrick's Space Odyssey: 2001."

A few questions and answers from Dear Dr. Hip Pocrates

Q: My date sometimes takes me to bars and nightclubs in the rougher parts of our town. Can you tell me if it's possible to get a venereal disease in the bathroom?

A: Certainly it's possible to get a venereal disease in the bathroom. But bathroom floors are usually very cold and hard. In other words, only in the rarest of circumstances could a person contract a venereal disease other than by intimate physical contact.

Q: I've heard that the intensity of a woman's sneeze is somehow comparable to the intensity of her orgasm — a very convulsive sneeze, a very convulsive orgasm. A sexologist has said this observation is not to be sneezed at. Would you please comment?

A: Seems to me I've heard the same. I'm certain there are many who would be willing to join in a research project to settle this question. God Bless you for your letter.

Q: Does sexual intercourse limit in any way the physical growth of a maturing child, i.e., sexual intercourse experienced regularly by an adolescent who has not finished growing?

A: I have noticed no decrease in average stature among Berkeley youths.

Q: Can anything be done to increase penis size at the age of about twenty? I feel I am underdeveloped and have always felt a little inadequate because of it.

A: Only in rare instances is there a real problem of physical incompatibility between male and female. When this does occur, the problem is likely to be as illustrated by the remark of a local topless dancer, "I'd rather be tickled than choked."

The thrust of my answer, and this is not a tongue-in-cheek reply, is that the measure of a person and his sexuality is not the size of his genitals.

About the author:

Eugene Schoenfeld, M.D. was born in New York City in 1935. He grew up in New York City and Miami Beach, Florida, and received his A.B. from the University of California at Berkeley. He earned his M.D. at the University of Miami, Fla., and his Master's in Public Health at Yale University. He was formerly with the center for Special Problems in San Francisco, and is at present staff physician for the Student Health Service at Berkeley. How did he happen to become Dr. Hip Pocrates? "I sensed there was a real need for a medical column like this. For years friends had been furtively asking me for advice on subjects they were uncomfortable discussing with their doctors. And after working at the San Francisco Center for Special Problems and at the Haight-Ashbury Medical Clinic, I developed a feel for the questions people have about sex and drugs that they don't dare ask."

PIG STICKLER SOLIZ CHOKED SELF WITH THEIR CLUB

Two pigs from Mad Dog Madigan's Alameda County sty testified this week that Jaime Soliz held their club against his neck and then lifted his feet off the ground screaming in mock pain when they tried to bust him.

Soliz, a leader of UC Third World strike is presently in Berkeley Municipal Court facing two misdemeanor charges from the pig attack on him February 25. Officers Dyer and Mingan, apparently vengeance-bent against Soliz, stated under oath he inflicted injury on himself with their clubs.

Soliz was picked out of a moving picket line that day and arrested on a warrant charging him with "blocking" the Student Union on February 10. An additional "resisting arrest charge" was laid on him after the assault. The case is expected to go to the jury by the end of this week.

Besides Soliz, Barry S. Strong, another victim of the pig's violence during the UC strike is presently on trial. He is facing a felony assault rap for allegedly throwing a rock.

These two are just the beginning of over 170 more cases that'll go to court in the following months. So far there have been no convictions or acquittals, just two hung juries.

UC Legal Defense, which coordinated defense data still needs photographs and witnesses for those busted. After Wednesday it'll move from its present office at room 37 Boalt Hall. Those who have help to give should call 642-1886 or 841-6053.

SPEEDWAY POW-WOW COMING ON A-NEW

Brothers and sisters, there's another free concert in Speedway Meadows (Golden Gate Park) this Sunday. The gathering, "Crazy Bob's Pow-wow," is sponsored by the 13th Tribe and the co-sponsors include the Neighborhood Arts Program, Major Grey's and, as Crazy Bob says, "all the groovy people who care."

Elvin Bishop, Linn County and the Sons of Champlin head the bill which includes Billy Roberts (the dude who wrote Hey Joe!), Alice Stewart and the Minks, Cedro Wolly, Crazy Horse and Kwane and the Kwan-dedos. It starts at 11:00 and goes until 6:00.

EARTH READ-OUT

ddt means death --dig

by Keith Lampe

Sixty-five marine biologists have sent a letter to Ronald Reagan stating that accumulations of DDT in the earth's seas already represent "a grave threat to marine food resources."

Dr. Eugene Coan, a marine biologist at Stanford, told me that results of recent studies indicate that "we're not going to be able to use the seas, after all, to provide new food sources for the exploding populations. In fact, it may not make any difference whether we save Pt. Reyes Station or save People's Park or end the war in Vietnam."

The letter to Reagan was signed by the head of every marine research station on the West Coast. It of course urges that DDT be banned in California--and warns of "the possible loss of whole categories of animals which play important roles in preserving on the planet an environment favorable to man."

The letter also says that "scientific evidence now available shows beyond question that DDT and its residues have caused serious and irreparable damage to populations of beneficial birds and fishes."

"There are many reports of destructive effects of DDT on shellfish (shrimps, crabs, oysters) and on beneficial insects which help provide natural controls on insect pests."

"DDT residues in several edible fishes are approaching five parts per million, the maximum level considered safe for regular human consumption under Food and Drug regulations.

"In some commercially important fish populations this level has already been significantly exceeded, particularly in lakes and in enclosed areas like the Baltic, and there the fish are failing to reproduce successfully because of DDT."

Coan told me that "even if we stop using DDT immediately, the concentrations of it in marine life probably will increase for the next 20 years."

Coan also said that reproduction of certain fishes in the Pacific "probably will be affected fairly soon--if it hasn't already been affected. World Famine One may come next year--not 20 years from now."

The biologists' letter says that DDT "takes years to decompose to harmless products by weathering and biological processes. As a result, it has been accumulating in the environment."

"Not only is it carried from land to sea by rivers and runoff, but it also evaporates from lakes and soil along with water and is dispersed world-wide by winds."

"DDT and its toxic residues are found in Antarctic penguins and seals, and in fishes living thousands of miles out at sea."

The letter also is addressed to the people of California--and it urges them to "write their State Senators and Assemblymen, requesting support for Senate Bill 1430, which seeks to ban the use of DDT."

The faculty and students at Hopkins Marine Station of Stanford University have released a summary on DDT which states that "people in the U.S. carry in their fatty tissues levels of DDT averaging about 12 parts per million..."

"Recent clinical research shows a strong correlation between high DDT levels and encephalomalacia, cerebral hemorrhage, portal cirrhosis, and various carcinomas." Researchers in Florida several weeks ago established a link between pesticides--especially DDT used in back-yard gardens--and cancer of the liver.

A report released at U-C Davis last month stated that emphysema rates in agricultural, grape-growing San Joaquin County are four times higher than in smog-ridden Los Angeles County--and DDT or other pesticides are suspected.

