Peru Private Journey

WHEN TO GO

March to December

Discover the spectacular land of the sun-worshipping Incas, with its breathtaking mountain landscapes, mystical fortress-cities, and thriving cultural and artistic heritage. With your private guide, you'll head out to the beautiful Urubamba Valley, sacred to the Incas, to explore the stupendous ruins of Písac, with its Inca-built terracing, and majestic Ollantaytambo, the hilltop fortress where rebel Manco Inca and his men held out against Pizarro's forces. You'll experience two days at glorious Machu Picchu, a stunning city of stone perched on a sheer precipice 1,500 feet above the Urubamba River. So well hidden in the jungle-covered ramparts of the Cordillera Vilcabamba that the Spaniards never knew of it, this "lost city" allows a vivid experience of the Inca world. In Cusco, enjoy an insider's walking tour of the ancient heart of the Inca Empire, and nearby Inca sites including awe-inspiring Saqsayhuaman, the majestic fortress overlooking city.

DAY 1

ARRIVE / CUSCO / PÍSAC / SACRED VALLEY OF THE INCAS

Upon arrival in Cusco, the former capital of the Incan empire and nestled at a lofty 11,200', you are met by your guide and transferred to the beautiful "Sacred Valley of the Incas" and Pisac (9,751'), a colonial and modern village above which lies a majestic Inca fortress overlooking the valley. You'll wander the ruins and learn the fascinating history of the area. After lunch, you'll have some time to visit the local Pisac market. You may also visit the Awana Kancha cultural project that has a farm of vicunas, guanacos, alpacas, and llamas, and their textile center or another local community that raises guinea pigs. Overnight at Tambo del Inka...LD

Active Option: You have the option to hike Pisac's towering fortress-ruin (11,100'), which has some of the finest examples of Inca terracing in existence, still in use by local inhabitants, then descend 1,349 feet to the colonial Pisac village.

Optional Hiking Details: 2.5-3 hours, 1,349 feet descent

Pisac and the Urubamba Valley: The Urubamba Valley was sacred to the Incas for many reasons, a key one being that it has a moderate climate and fertile plains, a rare combination in the high Andes. It is also the route to the jungle, from which the Incas liked to bring tropical fruits and plants (including coca, which was used in rituals). In the Urubamba Valley is the picturesque Andean village of Pisac and a major Inca ruin of the same name. The ruin at Pisac was the largest fortress-city complex of the Incas, yet is another enigma to archaeologists. It was a classic Inca pucara, a huge defended area where the entire population of a wide area could retreat during a military threat, but despite its natural defenses, the Incas made no stand here against the Spaniards. Pisac is particularly well known for the Inca-built terracing—there is an incredible sweeping vista of dozens of terraces, still used for farming, cascading down to the Chongo River valley below. These are the best preserved and most extensive Inca terraces in Peru and were used during Inca times for growing maize, a prestige crop that needed irrigation in the dry highlands. Another interesting feature of the site is its many cliff tombs, found especially in the steep walls to the west of the ruins. Huaqueros (grave robbers) reached them before the archaeologists and today all that is left is a honeycomb of empty tombs in the nearby cliffs.

MORAY / MARAS / CHINCHERO

A half-hour's scenic drive brings us to the enigmatic Inca terraces of Moray. The Incas built concentric terraces in natural depressions in the earth here, thought by many scholars to have been experimental agricultural stations for crop hybrids. We then continue to the colonial town of Maras and begin our downhill hike past ancient salt mines where a natural saline spring flows into hundreds of terraced pools. This breathtaking site is still the main salt supply for the Cusco area, as it was in pre-Hispanic times. After lunch, we visit the quaint village of Chinchero, where there is a large colonial church built directly on top of Inca walls, and walk through the extensive archaeological site that was believed to have been the palace of Topa Inca Yupanqui, the tenth Inca king. Overnight at Tambo del Inka...BL

Active Option: From Chinchero, set off on the gentle downhill hike that brings you through a series of wooded canyons and into a vast landscape overlooking the Sacred Valley, which spreads out below you in a stunning panorama.

