Itinerary

DAY 1

MUMBAI, INDIA

Late evening arrival in Mumbai, on the west coast of India in the state of Maharashtra, where you are met for a transfer to your hotel. Overnight at hotel...Meals on your own

Classic Accommodation: The Fariyas Hotel

Optional Upgrade: The Taj Mahal Palace and Tower

(See Lodging section for photos and descriptions)

DAY 2

MUMBAI EXPLORATION

After breakfast, meet your private Mumbai guide for a full-day excursion, including lunch at a local restaurant with your guide. Begin with a visit of the Elephanta Caves, located six miles across the harbor on the small island of Elephanta (or Gharpure). Here lies a fine cluster of rock-cut caves carved in the 6th to 8th centuries during the Golden Age of the Guptas and inspired by the worship of Shiva. Of particular note among the beautifully executed sculptures is the figure of Maheshmurthy or Trimurthi, which represents the three aspects of Shiva: the Creator, Preserver, and Destroyer. The 15-foot-high, three-headed bust was hewn from a single rock. In the afternoon, enjoy a tour of the city including the historic synagogues, the Gateway of India, the city's iconic landmark overlooking the sea that was built to commemorate the visit of King George V and Queen Mary in 1911, the Manj Bhawan, where Mahatma Gandhi stayed during his visits here from 1917 to 1934, and the Crawford Market, one of the most famous in Mumbai. Dinner and overnight at hotel... BLD

Mumbai: Located on seven islands now joined by an artificial isthmus, Mumbai (formerly Bombay) was the first part of India to be colonized by the British. Because of its natural safe harbor, it held a strategic position for trade, and the East India Company leased the land from the Crown in 1668. The city thrived and grew quickly, and by the 20th century was the most prosperous city in the nation. Mahatma Gandhi used Mumbai as his base in the struggle for independence, and it was the scene of the farewell to the Raj, when British troops passed through the Gateway of India in 1948. Today Mumbai is a dynamic powerhouse of business, trade, and industry, including its film industry ("Bollywood"), the largest in the world.

DAY 3

AURANGABAD / ELLORA

After an early breakfast, transfer to the airport and fly to Aurangabad, gateway to the magnificent rock-cut chapels, temples, and monasteries at Ellora and Ajanta. With your private guide, visit the Buddhist, Hindu, and Jain caves at Ellora, a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Built between the 5th and 10th centuries, the 34 multi-level cave temples are carved into the volcanic rock and display an elaborate abundance of intricate bas-reliefs and sculptures depicting images of the Buddha, other deities, and garden scenes, as well as cathedral-like halls and courtyards. The Kailasanatha, a Hindu temple dedicated to Shiva, is undoubtedly the centerpiece of the Ellora complex and an outstanding example of Dravidian art. Designed to represent Mount Kailas, the abode of Shiva, the gigantic, multi-level freestanding temple was carved from a single rock and contains countless galleries with sculpted panels. It is estimated it took at least 100 years to complete construction of this dazzling monument. Lunch at a local restaurant. Dinner and overnight at Vivanta Aurangabad...BLD

AJANTA

Today, visit the Ajanta caves, stunningly situated in a wooded ravine in the Waghora Valley. These Buddhist cave temples and monasteries, also a UNESCO World Heritage Site, are older than those at Ellora and date from 200 BC to 650 AD. They lay unnoticed under thick vegetation for centuries until 1819, when British army officers discovered them while on a tiger hunt. The caves, hollowed out of granite cliffs, contain richly ornamented sculptures and are noted for the colorful fresco-like murals and paintings depicting Buddhist legends and deities. Lunch is at a local restaurant with your guide. Return to Aurangabad for dinner and overnight at hotel...BLD

KOCHI

An early morning flight (typically via Mumbai) brings you to Kochi (formerly Cochin), in the green and tropical state of Kerala, which is isolated on the Southern tip of India. This intriguing old city has a stunning location on a series of islands along the Arabian Sea as well as a long and colorful history as a trading city. The harbors of the Malabar coast were a favorite port of call in the spice trade for two thousand years, attracting a mix of Arab, Christian, and Jewish settlers and traders from the Middle East. In the 14th century, a flood created Kochi's safe harbor and soon made it the busiest port on the Malabar Coast. In the early 15th century, the Europeans arrived, and the Rajas of Kochi who were keen to expand the spice trade welcomed them. First came the Portuguese, and later the Dutch. The British arrived thereafter and eventually took control of the lucrative spice trade. By 1800, Kochi was part of the British Madras Presidency.