Ways of doing something about all this will be discussed at Ecology Action's Environmental Fair in Berkeley Saturday, June 7, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Provo Park.

More on DDT in next EARTH READ-OUT. The imminent extinctions of the peregrine falcon, the brown pelican, . . .

Pigs attacked a chicano protest in San Jose last weekend and found themselves up against a hard-fighting crew of Black Berets and Brown Berets.

"Our guys handled themselves fairly well without being armed," a Brown Beret spokesman told BARB, "They got down to business with fists and feet--the way they learn in the barrios."

Members of the Berets went into action after several "chongos" (monkeys--the chicano term for pigs) had clubbed two women who were carrying flags in a peaceful protest.

Five hundred chicanos had assembled along the parade route of the Fiesta de las Rosas, a plastic celebration which lauded the coming of the Spanish and the "settling of California" by anglos.

At one point the group attempted to march along with the parade. Two women carrying flags--one Mexican and the other reading "La Raza Unida"--walked out into the street.

Immediately they were jumped by chongos--uniformed and plainclothes. Both women were knocked down by clubs and one, a Mrs. Castillo, was beaten unconscious.

"There never was a call for dispersing," said the Brown Beret spokesman. "The whole demonstration up to then was nonviolent."

The men of the Brown and the Black Berets were there to protect their people from just this sort of thing, and they went in swinging. Both groups are chicano self-defense organizations.

"When the chongos saw that the marchers were all around them they went crazy," the spokesman said. "They began clubbing everybody--little girls and nine-year-old children got hit."

Twenty-three chicanos were arrested. Two victims were still unconscious and on the critical list.

'LA RAZA' ON TRIAL

Los 7 de La Raza are having "their day in court" today in the Hall of Injustice. The brown brothers are being held for the killing of San Francisco plainclothesman Joe Brodnik and the injury of his partner.

There are some strange circumstances, Brodnik was shot with his partner's gun. The partner, Patrick McGoran, "identified" people who were miles away at the time. Though everyone from the D.A. on down knows they weren't there, they remain in jail.

The media, seizing upon the "cop-killer" angle, has declared them guilty already. The college students are referred to as thieves, hoodlums, punks, etc.

These young men from the barrio desperately need money and community support to obtain even a semblance of a fair trial. Contributions can be sent to Comité Para Defender Los 7 de La Raza, P.O. Box 12217, San Francisco.

Famed attorney Charles Garry has agreed to work on the case. Contributions for Los Siete can also be sent to him at 341 Market Street, San Francisco.

Sal Candelaria, leader of the Black Berets, was taken to Agnew Hospital, a state mental hospital. He was drugged senseless with Thorazine and kept naked in an isolation cell. He stayed there for two days.

A priest who knew Sal worked during that time to get a psychiatrist to see him. He finally succeeded, and five minutes later Candelaria was free, with no charges against him.

"The public has the mistaken idea that Chicanos are peaceful and law-abiding no matter what happens to them," the Brown Beret said.

"If it's necessary, San Jose will be another Berkeley, with National Guard and barbed wire. Only we'll be shooting back."

'COME ON UP'

Bunch of people getting together next Saturday (June 14) near Mendocino for a day and a night of poetry, drama, music, dancing, walks in the woods and many other things.

The affair is being put together by Bruce Sloan, an old and righteous member of the tribal culture who's been living in Mendocino the past 3-4 years and helping stabilize the scene there.

Bring your own food--or else box lunches available cheap.

Starts at 10 a.m. "For genuine night-people, breakfast outdoors at 6 a.m." next day.

"Donation: adults $2, children $1, some campsites $2."

Lou Welch will be on hand to help with a poetry session.

There'll also be some arts & crafts groups "including clay sculpture, sketching outdoors, driftwood and other things from nature, mosaics. . . led by people like Sue Cope, Cheryl Bowers, Laura Lackey, Mary Maddock, Lyn Sims."

All this is taking place at Bruce's Ames Lodge on Little Lake Road, nine acres in thick woods three miles east of Mendocino.

Bruce especially wants to see some "front-line fighters" get up there "to share in the joy" that day. Further info from him at 707-937-5608.

EXTINCTION FAIR--DIG?

by Keith Lampe

Ecology Action has rescheduled its Environmental Fair for this Saturday (June 7).

The fair originally was scheduled for May 24--but had to be postponed because members got tied down resisting day-to-day the Occupation of Berkeley.

Theme of the fair is--dig--EXTINCTION. Example: among the speakers will be Dr. Eugene Coan, a marine biologist who thinks we've so wrecked the seas with DDT that some Third World nations soon may lose their protein source.

"Here in the U.S. we're lucky," Coan told BARB. "We can fall back on beef for a while."

The fair starts at 10 am in Provo Park (Grove and Center Streets)--and will end about 6 pm. People from ecology and conservation groups throughout the Bay Area will take part in it.

At about 2:30 David Brower, former executive director of the Sierra Club, will give a speech entitled "We're Down to Our Last Planet." Brower was eased out of the Sierra Club early this spring for trying to awaken the organization from its nostalgic, sweet-trees dreams. He hopes to put together a new organization to represent the growing ecological concern among many sectors of the public.

Action projects at the fair will include a booth at which nursing mothers can get their milk analyzed for DDT content. (Studies elsewhere have shown DDT content in mother's milk to be four times higher than that allowed in cow's milk sold for human consumption.)

At noon Rev. Tony Nugent of the Free Church will conduct ceremonies for "the destruction of a smog-generating automobile and its transformation into a sculpture symbolizing the ecological revolution." Everybody attending the fair will be urged to participate in the transformation.

Cliff Humphrey will talk briefly about summer activities of Ecology Action.

Others will discuss halting retail sales of DDT in the Bay Area through boycotts, picketings, informational campaigns and any other means necessary.

Additional discussions and exhibits will deal with pollution, overpopulation, People's Park, and resource and bay conservation.

There will be a do-it-yourself skiffle band at the fair--and hopefully one or two rock groups will get contacted in time.

The group has had only a few days to get the thing together--and so it will rely in part on individual initiative to make the see p. 20

WELLS JURY HUNG AGAIN

The second trial of Black Panther Warren Wells has ended in a hung jury, just like the first. Wells is the first Panther to go on trial for the so-called "shoot-out" in Oakland which resulted in the murder of Bobby Hutton and the imprisonment of Eldridge Cleaver.

On Tuesday, May 27 the jury in the latest trial returned with only a partial verdict (guilty of assault, undecided on attempted murder). The judge told them that either they made up their minds on all counts or they could forget it. No agreement was reached and no poll of the jurors was taken.

A motion for a new trial will be ruled upon June 9th, as will a motion for reduction of the $20,000 bail. Wells has been in jail ever since the April 1968 attack.

