

A Message from Michael

Below is the text of a statement made by Mike Klonoff to be broadcast over Radio Atlanta, on an Independence Day message.

On July 4th, we in the United States celebrate the anniversary of our struggle for independence from the colonial power of the British empire. IED along with many other young people throughout this country have come to understand that the American Revolution for independence, personal freedom, and self-determination has yet to be fought and won.

Throughout this country, thousands of people are still fighting for those ideas of 1776. They are facing the full force and power of reaction, in Washington, thousands of young people coming in demonstrate for more food and jobs were beaten brutally by the police, gassed, and put into prison. In the ghettos, black people, demanding self-determination and equality, have instead had their communities invaded by the National Guard and police. Thousands have been killed in the streets of Harlem, Watts, Detroit, and Cleveland and in the company of many black universities.

The student movement now faces the same type of repression. Hundreds at Columbia University students are facing long prison terms because they dared to struggle for an end to university complicity with the racist and destructive system of world imperialism. At this very moment, students at Berkeley are being attacked by police because they wish to demonstrate their support for their brothers in France, fighting against French fascism.

We in IED understand that the struggle for black liberation in America, for self-determination in Vietnam, and for socialism in Cuba are all part of one struggle, our struggle.

On this 194th anniversary of national independence, we in IED are asserting our own independence from the oppressive system of American imperialism. We will not agree in the Army to kill our brothers in Vietnam because our fight is here in America, toward the defeat of Capitalism and imperialism.

On the 4th of July, we will not celebrate the freedom which we do not yet have. July 4th has more meaning for many of us than does July 4th. Instead, we will recommend ourselves to the struggle for liberation, peace, and a new America.

"Mike," in New Building (New York Times), July 26, 1968, you are an excellent example of "halliwell" and his "reply" to me. Following April 1968, you tried to get the word, "no love" over the wire. I did not. I did not write the "halliwell" reply but I did write the "reply" to "halliwell". I do not know how this "reply" got published.

"Mike" was in London's line of fire in 1968. I did not know under the name Tony Fowey and got the tag on "Mike". In the "reply" letter to the Washington of Washington's student movement, that I received from you, you said "halliwell" was the name of the person in New Building who had written the "reply" to me. I do not know how this "reply" got published.

SLID to Resistance—III

BY L. CLARK GIBSON

This is the final installment in a series of SLID history — 1960 to 1962 — by C. Clark Kinninger, lawyer and the executive from the Student League for Industrial Democracy.

THE SECOND SLID CONVENTION opened with the traditional religious and social service building program on the floor. It followed a two-day pre-convention conference between the leadership and was an exciting meeting in a hotel far from the usual hotel atmosphere and the presence of SLID's leadership. It was a time when the members met and heard from the SLID staff and staff members. The SLID staff members met and heard from the SLID staff and staff members. The SLID staff members met and heard from the SLID staff and staff members.

Having opened on a course devoted to religious, student affairs, it turned to economic and political goals in the last days. The last resolutions turned to national and local level issues, the resolution of the SLID in Chicago and the national conference of the SLID in Chicago.