Descend to the Urubamba Valley where you are met for the drive to your hotel. Please note: there is no time to visit Moray and Maras with this active option.

Optional Hiking Time: Approximately 3-4 hours

“The itinerary was well planned and everything went very smoothly. The hotels were comfortable, their surroundings were beautiful, and their staffs were gracious and helpful. We have traveled extensively in North America and Europe and have never before been on a tour of any kind. This was a unique experience and we are delighted to have done it.”

Sandra S., West Falls, NY

DAY 3

PUMAMARCA / OLLANTAYTAMBO

This morning you'll visit Pumamarca, a stunning Inca site set above Ollantaytambo. The leisurely hike links the ruins of Pumamarca with some extensive Inca-built agricultural terraces and an ancient Inca path along the Patacancha valley from Pumamarca to Ollantaytambo. Later, you'll explore the major temple-fortress of Ollantaytambo and the classic village below it. Majestic Ollantaytambo, set out on a river cliff at the lower edge of a canyon, is the fortress where rebel Manco Inca and his men held out against Pizarro's forces in one of the only battles the Spaniards lost. At its top are huge granite blocks that mark an unfinished sun temple where the mummified remains of Inca nobles were buried. The charming traditional village below the ruins is a "living" Inca village, one of the few that retain the stonework, narrow streets, and family courtyards of its original Inca plan. Overnight at Tambo del Inka... BLD

Hiking Details: (Pumamarca) 3.5 miles, 2 hours; (Ollantaytambo) 2-3 hours

DAY 4

MACHU PICCHU

This morning, board the train with your guide for a short ride through the Urubamba Valley to Machu Picchu. At the Machu Picchu station, head up to the ruins by bus and explore the sanctuary on an afternoon tour, visiting the reconstructed ruins of staircases, altars, temples, and fountains and enjoying the incredible setting. After lunch, enter Machu Picchu again for another guided tour of the ruins. Overnight at the Machu Picchu Sanctuary Lodge...BLD

Active Option: You have the option of taking the morning train to Kilometer 104 for the one-day hike up to Intipunku, Gate of the Sun. Along the way, you'll pass Wiñay Wayna, the last major site on the trail before you get to Machu Picchu. Wiñay Wayna ("Forever Young") is one of the most beautiful small Inca ruins, especially when it is seen from a distance, clinging to the side of a ravine. It's named for an orchid, once abundant in this region, that blooms year-round and hence had the Quechua name of "forever young." A large round structure commands the site and below is a flight of stairs that leads down past 10 ritual baths, a feature of major Inca sites. Continue to Intipunku, where a magnificent view unfolds before you: the storybook ruins of Machu Picchu, straddling a green ridge high above the Urubamba River. This spot has an absolutely classic view of Machu Picchu, and you will hike down into the ancient city just as the Incas would have done. Please note: there is only one guided tour of Machu Picchu possible on this day, if selecting this active option. Cost is $225 per person.

Optional hike details: 7.5 miles, 5-6 hours. 2,600' ascent from the train station to the trail. Highest elevation on the hike is 8,860'.

"It was excellent from start to finish. I've taken many group tours, and this sets a new standard for excellence!"

Rachel R., Edina, MN

“This trip was a fantastic blend of Peru's color and culture through beautiful and unique accommodations, delicious and authentic meals, a superb itinerary, allowing us to fully immerse ourselves in Incan history and enjoy the services of a very personable and knowledgeable guide!”
Jenny C., Calgary, Alberta