The prosecution did not present several pig witnesses this time around, apparently for fear of cross-examination by Garry. He nearly hacked them to pieces the first time around, observers reported.

Defendants who get hung juries are rarely tried a second time. In big cases a retrial is sometimes held. But since Eldridge Cleaver's case depends on a conviction for Wells, old J. Frank Coakley shows every sign of busting a gut to get Wells convicted. Hopefully he'll succeed -- in busting his gut.

FEMINA LIBERATA DIXONA DICABIT

Marlene Dixon, radical sociologist whose firing from the University of Chicago sparked a two-week sit-in last year, will speak tonight (Friday) on "Women's Liberation--an Independent Movement."

Sponsored by San Francisco Women's Liberation, the talk is the first in a series on the Women's Movement. It will be followed by a question and answer period.

It is open to the public ($1 donation) and is set for 8 pm at the Howard Presbyterian Church at Oak and Baker Streets.

MADIGAN CRAPS OUT TO SF MIME TROUPE

"We stood up to the Alameda Sheriff's repression, and they backed down," Steve Friedman, a member of The San Francisco Mime Troupe told BARB this week.

The Sheriff's Department attempted to stop the Troupe from using Earl Warren Park in Hayward for a performance last weekend. They put pressure on the Hayward Area Recreation and Park Department (HARD) to deny the park to the group.

But the Mime Troupe went on the offensive with a legal writ from ACLU telling HARD to show cause why the show shouldn't go on. The uptight park overseers couldn't, and the show went on.

"Public parks are for public use, but the cops want to control the kind of people who use them," Peter Hennessy, a spokesman for the Mime Troupe said. He said police harassed the performers and people coming to the park over the weekend and succeeded in keeping the audience down to about 100.

Hennessy was arrested after the cops closely inspected all the performers' cars and found he had several outstanding traffic violations. He was freed on $50 bail.

The Troupe originally received permission for their visit to Hayward several months ago. Two weeks ago a letter came from HARD telling them the show was off. The Sheriff's Department had complained that the group was lewd, obscene, and posed traffic problems the cops couldn't handle.

"Those are absurd charges," Hennessy said. "We've never been convicted of obscenity or lewdness." Besides, he explained, the play scheduled for Hayward was Brecht's "Congress of Whitewashers" which cannot possibly be described in those terms.

Fresh from their sojourn in Hayward the Mime Troupe will perform the same play this weekend in Mill Valley.

Dig it at 2pm Saturday and Sunday at Boyle Park.

FEED MILL RAID BUMMER FOR KIDS

by Kathy

Two kids were busted in front of the Arbor Cafe this afternoon. Another photographer and I happened to wander by at the time, and hung around while the cops searched and handcuffed the boy up against their squad car, and went through his chick's purse while she sat inside the car.

The kids were mellow and quiet, and it was a lazy tranquil summer evening; definitely a bummer to see four or five cops haul off these two.

As a pig slapped the cuffs on the boy very tightly, we took a picture.

"How would you like your camera busted?" asked Badge 31, a tall spade pig.

"Not really," answered the photographer I was with. "We're press, y'know."

We continued to shoot the scene; I got the names of both of the kids from the guy; he smiled at me a little nervously as he muttered them quickly; half-expecting trouble from the pig who was running his hands down the boy's pantlegs.

"What are the charges, sir?" we asked one of the cops.

"Either #459, burglary, or #484, theft," he told us.

Some straight looking men in suits stood behind us, rapping about how they paid taxes and why the hell did it take so many cops to bust a couple of kids.

The squad car moved off into the sunset filled with pigs and captives, headed presumably for the pig sty.

We rapped with people inside the Arbor Cafe who had been hassled when the cops had come through.

"There was no one in here fitting the description of who they wanted, so they hassled me and went through my old lady's purse before they got those two," one youth told us over a bowl of brown rice.

We wandered back out on University Avenue, and there at the corner of Milvia was our friend, Uncle Tom pig badge 31.

He was pulling some wire cutters out of a trash can.

We took a picture of him, carrying them to his car.

"Who're you press for?" the cop asked the guy I was with. "Associated Press," my friend answered truthfully.

"They're hiring scum like you now," the Uncle Tom commented, almost begging for a cutting reply from us.

"Why, I'm in the papers all the time," he boasted. "The Examiner, the Tribune, the BARB, the Chronicle..."

"Let's leave," my friend said. "I don't think I want to talk to this bastard."

We split. To the two kids that got busted on this beautiful warm June evening, wherever you are, we're thinking about you, Maintain.

TELLS HOW ARMY KIDNAPS CRIPPLES FOR VIETNAM DUTY

The Army calls it the Oakland Replacement Center. It's where they keep spare parts for Vietnam. Any time the machine develops a need for a new component a requisition is sent and Oakland supplies the part.

One such part is Private Marshall Bocher, 23 years old from Syosset, New York. Private Bocher is a bit defective though. According to the Army, he is "not allowed to crawl, jump, march for more than a mile or stand for more than 30 minutes." His feet are so flat that it affects his hamstring and calf muscles, yet Pvt. Bocher found himself in Oakland awaiting orders to Vietnam.

Bocher's lawyer, Robert Zweig, tried to get a medical hold executed. For two weeks he worked inside the Army. He went from the Oakland Army Base to the Sixth Army at the Presidio to the Judge Advocate General's Office in Washington to the Secretary of the Army. He got no results.

"It has been the policy of the Army, for the last three or four months, to take men in Oakland who refuse to go to Vietnam, put them in chains, kidnap them by plane and deposit them in a combat zone in Vietnam," Robert Zweig says.

On May 13 Private Bocher submitted an application for discharge on the grounds that he was a Conscientious Objector.

According to Army regulations, each application must be considered. The Applicant must be held up while the processing goes on. If the application is denied and the man then refuses a direct order to Vietnam he may be court marshalled.

On May 13 the Army refused to accept Private Bocher's application. They called him a "chicken shit coward" and put him under immediate guard. Bocher was denied all communication--with his lawyer, his family, with anyone.

Two hours after he had submitted the application, Bocher was put in chains and carried aboard a plane bound for Vietnam.

Essentially a cripple; having enough physical disabilities to keep him out of a high school gym class, Bocher is now in combat in S. Vietnam.

Private Bocher is not the only victim of military kidnap. At least six such men now have lawyers in the bay area. Several affidavits have been filed in Federal Court and Mr. Zweig expects to have his case come up soon.

When asked if he thought the Army would deny his accusations, the lawyer replied: "If they deny it I challenge them to a public hearing. But I doubt if they'll deny it. I think that they believe that their actions are reasonable--I assume that they're doing it to everyone."

RIGHT WING OUT TO RAPE MERRITT

by Rick Heide

Merritt College's upcoming student body election pits the militant Soul Party against a slate headed by a member of Young Americans for Freedom (Y.A.F.).

