Patagonia: Tracking Pumas and Cruising the Fjords

Patagonia is a paradise for nature lovers, with its golden pampas, verdant forests, and sheer granite peaks. Its rugged topography and southern latitude make it a haven for unique fauna, including prowling pumas. In remote Tierra del Fuego, magnificent tumbling glaciers descend right to water's edge and the wildlife ranges from Magellanic penguins to austral parakeets. On our wildlife odyssey with WT Trip Leader Karen Lund Petersen, an Argentine naturalist and long-time WT Trip Leader, we begin with a four-day cruise by expedition ship. We'll voyage through Tierra del Fuego from Ushuaia, Argentina, to Punta Arenas, Chile, into a realm of soaring fjords, ice floes, glaciers, and marvelous Fuegian wildlife. We then enter a completely different world as we head to Chile's renowned Paine National Park, a UNESCO Biosphere Reserve and a surreal landscape of iconic granite towers carved by ice. Here we'll set out to track pumas, the "ghost of the Andes," with expert local trackers. Paine is thought to hold a higher concentration of pumas than anywhere else on earth, and to spot one in the grandeur of Paine National Park is a spine-tingling experience. In addition to Paine's big cats, we'll keep an eye out for guanacos, native foxes (both Patagonian gray fox and Fuegian fox), armadillos, flamingos, soaring condors, and more. Our accommodation in Paine is a historic estancia (ranch) on the edge of the park. Karen lives in remote northern Patagonia with her family and is a gifted professional naturalist. She's the ultimate guide to unlock the secrets of this realm. Join us for the natural history trip of a lifetime!

DAY 1 USHUAIA, ARGENTINA

Arrive in Ushuaia, set between the sea and the snow-capped 8,000-foot peaks of the Cordillera Darwin, only 600 miles from Antarctica! You'll be met for a transfer to our hotel, Los Yamanas, with its views across the Beagle Channel. This famous body of water was named for the H.M.S. Beagle, the ship that brought naturalist Charles Darwin and Captain Robert Fitz Roy here in 1833. We gather for a trip briefing and our Welcome Dinner this evening...D

Please note: Should you wish to stop for an overnight in Buenos Aires a day ahead to rest up from jet lag and enjoy the city, we are happy to book an extra hotel night for you (an "on your own" expense).

DAY 2 ESTANCIA HARBERTON / BEAGLE CHANNEL / ZODIAC RIDE / MAGELLANIC PENGUIN COLONY

We travel through the peat valleys of Tierra del Fuego to Harberton, the first estancia ever established in Tierra del Fuego. Leaving right from the estancia, we take a covered Zodiac-style boat along the Beagle Channel to Gable Island, with views of the channel as far as the distant town of Puerto Williams in Chile. We'll head back via Martillo Island, where we can walk among Magellanic penguins. These birds are always a highlight, with their antics and vocalizations as they waddle along the beaches of the Beagle Channel. Three thousand pairs of Magellanic penguins and a smaller colony of gentoo penguins breed here. Time permitting, we'll visit the fascinating Acatushun Museum, which holds one of the largest collections of marine mammal specimens in the world, with displays of the bones of penguins, dolphins, and whales. Overnight at the hotel in Ushuaia...BLD

DAY 3 BOARD EXPEDITION SHIP / BEAGLE CHANNEL

After a day exploring around Ushuaia, we head to the dock in the late afternoon to embark aboard the ship with our Trip Leader. We'll settle into our cabins, then gather for a welcome toast and an introduction to the Captain and his crew. As we enjoy our dinner, the ship will sail south through the famed Strait of Magellan, Beagle Channel, and fjords of Tierra del Fuego. Overnight on board the Ventus Australis or Stella Australis...BLD

DAY 4 CAPE HORN / WULAIYA BAY

Sailing through Murray Channel and Nassau Bay, we arrive at Cape Horn National Park in the morning. We'll disembark (weather conditions permitting!) for a walk in one of the most legendary settings in the world, the narrow cape at the very tip of South America where the Pacific and Atlantic oceans meet. Two sets of islands separated by a narrow channel make up this park, a UNESCO Biosphere Reserve. In the afternoon, cruise to Wulaia Bay, disembarking to visit an archaeological site that includes evidence of the indigenous Yagan people who once occupied this area. The Yagan were nomads and hunter-gatherers who used canoes to travel between islands. We'll also take a nature walk through the native Magellanic forest, with its lengas, coigües, canelos, and ferns. During our time on board, the ship's English-speaking guides and guest lecturers deliver presentations and slide shows on various aspects of Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego. Overnight on board ...BLD