Machu Picchu: So well hidden in the jungle-covered ramparts of the Cordillera Vilcabamba that the Spaniards never knew of it, Machu Picchu allows us a glimpse into the Inca world. American historian Hiram Bingham, who had a fascination with Peruvian archaeology, found the site in 1911 while searching for the ruins of Vilcabamba, known to be the last place where the rebel Manco II took refuge. A villager told Bingham about some ruins on a high ridge above the Urubamba River and led him there; thus, Bingham found the ruins not of Vilcabamba, but of a mysterious Inca city now believed to be one of the royal estates of the 9th Inca king, Pachacuti—whose name translates as “Transformer of the World.” Pachacuti was a kind of New World Alexander the Great, whose son and grandson continued and consolidated the expansion of Inca power. Bingham returned in 1912 and 1915 to undertake the difficult task of clearing the thick forest that had engulfed the ruins. Peruvian archaeologist Luis Valcarcel undertook further studies and vegetation clearing in 1934, and in 1940 and 1941, a Peruvian-American expedition led by Paul Fejos did more study. Archaeologists know that Machu Picchu was built, occupied, and then abandoned in the course of 100 years. Discoveries in the 1980s of many other small ruin sites close to Machu Picchu have given weight to the theory that Machu Picchu also served as the administrative center of a huge and populous region. Whatever Machu Picchu's purpose was, it is certainly one of the most stunning archaeological sites in the world.

MACHU PICCHU / CUSCO

Explore the wonders of Machu Picchu, with the option to climb Huayna Picchu if you wish. The Palace of Princesses, Temple of the Sun, Temple of the Condor, and the astronomical observatory are only a few of the remarkable restored ruins here. The many beautiful altars, terraces, fountains, and mysterious chambers all display intricate stonework. Transfer to the last afternoon train (with your guide), which brings you back to Cusco around 6:00 pm. You will be met on arrival in Cusco for transfer to the hotel. Overnight at Palacio del Inka...BL

DAY 6

CUSCO / CITY TOUR

This morning, enjoy a private guided walking tour through central Cusco, once the elegant imperial city of the Incas. The streets of Cusco are lined with massive Inca-built stone walls and the foundations of many colonial and modern buildings are set on Inca stonework. Your walking tour typically includes a visit to the central square called the Plaza de Armas, Cusco's ancient and modern center, and the baroque cathedral, a great repository of colonial art that sits on the foundations of the Inca Wiracocha's palace. After lunch, you will visit awe-inspiring Saqsayhuaman, the majestic Inca fortress overlooking Cusco. With its three tiers of outer walls made of massive and perfectly fitted limestone blocks, it is the largest and one of the most impressive Inca sites in existence. The zig-zag configuration of its walls may indicate that it was a temple dedicated to the Inca's important lightning god, although some scholars feel the zig-zags represent the teeth of a puma.

Inhabited by proto-Incas as early as 1100 AD, Cusco was partly rebuilt in the early 15th century by Pachacutec, the Inca warrior-king. He is credited with creating the Incas' form of worship, system of government, and the distinctive masonry style we still marvel at today. Cusco was laid out in the shape of a puma. The megalithic fortress of Sacsayhuaman formed its head, while palaces, temples, squares, and streets formed the puma's body and legs. Cusco's paved avenues were flanked by temples and rock-hewn palaces with gold- and jewel-encrusted doors, and there were lavish villas for the Inca nobles and their retinues. Cusco's opulent inner sanctum was the Coricancha, or House of the Sun, a glittering temple to the gods, full of golden statues. Today the stonework remnants of this temple form the foundation for the colonial church of Santo Domingo. Overnight at Palacio del Inka...BL

CUSCO / OPTIONAL EXCURSION

Today is free for shopping and sightseeing on your own in Cusco. One can spend a delightful day here just exploring on foot to see the blend of Inca and colonial architecture. # Accommodations

DAYS 1-3 (3 NIGHTS): SACRED VALLEY OF THE INCAS, PERU

TAMBO DEL INKA

With its riverside location, lush park-like grounds, and wonderfully appointed rooms, this hotel is a little bit of luxury in the heart of the Sacred Valley. The views of the surrounding mountains are superb, and the pool and sauna are a great place to unwind after a day of exploring. Sip a drink around the cozy stone fireplace, then get ready for a delicious meal. Got some extra time? The spa offers a variety of soothing treatments.