The last election saw the Soul ticket sweeping all offices by big margins. Now, David Grappo is leading an electoral counter-insurgency campaign against the Soul men and soulful women.

Grappo's platform is "to get things done." He is critical of a Soul attempt to hire a college doctor, Under law, he says, "he can't even give aspirin." He chides the incumbents for failing to provide enough money for the nationally rated Merritt track team and other student activities.

He charges his opponent, Alphonso Galloway, is ineligible to run for the office. The student Election Committee has approved Galloway's candidacy.

The Soul Party is running on its record of moving toward true student power. They list these programs already in effect:

Black and Chicano Studies departments; equal student representation on major committees;

Saturday and evening summer classes; free meals and textbooks for poor students; student control of the cafeteria and bookstore; a special program that has enrolled 46 Merritt students part-time at U.C.; and a special credential for Afro-American Studies graduates. They pledge to continue "in the vanguard" of change.

Grappo says his campaign is non-political, despite his active membership in Y.A.F. "I just want student government to serve the students," he says.

Grappo, like Reagan, believes in the silent majority. "Most students are conservative," says the non-political campaigner. "If we had a 90% turnout, we'd win by 5 to 1."

Most other observers feel his only chance is a very small turnout at the predominantly Third World, hip, and radical college. The election is open to all Merritt students and will be held June 9 and 10.

DIDJA SEE BARDACKE?

Frank Bardacke needs witnesses who saw him at People's Park Annex when the cops tore it down Sunday, May 18.

He has been busted for "assault with a deadly weapon." The pigs say he threw a rock then (he was arrested later). They're lying and Frank needs witnesses to prove it.

So if you were at the park in the late afternoon of May 18 and saw Frank, contact him at 849-2499.

"FOREVER LOADED"

by Art Johnston

Michael McClure I knew only as the person "Freewheelin' Frank" was told to.

"Freewheelin' Frank" is the fast talkin' autobiography of a hot-roddin' Hell's Angel -- Frank Reynolds -- who was born in the Ozarks to die, no doubt, with his boots on sailing through the air at 120 miles per hour astride a flaming Harley Davidson engine, working the pistons up and down with his blistered hands if needs be, his plaid scarf flapping in the wind, his hoarse mother-voice screaming "ANGELS FOREVER, FOREVER LOADED!"

I also remembered reading somewhere McClure was busted for a play involving cunnilingus.

McClure's new play "Cherub" opened at Mandrake's in Berkeley last week. (With John Lion directing, it is performed by the Magic Theatre). "Cherub" is the first in a series of what the San Francisco poet calls "gargoyle cartoons" or protein fantasies.

I'm not a playgoer. I didn't understand it. It was something about Jesus being in bed with Camus. Whenever this was mentioned, everyone laughed. I guess I expected an enactment of Freewheelin' Frank.

"This better be dirty," I said to my buddy as the curtain rose to reveal three naked torsos in a huge animated bed, "or I'm asking for my money back." Actually I had got in for free.

It wasn't dirty, except maybe on a level I didn't understand. I'm not a critic, so you shouldn't go by my opinion. I'm just here to tell you about McClure.

Michael McClure met Freewheelin' Frank Reynolds at a Dylan concert in 1965. "Dylan invited me," the thirty year old author of "Meat Science Essays" (on Revolt, Jane Mansfield, and Fuck) told BARB in his Haight flat. Scattered around the room were books of his own poetry, a copy of Jim Morrison's new book of poems, "The New Creatures" (limited edition), and copies of Freewheelin' Frank's new folder of poems. McClure was impervious to the cries of our three year old hippy companion, Jesse. We were at ease.

"Ginsberg, Baez, and some of the Angels were invited too, and we all had front row seats. Some people started turning on, and I started rapping with Frank. What an amazing cat! He has this incredible Elizabethan word style!

After that we kept running into each other, and one night I casually suggested I could write his autobiography.

"But at the time I was having a lotta trouble with my play 'Beard.'" We were busted every night for fifteen nights -- I'm still fighting the lawsuits -- and the story of an outlaw was about the furthest things from my mind.

"Then one night Frank called me up stoned in the middle of the night and said he wanted to get to work. I told him to be here at nine in the morning. Hahl! I went back to bed, figuring the matter was dispensed with.

"But at nine a.m., Frank was at my doorstep, sobered up and dead serious about writing a book. We began work right then, and finished nine pages the first day." Frank dictated, while Mike hammered it out on his typewriter. "Jesus!" Freewheelin' would exclaim intermittently, "You're fucking my train of thought with that goddam clacking!"

The first time I read the book, I thought that a lot of it was probably "as told to" hype: Frank Reynolds was too classic to be real. But McClure confirms that Freewheelin' Frank does indeed talk like that. And the story was Frank's; only a few pages were edited.

"What if somebody had written an autobiography," McClure went on, "of a member of the Eagle cult in 14th century Mexico. What an exciting document that would be! And that's what 'Freewheelin' Frank' is, only we don't have to wait six centuries -- it's fascinating now!"

I asked McClure whether he felt he had influenced Frank during his association with him, inclining him perhaps toward more spiritual and literary things. "There's only a little truth in that," McClure responded. "Frank got turned onto Dylan and acid at Ken Kesey's. And to be sure, I was influenced by Frank as much as he was influenced by me. He opened up a new world."

McClure now proudly rides a vintage Harley chopper: it looks like a 56 or 57. In Norman Mailer's film, "Beyond the Law," McClure played an outlaw motorcyclist. "Mailer gave me some bread, and I went down and had some rockers made for the back of my jacket." In McClure's own Beast Language, the emblem reads a half-serious, half-satirical "GRAHHR!"

The poet's next trip is going to be tying a tape recorder to his bike. Somehow we couldn't get over the feeling that McClure sees his chopper as a giant blob of sensual protein, to be ridden between his legs like a candy-colored DNA molecule!

McClure was raised in Kansas. "Funny you should bring that up. I just finished a book about my childhood there." He fumbled through stacks of poetry books, looking for the manuscript. I guess I lost it.

"The memories of childhood are there, because they are your meat," McClure said. The thing is to posture a yoga stature that will draw on them. I think the rhyme gave me the impetus to recall memories that were lost to my unconsciousness mind. Our memory cells, you see, are arranged tangentially," (and here he started making all these diagrammatic silms with his hands) "forming a helix, like a DNA molecule. They rattle out when we touch them."

McClure considers William Burroughs, Richard Brautigan, and Norman Mailer the most significant writers in America today. As to whether literature is becoming an obsolescent art form, he comments that "It's going to become increasingly important in the future for people to be able to hold a book in their hands, to feel its content, like a piece of meat they are going to digest."