DAY 5 PIA GLACIER / GLACIER ALLEY / PORTER GLACIER

We sail along the northwest arm of the Beagle Channel this morning and enter Pia Fjord, where the spectacular Pia Glacier cascades down to water's edge, shedding enormous chunks of ice in hues of turquoise. We'll voyage through a setting known as "Glacier Alley," exploring by Zodiac amid the natural wonder all around us, with the opportunity for a hike. In the afternoon, we navigate by Zodiac between high rocky walls to reach the Porter Glacier. Overnight on board... BLD

DAY 6 AGOSTINI SOUND / CONDOR GLACIER

This morning, our ship enters the Cockburn Channel, which brings us to Agostini Sound, a deep fjord that separates two branches of the Cordillera Darwin mountains. Many of the glaciers here descend right to the sea. We'll head out by Zodiac and take a walk around a lagoon formed by the melting of the Aguila Glacier. An afternoon Zodiac ride takes us close to the Condor Glacier, with an opportunity to learn how glaciers are formed and how they influence the geography of the Fuegian channels. Overnight on board...BLD

DAY 7 MAGDALENA ISLAND PENGUIN COLONY / PUNTA ARENAS / PAINE NATIONAL PARK

We arrive at Magdalena Island early this morning, weather conditions permitting, to visit its famed colony of Magellanic penguins, some 60,000 strong. We'll reboard and cruise to Punta Arenas, Chile, to disembark. In the afternoon, a long but scenic drive brings us to world-famous Paine National Park, a surreal realm of stone carved by ice. We'll have lunch en route. The stunning granite cuernos (horns) of the Paine Massif will come into view as we go, rising above sparkling lakes and braided rivers woven into the tawny tones of the Patagonian steppe. We'll follow the park's gravel roads, with stops for photography and wildlife viewing, to our home for the next four nights, Estancia Cerro Guido, on the rolling pampas east of Paine National Park...BLD

Approximate Driving Time: 4-5 hours, including photo stops

DAYS 8-10 PUMA TRACKING WITH EXPERTS

With three full days of puma tracking, we have excellent chances to see and photograph these beautiful cats (although sightings cannot be guaranteed). Among our team of trackers is expert Jose Wayaja, known as "The Puma Man," a well-known tracker with a deep knowledge of the park's puma population. As the son of a legendary park ranger in Paine, Jose knows the best places and times to see these big cats, and will be in close radio contact with our puma-tracking team as they constantly scout the best areas for sightings.

We depart the estancia each day by vehicle, then set out on foot to do our tracking. The hiking and walking is not on difficult terrain, but because we are out for long periods of time, it can be demanding. Once we do find a puma, we will remain in the same spot for a long period to observe and track its activities. Throughout each day, there will be dramatic views of the landscape of Paine National Park and the photo opportunities will be fantastic.

Our exact explorations will depend on where the best chance of seeing a puma is on a given day according to our puma trackers. Typically, early mornings and late afternoons are the best times. We'll start early, typically be out until about 11:00 am, then return to the estancia for lunch and a rest, with a return to the field in around 3:30 pm, staying out as late as 7:00 pm, as the viewing conditions dictate. We may choose to take a lunch with us and can stay out all day if conditions warrant.

Pumas exist in relatively high numbers in 900-square-mile Paine National Park due the abundance of prey, including guanacos and hares, and the relative scarcity of humans. There are about 50 pumas known to live in the park. The animals were hunted here until 1972, but the creation of Paine National Park gave them a place of refuge. With their sandy coats, they are well camouflaged by the park's yellow grasses and reddish scrub. They are solitary, except when females have cubs, and largely nocturnal but also active during certain times of the day. Their main prey is the guanaco, a cousin of the Andean llama, and they also feed on hares, deer, birds, and rodents. Besides looking for pumas, we'll have plenty else to look for, from South American gray foxes (known as the Patagonian fox) to Patagonian armadillos, soaring Andean condors, and rheas (a large South American flightless bird) seen trotting along the roads. Overnights at Cerro Guido... BLD each day

DAY 11 PUMA TRACKING / PUNTA ARENAS

After a last morning of puma tracking, an afternoon drive brings us back to Punta Arenas, where we gather for our festive Farewell Dinner. Overnight at Hotel Yegua Loca... BLD

Approximate Driving Time: 5 hours

DAY 12 DEPART

Transfer to the airport and connect with flights to Santiago and homeward (or join one of our extensions)...B

Iguazú Falls Extension

One of the most stunning natural wonders in the world, Iguazú Falls stretches a full mile across the Rio Parana, with 275 separate cascades—one third on the Brazilian side, two thirds on the Argentinian side—laced with rainbows and plunging hundreds of feet in a mist-shrouded subtropical landscape, truly an other-worldly spectacle. The cascades form part of the Iguazú National Park, known for more than 400 different species of birds. A walk along the footbridges of the park is a chance to spot colorful toucans and other birds. The park was declared a Natural World Heritage for Humanity by UNESCO in 1984. The Falls can be reached by paths, footbridges, and Zodiac boats, offering a number of different perspectives.