DAY 4 (1 NIGHT): MACHU PICCHU RUINS, PERU

MACHU PICCHU SANCTUARY LODGE

You can't get closer to the Machu Picchu ruins than this! With only 31 rooms, this property is famously set right at the gate of Machu Picchu. Not only does this save you from having to make the 30-minute bus trip to get up to or back from the ruins each day, but it also allows you the luxury of popping back to the hotel for a rest or a bite to eat whenever you like throughout the day. The hotel features a garden with a view of Huayna Picchu, two restaurants, and the food and service are wonderful. While the rooms are small and few offer views of the ruins, the Sanctuary remains the absolute top choice of travelers who decide that if they are only going to do it once, they might as well do it right!

DAYS 5-8 (3 NIGHTS): CUSCO, PERU

PALACIO DEL INKA

Set in front of the Coricancha, just off Cusco's central square, is the Palacio del Inka, a Luxury Collection Hotel. It is a favorite among travelers for its prime location as well as excellent service. Since being given a complete makeover, the hotel is beginning a new stage in its history as a luxury hotel. It boasts a spa with a highly trained staff and a restaurant overlooking the colonial-era courtyard. The restaurant offers Peruvian and Novoandina cuisine, the latter emphasizing native regional ingredients.

These are our signature accommodations for this trip. Although it is highly unlikely, we may make substitutions when necessary. To see more photos and descriptions, please visit our Peru Private Journey webpage and click on "Accommodations."

Trip Details

WHAT THE TRIP IS LIKE

This trip is Level 2, according to our trip grading system. It features vehicle-based sightseeing and day walks, with hotel accommodations throughout. Most of the walking is at considerable altitudes, ranging from 8,200 feet at Machu Picchu to 11,200 feet at Cusco. We do recommend you make special efforts to get in good physical condition for the trip, as it will greatly increase your enjoyment.

WEATHER

Being so close to the equator, Peru has only two climate seasons: a dry season from April to October, and a wet season from December to March. For hiking in the mountains, April to October is ideal; the countryside is green and lush, the skies are often blue and sunny, and the mountain vistas are at their clearest and most magnificent. However, it can be rainy any time throughout the year or be dry for several weeks during the wet season. Rains usually come as afternoon thunderstorms. Because of the mild nature of the wet season, this journey can be enjoyed year-round.

Altitude is the main factor controlling the climate. In the mountains, you'll encounter sunny days with daytime temperatures ranging between 65°F and 70°F, dropping to the 40s and lower at night. The sun is very strong at high altitude and it can often be warm enough to hike in shorts and a t-shirt. However, it can also get extremely cold; if you're familiar with mountain weather, you know how suddenly it can get cold even in the daytime if the sun slips behind a cloud. Nighttime temperatures can drop to below freezing. Rain should not be a problem on our hikes, but always keep in mind that mountain weather is unpredictable and sudden storms can occur, especially on high mountain passes. The best preparation for the changeable climate of the high Andes is to dress in layers. Lima lies in a coastal desert where rainfall is rare and temperatures are usually warm (70s and 80s).

GUIDED SERVICES

You will have a private guide in Cusco, the Sacred Valley, and at Machu Picchu, as specified in the itinerary.

CHILDREN

This is an excellent trip for children and families. The recommended minimum age is 10. Triple rooms (subject to availability) can be requested.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT TRIP

Adventure travel often involves exotic destinations, unusual levels of physical exertion, or activities you may not have participated in previously. We work hard to help you choose the right trip for you, paying attention to your individual interests, abilities, and needs. If you have questions about the level of comfort or any of the activities described in this itinerary, please call Wilderness Travel at 1-800-368-2794 and ask for the Latin America Manager or email us at latinamerica@wildernesstravel.com.