Most people's eyes are passive, you know. But McClure's burn, so that you find yourself glancing away to avoid his glaze. McClure is into his heavy biological trip. Meat. Very mystical. His favorite overworked word is "meat."

"The new society will be biological" is his revolutionary outcry. Much of his poetry is written in what he calls "Beast Language," which is pure animal sound after the style of Jean Arp. "This poem I wrote for Marilyn Monroe upon her death," he said, pointing to a phantasmagoria of flesh, reverence, and naive animal lust. "That poem I wrote for the lions, I read it to them at the zoo, and they roared right along."

As a prelude to the performance of "Cherub," the Berkeley Improvisational Ensemble fondle their reeds somewhat akin to the cool style of Miles Davis. A bared black incantations -- basso profundo -- this wierd voodoo Beast poetry while a pale yellow light suggest an outline of his hoary face. Cigarette smoke drifts through the wan light like an ethereal fog. I got uneasy: Something is being sacrificed here, and I'm not hip to it.

McClure felt that it was very suggestive that "Cherub" opened while our brothers were in the streets outside. "To be able to ecologically preserve the sense of pleasure while the revolution was commencing outside heightened the experience," he told BARB.

In his work, McClure seems to be aspiring to touch -- and perhaps even unleash! -- dark hidden forces within us. Not surprisingly, he is now working on a film-script with Jim Morrison of the Doors; an adaptation of a novel he wrote last summer.

McClure's most famous play -- the one that got him busted fifteen nights in a row -- is "Beard," starring Billy the Kid and Jean Harlow. He ate her out on Blue Velvet. That sounds like a line from a song. But McClure calls it an "image." That's rich: Billy the Kid, the stoned adolescent rebel eating out the jaded vamp with cream dripping all over the Blue Velvet. I like that.

McClure has this fascination for people like Billy the Kid and Jane Mansfield. It's almost as if he accepts their image on face value, and trips on it like a gentle fetish -- looking for meaning in the image itself: looking beyond meaning even to the experience itself.

McClure has learned much from the playwright Antonin Artaud. Artaud believed the theatre should be used to convey an image, a feeling, a sensation. "To break through language in order to touch life," he defined as the purpose of theatre.

"Every night after 'Beard' got busted I would get these ideas for sex dramas," McClure told BARB. "Like, you thought that was something, watch this!" Who knows. Maybe while the people are giggling at the gargoyles in "Cherub," the three naked people are humping each other under the sheets of the animated bed.

They should be. Who knows what they're doing naked under those sheets! Maybe McClure and the director don't even know what they're doing.

God knows they jump around enough.

High up in his mountain retreat, Benya looked out across the valley to the sea, and he sat himself down. Benya's Band was eating People's Stew in the corner of the retreat, and Benya went to have some.

One of his men, the Deputy spoke. He said: "Benya, we have fought, we have lost some of our numbers, and still the sheriff and his pigs have the park. Let us go and off the pigs and reclaim what is ours, the soil of our native land! Let us take what is ours from the pig power structure!"

Benya, eating stew with his fingers, as was his custom, reached across the stew pot and grabbed the Deputy's glass, in one gulp draining it of wine. He wiped his lips on his flannel sleeve, and bleated softly. He took from out of his leather pouch a cigar-sized joint, a super joint, and took a toke. He passed it around, and those of his men who wished to have some, had some.

"Deputy, have you been listening to the tube again? That is good, for that is part of your revolutionary study. Do you believe these lies, to defend it?" "But Benya," cried the Deputy, "today, if we should try to walk into the park, we could not. If such stupid lies, do you not realize, I could rest my weariness upon Deputy, that though they have gained the park for the moment, they have lost the world forever, finally, and irrevocably? Do you not realize that it cost them more, than the value of that piece of land fucking fence, and shake it. Let us shake it to show them that we mean business. Let us shake it until the very earth trembles with our wrath..."

"And is filled with our blood?" said Benya. Sancho stood there, fists raised in the air, as if to shake the fence, exhorting the air, or so it seemed.

One of Benya's men muttered, "Who wants to shake the fence?" and another said: "Pass the grass," and yet another said "Shake rattle and roll, I said shake rattle and roll." He had burst into song, and soon all of Benya's men were singing and some of them even danced with each other.

"Let us go up to the fence," said Spunky, "and tunnel under. Let us have a celebration, and have ministers of the people make a benediction, and we will call the media, and we will tunnel under the fence."

Benya laughed until his voice sounded like a hoarse wheeze. He laughed so hard he had to fight to gain his breath. He clutched his throat, and said as best he could: "Spunky, stop it, you're killing me." And he laughed, and all of his men laughed, and the fire flickered on the cave wall, and it laughed too.

"That's a good one," said the Deputy.

"I say we go down into the streets and tie up the fucking city. We'll stop the traffic, we'll block the way into town, business will close!" a voice called from a shadowed corner.

"Oh it's a crazy situation, my merry band," said Benya, "it's very nuts. Never seen nothing like it. I'm sure it happened before, everything did, and will happen again. Never before in history, though, I am sure, was a wire clippers worth a million dollars. One man could go down there, sneak in commando style, Gregory Peck style, John Wayne style, and you know what? They'd have to bring back the troops, bring back the sheriff's men, and the whole thing will start again. And it will cost them another million."

"But we lost a man, Benya!"

"We are here on this earth to die!" cried out Sancho. "Death is an absurdity nobody can deal with. Nobody can make sense out of death. Especially in capitalist state! Capitalists fear death, more than all other peoples on the earth, for life is least sacred to them and death most sacred. A man cannot live until he faces death! We have to face it, some of us may die!"

"He's on a death trip," muttered one of the men slung against the cave wall.

"Listen to me," Benya said, "Sancho, any jacanapes can get killed, that takes no skill. Me, I'm not going to die. Nothing can kill Benya. Benya is immortal! And so are my men!"

"Right on! Right on!" cried the men.

"But we lost a man," said Sancho.

"But the rest, I feel sure," said Benya, "the rest are immortal!"

"Right on!" cried the men. "I have an idea Benya, I have an idea," said Spunky, "let's go up to the wall with a trumpet, and blow the fucking thing down, like Joshua did to the walls of Jericho!"

Benya doubled over again, and laughed and laughed and laughed. "That's rich," he said. "That's rich. And God is on our side, too!" He laughed, he laughed, he laughed.

He looked up to where the heavens might have been, stretched out his openhanded arms, and implored: "God, do you hear me? If I do not get back that mother-fucking park they will pay for it. They will pay for the deaths and the injuries, and they will pay and pay. The pigs will call it revenge and worse, but the people will call it justice. But I am not here for revenge, I am here for justice, and justice comes first. Set my people free. Let each man be free to choose his own state of consciousness. If he likes to put on a tie and a jacket and sit for eight hours filing papers, so be it. If he wants to drink martinis and get sloshed, so be it. If he wants to beat off in the back seat of his car, so be it. Who does he hurt, God, I'm asking you? If he should want to smoke some weed, so be it. God, I'm asking you and I am waiting for an answer."