The birdlife around the Falls is abundant and fascinating. Overnight at the Hotel Gran Melia Iguazú...meals on own

DAY 2 TOUR ARGENTINE SIDE OF IGUAZÚ FALLS

Meet your guide first thing in the morning to take the train to Devil's Throat Lookout (the early morning start avoids the crowds). Here a catwalk trail brings you to a viewing platform right by the horseshoe-shaped main cascade, where several powerful falls unite (bring a dry bag to protect your camera from the heavy mist). After lunch at the hotel, enjoy an exciting afternoon boat ride to the base of the roaring cascade—be prepared to get wet! Overnight at the Hotel Gran Melia Iguazú...BL

Our Guide

MAKES ALL THE DIFFERENCE

Leaders with passion and deep knowledge of their destinations make all the difference to your experience. Our leaders are Patagonia experts—many have been guiding here for over 20 years. Their deep knowledge of the region’s natural history and local culture enriches your journey immensely, and their personal connections will bring you into the heart of this fascinating region. The Trip Leader will be joined by local guides throughout the trip.

KAREN LUND PETERSEN

Karen Lund Petersen, born and raised in Buenos Aires, has a degree in Environmental Science and a passion for sharing nature with people—especially Patagonia’s wild nature. She now lives with her family in a small village in the forests of northern Patagonia. When not out guiding our trips, she works in her vegetable garden, teaches sustainability, and lectures on food production and consumption. “I love how wild Patagonia still is. When you travel here, you feel a deep respect for the powers of nature—the strong winds, the vast openness, the magnificent granite walls, glaciers, plants, and animals... I love it all. And I especially love sharing it with others.”

What the Trip is Like

WHAT THE TRIP IS LIKE

The trip is Level 2, Easy to Moderate, with vehicle-based exploration and day hikes, hotel and lodge accommodations plus four nights aboard an expedition cruise ship. While this is not a hiking trip, it is an active adventure, and the shape you're in is an important factor in your enjoyment of your trip

Please note that your Trip Leader may make adjustments to the itinerary and hiking routes, depending on local weather and trail conditions.

TERRAIN

The walking and hiking will be over relatively easy terrain, and during the 2.5 days of puma tracking when we find a puma we will remain in one area for some time to observe it. However, given that we will be outdoors in Patagonia and walking for many hours at a time, it can feel physically demanding, so you should be in good shape and have some endurance.

WEATHER

We time our trips for Patagonia's ideal weather, which is from late November through March, when we can enjoy the mildest temperatures and 16 hours of daylight. November (spring) is blessed with wildflowers and March (fall) offers the start of spectacular fall foliage. With its deep southern latitude, you might expect Patagonia's weather to be more "polar" than it really is. In fact, the austral summer temperatures are relatively moderate. During Patagonia's summer months (November through March in the Southern Hemisphere), the thermometer rarely drops below 40°F and will usually reach into the high 60s and even low 70s during the day. Nevertheless, the weather is radically changeable. Rain, sleet, and snow can occur at any time—perhaps just a few hours before or after sunny skies and 70° temperatures.

The enormous, unbroken stretches of ocean to the west and south of the tip of South America leave the Patagonian Andes exposed to strong and persistent winds. Winds circling the globe between latitudes of 40°S and 60°S have little obstruction when they reach the tip of South America. Experiencing these winds is almost inevitable on any Patagonian journey. For most part, you can expect winds of 9 to 13 miles per hour, but they can occasionally gust much higher, quickly "cooling down" an otherwise pleasant day.

There's a saying that in Patagonia that you can experience all four seasons in one day, so be prepared for quickly changing weather. The best defense is proper clothing and layering, and our Pre-Departure Booklet has a detailed list of recommendations for layering.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Four nights are on a 210-guest expedition ship, either the Ventus Australis or her identical sister ship, the Stella Australis. These vessels, specifically designed for Tierra del Fuego, let us explore in comfort amid the rugged fjords of the extremely remote Cordillera Darwin range. Meals on board are varied, with meat, pasta, soups, and vegetarian options, plus locally sourced items such as king crab or fresh-caught fish when available. Shore landings are made by Zodiac, with life jackets provided.

TRANSPORTATION

There will be one 5-hour driving day (Day 7) as we disembark and drive to our estancia in the outskirts of Paine National Park. Everyone should be prepared for bumpy, dusty road conditions, and all will have a window seat on our vehicle.

Unfortunately, this law does not cover non-California residents and, even in the case of California residents, it does not cover any foreign travel where the foreign "providers of transportation or travel services" are not in compliance with the Sellers of Travel Law (compliance being defined as registered as a Seller of Travel in California and a participant in the Travel Consumer Restitution Fund). Thus none of Wilderness Travel's tours qualify and we are required by law to advise each client that they are not covered by the California Travel Consumer Restitution Fund.