The afternoon is at leisure. You may wish to relax from the day's travels or prefer to head out on your own for an afternoon walk through the Broadway market at Emakulam, in the new part of the city, where shops offering beautiful textiles and jewelry lie alongside vegetable markets and wholesale provision stores. Dinner and overnight at the Eighth Bastion Hotel or upgrade to The Brunton Boatyard...BL (at airport) D

Driving Time (Kochi airport to your hotel): Approximately 1.5-2 hours

Classic Accommodation: Eighth Bastion

Optional Upgrade: The Brunton Boatyard

DAY 6 KOCHI

Set out for a full day of sightseeing with your private guide, beginning with Kochi's old Fort Kochi district, a quiet European enclave that still contains some fine old British mansions and a few Dutch cottages. This area includes India's first Christian church, the St. Francis, which may have been built by Franciscan friars from Portugal. The original wooden structure burned and was rebuilt in stone in the 16th century. In Kochi's historic Mattancherry district, you will visit the Mattancherry Palace, locally known as the Dutch Palace, built by the Portuguese and given as a gift to the Rajas of Kochi. Its exterior is not notable but its interior is adorned with fantastic and richly detailed 16th century murals that illustrate stories from the Ramayana, one of Hinduism's epic stories. The Mattancherry district bustles with traders in tea, jute, rubber, and spices, and is the area called Jewtown, where the Pardesi Synagogue, founded in 1568, still exists. Jews were a respected part of Keralan life until the arrival of the Portuguese, who brought the persecution of Jews with them. Many Jewish names are seen on houses and businesses in this district, but most of Kochi's Jews immigrated to Israel in the 1950s. You will also view Kochi's dramatic traditional Chinese nets. Locally, these nets are known as cheenavala, and they are considered the trademark of Kochi. Outside of China, the nets are found only in Kochi, and legend has it that they were brought here by merchants of Kublai Khan.

For lunch, enjoy a traditional Parimaral meal with your guide at an outdoor restaurant. Parimaral is the traditional arrangement of a meal—rice, four to five vegetarian dishes, condiments, curries—all beautifully presented on a large banana leaf (vazhaillai). The Parimaral is typical of the diversity of South Indian cuisine, and the actual choice and placement of the foods on the leaf are highly ritualistic and indicate the origin of the chef's family, as well as its status and wealth.

In the early evening, enjoy a performance of traditional arts and dance forms of Kerala, including the Kathakali, the most well known and celebrated of the dances featured in the performance. Kathakali is a classical art form, a highly stylized Indian dance-drama that originated in Kerala in the late 1500s and is known for its rhythmic drumming, elaborate costumes and fantastical makeup of characters, detailed hand and facial gestures, and synchronous body movements to the music. The Kathakali presents classical Hindu stories and plays that are religious in nature, including the Mahabarat, Ramayana, and the ancient scriptures known as the Puranas. After the performance, return to your hotel for dinner and overnight...BLD

DAY 7

KERALA BACKWATERS CRUISE

A morning drive of approximately 1.5-2 hours brings you to the romantic port town of Alleppey (known now as Alappuzha), once one of the best known seaports of the Malabar Coast. Much of the colorful traffic on Alleppey's waterways is from the thriving coconut fiber industry. On arrival, board your deluxe, private houseboat for a relaxing cruise through the tranquil backwaters of Kerala, a beautiful region nestled between the sea and the hills of Kochi. A journey through this quiet region reveals the picturesque rural life of Kerala people working their fields with water buffaloes, fishing with nets from traditional longboats, and washing their clothes at the water's edge. You may even see some school boats (no school buses here) transporting uniformed children. The natural setting ranges from brilliant green paddy fields to tropical canopies dense with banana trees and coconut palms. Through the trees, you can glimpse small farms, homes, churches, and mosques that dot the canals and lakes. You will take your meals on board, enjoying savory cuisine served by your on-board chef. In addition to the chef, your houseboat crew includes the captain, assistant captain, and engine driver, one of whom will also act as a guide for village walks and spotting aquatic birds. Overnight in a tranquil lake setting on board the Kettuvallam, your private, air-conditioned boat equipped with comfortable double sleeping cabins with private bathrooms and showers...BLD