A hush fell over Benya's men, as if they were to receive an answer to his supplication. Benya was a fighter, Benya was a fiend, but they knew he was a holy man above all else.

And God answered: "Benya, can

"you hear me?"
"Yes, God, I can."
"Benya, is it cold in your cave?"
"Yes, God, it is cold here in this cave."
"Benya, that fire there, it'll be twenty times hotter and all your men will be snug and warm." So it was, that in an instant, the fire became warmer, and shortly thereafter, Benya's men grew snug.
"Benya, aren't your men lonely here, without any women?"
"Yes, God, they are lonely here without any women."

"Here is a telephone," said God, and one appeared out of the air, "go make a call and speak to some chicks after I leave."
"Yes, God," said Benya.
"OK, about the park. The fire I made hotter, it will burn all night, you don't have to throw any wood on it, it's a miracle. The telephone I produced, but women you'll have to get for yourself. I could create women for you, but I created one once, and I am not about to do it again. Once was enough. Now the park and the fence. That you have to do for yourself."

"But why God," said Benya. "If you can work such miracles why not do this for us?"
"You're asking me question, Benya? You know God doesn't answer questions like that. Haven't you read the Bible? Please, I'm asking you to accept this at face value, you'll have to trust me. After all, I'm God, don't you have any respect? I said you'd have to get it for yourself, and that's that, and don't ask me why again or you'll piss me off."
"Now I'm going back to heaven, and let me give you the best of luck, and believe me, the other side does not have my blessings, Benya. They are death, and they are killers. They would kill the soil and the water and the air, and they have displeased me. I have watched from the heavens, I have felt the sting of tear gas and smog, I have felt the pigs' clubs come down on my head, I have burned, my very flesh has burned as the flesh of Vietnamese have burnt from napalm. I have cried out in pain more times than there are stars in the sky, and I have wondered what kind of creatures I have made."

"God is life. I have made all living things, and I will not see them destroyed. But only life can defeat death, for you and your men are immortal Benya, but the earth is not. If you must defend yourselves, Benya, you will be following the rule of all life, which is sacred to me. But if even a pig were offered, I would weep for him, and feel his pain, for I love life."

"Goodbye, Benya," said God. "Goodbye Spunky and Deputy," and he listed the names of all those present.
Everybody waved goodbye and God was gone. Late into the night, after the women had come the fire still kept them warm.

RECORD

by Jef Jaisun

Remember when rock and roll was just a plain old communist plot? Well, times have changed and so have the political games. Since nobody is buying the comic scare anymore some new scam had to be fabricated.

Eh bien, viola! Associated Press announced this week that Ralph "Kick-out-the-jams" Nader, notorious for investigations of auto safety, says "the amplified din of live rock music may be producing a new generation of hearing-impaired Americans and should be controlled."

In addition, Nader has petitioned two Senate subcommittees to conduct investigations to determine if local noise restriction ordinances are in order for rock clubs and "ear protection" for musicians and ballroom workers.

Nader bases his claims on the noise level readings taken in several DC nightclubs. Also, on results from hearing tests given freshmen at the University of Tennessee. Readings of between 100 and 116 decibels were recorded in these clubs, while come discotheques were measured as high as 138 dbs.

According to Nader the pain threshold for most people is 140 dbs. Also the American Medical Assn considers long exposure to levels of over 85 dbs hazardous to hearing.

Well, Corvair fans (anyone remember the Corvair?), to quote Dylan, some people don't have much food on their table, but they got a lot of knives and forks and they gotta cut something.

Nobody can ever deny that the volume levels in live rock ballrooms are frequently outrageous. I am most readily reminded of the Quicksilver Messenger Service, whose amps are always set at ten regardless. In fact, guitarist John Cipollina's set-up alone is quite formidable: two standels, a Fender twin, two Banshee horns, and four trumpet cones. (John has recently wired out the volume pot on his amp and controls it solely through his axe now.)

BUT, There is no requirement whatsoever that people be "sub-jected" to such "noises." Point A. Musicians are rarely affected by their own volume settings because the sound of their amps doesn't break till it gets about fifteen feet out. Point B. Constant decibel level exposure in terms of an audience is pure bullshit. No audience will sit still long enough for such a barrage to endanger their hearing. One would have to spend many hours a day, not just a few a week, under such conditions to accrue any sort of permanent damage.

People pack ballrooms to hear groups like the Quicksilver because THEY DIG IT. There is only one language in the world that every human being with working ears can understand and that is MUSIC! Instantaneously. You may not like it but you can understand it and recognize it immediately.

The Wilhelm/Baynes edition of the I Ching has a Chapter 16 entitled "Enthusiasm." It deals almost exclusively with the fact that in ancient times music was considered to be the highest form of communication with the spirits of the ancestors, and that it was through the idiom of music that one was brought closer to God. They did not speak of a decibel range (whether or not they had amplifiers is of little consequence); they spoke of the ecstasy encountered by the human soul while becoming very high on music. Not dope, MUSIC.

If Nader sees evil in this, may I suggest he also consider investigating the after-effects of the dropping of the atom bomb on Hiroshima, investigating the cause and effects of cigarette smoking and its related ills, the long range effects that the chemical warfare now being conducted in Vietnam and in the streets of Berkeley will have, and anything else in the related field.

As for his pain threshold throbbings, anyone who's had a good lay lately can advise Ralphie-poo on how close pain is to pleasure. And as for me, I would rather drawing lesson as well. With chalk in hand standing before a blackboard rigged near the judge's shoulder, the attorney pushed the doctor again and again to refresh his memory about the areas of the brain. Questioning the doctor if the trial could have a therapeutic affect on his defendants Hallinan asked if improved living conditions, better food and discipline, and the respect and admiration of others and the closeness of their military dilemma might not provide a different group of people for him to examine seven months after the fact.

It seems to the spectators that the good feelings these young men have found for each other might indeed be at least one good thing to have come out of this whole mess.

What was more interesting than Europe in the month of May? Berkeley.

Where was I? Europe!

That's how it goes. Come the revolution, I'll be someplace else. But I can't count on my favorite fuckup, vice-chancellor Earl Cheit, all the time (see BARB April 18). He told me then that the BARB was his "favorite newspaper" and I said that he was my favorite fuckup.

And man - did he prove it! Just before my wife and I left for Amsterdam, we all picked up rumors that Cheit was going to pull a sneak play and move in on the People's Park.

I contacted a friend in the university, and he said such a move would be "impossible - there wouldn't be a window left on Telegraph avenue."

This is the way Time magazine put it: "With all the thoughtfulness of laboratory animals responding to electric stimulation, the university reacted." The Pavlov-reflex administration created the two weeks that shook the nation, and Cheit was the Chief Fuckup.

In Europe, my first contact with Berkeley was in Zurich. I picked up the Paris Herald-Tribune and there on the front page was a picture of a Berkeley cop dragging a student across the street in front of Cody's.

We stood transfixed, our mouths open, staring at that photo. From that moment on, it was total frustration. I would scan all the foreign press, looking for this tell-tale word: "BERKELEY, UPI."

People watching me reading the papers must have thought I could read Swiss, French, Italian, German, Dutch.

Finally, one morning in Lucerne, there was a small, one-paragraph item on the front page with the magic words. I asked our waitress, a young girl student, to read it to me.

In that flat tone one seems to adopt on reading into another language, she said, "Ah, yes - the students want that land for use of all the people."

Then she stopped. "What happened?" I asked, frantically. She said, "The police charged them." End of translation.

That response to Berkeley was it for Europe.

The huge memorial-day march in Berkeley took place while we were still in Amsterdam. Nothing repeat nothing was printed, in English or the Scandinavian.

What was all the more frustrating was that in Amsterdam, they close down the shopping areas off the Damrak from 12 to 2 pm each day to autos. The shoppers take over and stroll in and out of the multitude of little shops, just like they could on Telegraph avenue if it ever becomes a mall.

Even the hippies draw on the street, if they can find room. Once in a while a tourist's car drives in by mistake, and the look on their faces indicates they must be driving on the sidewalk (an easy thing to do in Europe, by the way).

(Note: for those who are interested, some data on costs: in 1967, for 30 days, we spent $25 a day for EVERYTHING, hotels, food, trains, snacks. In 1969 we spent $29 a day for EVERYTHING, including a two-week car-rental from Vienna back to Amsterdam. Key to this low cost is the book "Europe On $5 a Day". Our plane-fares were not included in above costs. We are speaking of on-the-continent prices. We never spent over $10 for a hotel room, and never spent near $10 for a meal, something that is also quite easy to do unless you have that book and shop around). G.K.

Let me emphasize: the theme of the original fair was HELP SAVE THIS ENDANGERED SPECIES--but so much heavy information has surfaced in the past few weeks that the group changed the theme to EXTINCTION.

(An Open Letter To Readers Of The Berkeley Barb)

The Glass Family Wants YOU!

We, The Glass Family, are a new group on on Warner Bros.-Seven Arts Records. A couple of months ago, we put out our first album, called The Glass Family Electric Band. Billboard (the magazine) said:

"Astonishingly perceptive."

As far away as Raleigh, North Carolina, in a paper called The Technician, WPAK-FM program director David Brown said:

"The Glass Family have proven that they are the musical equals of anyone in Rock today. The songs are in a class by themselves. They are unique and meaningful and have melodies that will cling to the back of your mind and won't let go. Fantastic."

And the San Diego Free Press said:

"This group is TIGHT."

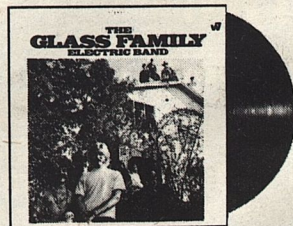

We don't know about all this because we're still arguing about the album among ourselves. We do know, however, that people who come to hear us (and not just our friends) tell us how much our music makes them want to move--which we take it means that it's good to dance to.

Which gets us to the point of this letter. We opened at the Fillmore Thursday (June 5) and will be there again Friday, Saturday, and Sunday (June 6, 7, 8). We've been waiting two years to play there (it means a lot to L.A. groups that have been around for a while), and now that we've got the gig we want you to come.

We thought the best way to get you interested was to print all this in the Barb, so we asked Warners to lay out the bread for an ad. Which they did. They are also making sure that our album is in the stores while we're in town, so you can pick up a copy if you like. The number is WS 1776, and the name again (to slip in a bit of sell) is The Glass Family Electric Band.

Anyway, come to the Fillmore and (if you don't psych us out) we'll have a groovy time.

Peace & Love,
The Glass Family

HORSESHIT IS NOT FOR PARENTS
Suppose some young, intelligent man or woman gets hold of a copy of Horseshit Magazine. Naturally they like it very much. We said they were young and intelligent, didn't we? Okay, since they like Horseshit so much, sometimes they show it to their parents. This is almost always a mistake. Most parents are shocked beyond words by Horseshit. You see, parents believe in a thing called 'pornography.' Every age group is like that. Little kids believe in 'the boogey man,' and parents believe in 'pornography.' According to them, 'pornography' seizes young people and drives them insane with lust. You can't blame parents for worrying. They've been lying to their children about sex for years, and the thought that someone might finally tell them the truth is pretty upsetting. Anyway, Horseshit is dangerous for parents. They'll see our parody of the Kama Sutra with the pictures of those couples in all those incredible positions and they'll panic. They'll think we're serious! Protect your parents! Keep your Horseshits out of their hands.

This is the author

An exciting and totally irreverent young man whose wildly funny, sadly tragic, and completely authentic novel, The Magic Garden of Stanley Sweetheart, dissects and reveals today's freaked-out generation

Stanley Sweetheart is a young man who goes to Columbia University . . . occasionally. He has long hair, but he's not a hippy. He thinks sex is a groove, but he's not sure what it's all about. He digs the drug scene, but he's terrified of getting too high. He's for revolution, but he's anything but a militant. He's made parts of two underground movies but, knowing Stanley, he'll never finish either of them. In short, he's merely drifting. Digging anything that feels good—like seducing his girl friend's roommate—and tuning out everything that's ugly—like most of New York City.

Stanley's adventures and experiences take him into every conceivable weirdness—from coed group gropes to unimagined depravities—while he proclaims his simple motto, "Let it all happen." Till at last Stanley realizes that life is not just a game, and the price of self-awareness is often self-destruction.

Meet and greet Stanley, an adventurer in the new American wilderness. You'll like him. He's every mother's son and every father's enemy. He's the cream of American youth, slowly curdling. He's Holden Caulfield on acid. He's Andy Hardy who won't go home. He's America in oh so blessed '69. Maybe he'll make it and maybe he won't. Enter now—

HIPPOCRATES

(copyright 1969)
Eugene Schoenfeld, M.D.

Does marijuana impair driving ability? Not in experienced users, according to a study published in the May 16th SCIENCE. Members of the Division of Research of the Washington State Department of Motor Vehicles and Departments of Pharmacology and Psychiatry of the University of Washington School of Medicine gave tests simulating actual driving conditions to 36 marijuana fiends .

The group scored no more total errors on the simulated driving test when stoned than when they were straight. Alcohol, however, caused them to score significantly more driving errors.

The driver-training simulator consisted of a mockup of a car facing a 6 by 18 foot screen in a totally darkened room.

"The test film gave the subject a driver's eye view of the road as it led him through normal and emergency driving situations on freeways and urban and suburban streets."

Alfred Crancer, Jr., of the Washington Department of Motor Vehicles, had previously found in a five year study that a driving simulator test could predict future driving skills (an actual behind - the-wheel test could not). Factors tested during the 23 minute driving film were accelerator, brake, turn signals, steering and speedometer.

The average age of the 36 heads was 22.9 years; 7 were female and 29 male. Each subject had three "treatments." One treatment consisted of waiting in a comfortable lounge with no drug administered before taking the simulator test. The second consisted of drinking 2 Bloody Marys or 2 Screwdrivers of a concentration sufficient to cause a 0.10% blood alcohol level (nearly half of drivers fatally injured in auto accidents have been found to have a blood alcohol level of 0.05% or more). The third seemed to be a treat as well as a treatment and consisted of smoking 2 joints of a batch of marijuana kindly provided by the National Institutes of Health.

More "speedometer errors" were made when stoned than when straight but in this test speedometer errors mean not speeding but amount of time looking at the speedometer. The authors of the study believe that drivers when high on marijuana spend less time looking at the speedometer because their sense of time perception is altered by the drug. "They often report alteration of time and space perceptions, leading to a different sense of speed which generally results in driving more slowly."

The conclusions of this paper coincide with observations often reported by chronic marijuana users. Some individuals greatly fear driving under the influence of marijuana; others enjoy driving while stoned and believe they perform at least as well as when straight. Driving under the influence of any drug is best avoided but it seems as if another marijuana myth may have been shattered.

QUESTION: Six weeks ago I delivered a beautiful healthy baby boy. My problem is my 2-1/2 year old spayed male cat who tries to nurse from me at the same time as my child.

I have repeatedly kicked him out of our bedroom but he refuses to split. If we close the door, he cries so loud that he disturbs our child. I have even tried "thumbs-it" but my efforts are in vain.

My man feels that if the cat wishes to nurse, let him do so. But I really cannot dig this scene. First, I believe it is not too hygienic. Second, he has sharp teeth. Third, he presses his claws against my body.

I know that if I confronted my obstetrician with this problem he would be so appalled that I imagine he would never deliver any future children that we may conceive. He is a very good Ob-Gyn man but terribly straight!

I would be very thankful if you could answer me as soon as possible because my boobs are getting sore and I have numerous claw marks on my abdomen. Thank you so much and please believe me, although it's so bizarre, this letter is on the level.

ANSWER: I almost decided to let this one go by saying a solution to your problem could best be given by one of the subjects in the above-mentioned study. But then I realized my red-bearded veterinary friend would have information about this thorny problem.

He informed me that nursing animals is a common practice of women in many parts of the world. In Melanesia, for example, mothers often nurse pigs (and politicians can make of that whatever they want).

The most feasible solution might be to have your veterinarian prescribe a tranquilizer. Remember that a drug intended for a 120 pound human may not be suitable for a 4 pound animal.

The People's Park incident has been a very educating occasion for a lot of people.

I think it taught the straights two very valuable lessons: calling in "all the force necessary" means relinquishing your own control of your own town; and there is far more responsibility among the young rebels than anyone thought.

The authorities learned that these are not just kids kicking against the traces. They mean business. They want a different culture than the one going. And there are getting to be more and more of them.

The revolutionaries themselves, I believe, learned that there is more to be gained by considered action than by just blindly striking back.

And I was most heartened by the emergence of this new thing called Peace Power. It's something I've been calling for over the years, though I didn't till now know what to call it.

If I dig it right, Peace Power has nothing to do with the old smarmy mystique of absolute non-violence. Worthy though it was as an ideal, it was self-defeating as a tactic. Instead of "What can we do effectively?" it posed the question as "How can we take action in the most conspicuously non-violent way possible?"

Peace Power is something that I've been insisting all along the New Left needed: an awareness of strategy. Essentially it has to do with that rock-bottom strategic axiom: Never let the enemy fight on grounds of his own choice. Take the initiative yourself.

The cops get rough, and it gets you mad. You'd like to rough them up in return. An understandable human reaction, and it would serve the buggers bloody well right.

But don't try it. You have neither the temperament nor the equipment to match them at rough stuff, let alone beat them.

You try it a different way. Do nothing to provoke the cops to get rough. Act so that they have to let you by. It's not necessary to hand them flowers or say that you love them; in fact, that could just get them more uptight. Address them respectfully if you have to talk to them; that won't hurt.

As the little boy said in Sunday school: "Love your enemies, it will drive them nuts."

And it has the side benefit of drawing sympathy from the kind of people who otherwise would be out to do you in. As see the front page of last Saturday's Gazette.

In the course of writing this I talked to a friend who was less optimistic than myself. I pointed out to him that it did work this time. And of how many other recent approaches can you say that?

R.R.

Lonely 28 year old gay law student/businessman is searching for a man of similar tastes & interests for "courtship." This ad is sincere and sincere persons only should answer it. I am 6-1 tall, blondish, good but not muscular body, moderately attractive but no Greek god. I can afford and do live well and if things worked out, you could move into my plush penthouse. Searching for man 18-35 must be mature, attractive. To be basic, I prefer non-fair skinned men with good tans, hairy chests and no in bed inhibitions. I do not like the bar scene, drug users, or other social misfits. Prefer nonsmoker. Respondent should be a real person with real goals in his life. No "little boy" or hustler types needed nor desired. Please write to John Davis, P.O. Box 9101, Berkeley 94709. Will not answer unless recent photo enclosed. Not interested in mere "trick" material. Please tell about your interests, and give birth date. I could move to S.F. eventually. TIP DADDY BIGBUCKS NEEDS girl Friday light hours, heavy bread & leasid car to chick with head in right place. GREGARIOUS LONER 34, straight don't smoke or drink, in top physical condition, with vivid & boundless imagination supplemented by a rich sense of humor & a mind that proceeds logically & with acumen, expressing itself by a judicious use of words. I seek a discrete relationship with a woman 24-35 who does not regard helplessness & femininity as one & the same. A liberal, informed, & discerning thinker who is physically active with a relatively even, cheerful, & optimistic temperament, & a rich inner life that enables her to be content away from the crowd. I seek a concupiscent woman who knows her mind & could remain alone, but prefers the presence of a man, knowing each will contribute something worthwhile & exclusive to the other, & that despite its little pockets of hell, the well adjusted & lasting relationship is still the best thing going.
Please don't answer this ad if A) you spend 4 or more hours a week in the beauty parlor. B) the last book you read was THE ADVENTURERS, THE EXHIBITIONIST, or VALLEY OF THE DOLLS. C) you worry about worry, are afraid of fear, or abhor technical details.