DAY 8

CARDAMOM HILLS / PERIYAR

Disembark from your houseboat and embark on a 4.5-hour drive across rugged country roads through beautiful tea, spice, and rubber plantations, with brief stops at places of interest en route. Lush, green tea plantations carpet the hillsides, dotted by the bright colors of the saris worn by the women who harvest the tea leaves here year-round. After lunch, arrive at Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary in the Cardamom Hills of the Western Ghat Mountains. Set at a refreshingly cool altitude of around 3,500 feet, Periyar is centered on a vast lake created by the British in 1895 as a reservoir. At least 260 species of birds have been recorded at Periyar reserve. This afternoon, enjoy a visit to a private spice garden nearby as well as the local spice market, or enjoy a walk on a forested trail in the park. South India is famous for its spices: cardamom, pepper, cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, mustard, curries, and chiles flavor its distinctive cuisines, which are quite different from the northern Indian cuisine most of us are familiar with in North America. Dinner and overnight at a lodge in Periyar...BLD

Classic Accommodation: The Elephant Court Hotel (or similar)

Optional Upgrade: The Spice Village Hotel (or similar)

DAY 9

MADURAI

After an early breakfast, set out for a 4-hour drive to Madurai, one of the oldest cities in India, set on the River Vaigai, with stops at points of interest along the way. After lunch at your hotel in Madurai, join your guide for a visit to the 45-acre, fortress-like Shri Meenakshi-Sundareshwarar temple, breathtakingly baroque with its profusion of gods, goddesses, rearing horses, and mythical figures. Its 12 towering gopuras (gateways) are visible for miles around. The Meenakshi temple is one of the largest in India, enclosed by 15-foot-high walls, and the cultural heart of this holy city. It is a true “living” temple, and it is said that more than 15,000 faithful visit here each day, with about 50 bare-chested Shaivite priests in attendance. Visiting the temple is a truly intense and fascinating experience, with a constant flow of devout worshipers milling around and a profusion of colorful flowers and puja offerings (ritual worship or devotional offerings), as well as ongoing weddings, religious instruction, and the prostrations of devotees at innumerable shrines. North of the temple, you can stroll through a labyrinthine market full of produce, flowers, incense, and aromatic herbs. Dinner and overnight at The Gateway Hotel Pasumalai...BLD

Itinerary (cont'd)

DAY 10

MADURAI / CHENNAI

Spend the morning exploring the lively metropolis of Madurai, with its bustling bazaars and history dating back over two thousand years. With your guide, visit the 17th century Thirumalai Nayak Palace, with its interesting blend of Dravidian, Islamic, and European styles, and the Teppakulam (Mariamman), a large excavated area with an island shrine that is filled with water during the Teppam floating festival that takes place in January/February. After an early lunch, transfer to the airport, which will take approximately 45 minutes, and fly to Chennai (formerly known as Madras). Chennai is India's fourth largest city and situated on the Coromandel Coast of the Bay of Bengal. It was founded by the British East India Company in 1639, and although it is a very modern city today, many attractions remain from the early colonial era. Among them are Fort St. George on the seafront, built in 1640, and St. Mary's Church, dating to 1678 and now the oldest surviving Anglican church in Asia. The afternoon is at leisure. If time permits, you may wish to join your guide for a visit to Marina Beach (one of the longest city beaches in the world), with stops at San Thome Cathedral and the small museum next to it. Dinner and overnight at The Taj Coromandel...BLD

All the guest rooms are beautifully furnished in colonial-style antiques and have balconies with stunning views of the bustling Kochi harbor.

DAY 7 (1 NIGHT): ALLEPPEY, INDIA

TRADITIONAL HOUSEBOAT

The beautiful houseboats of Kerala, called kettuvallams, were once used to transport rice, spices, and other goods to the port of Cochin. Today these delightful 80-foot barges make fantastic overnight accommodations for a journey along the lagoons of Kerala. The private, air-conditioned houseboats come in a variety of shapes and sizes but all are still constructed using the traditional method of tying boards together with rope (not a single nail is used!). Each houseboat has an open-air sitting area and deck, double sleeping cabins with private bathroom and showers, and a crew of four including a chef who prepares Keralan specialties. Floating along the scenic waterways aboard a beautiful private kettuvallam is the quintessential experience of tropical South India.

SPICE VILLAGE HOTEL (OPTIONAL UPGRADE)

A marvelous eco-friendly hideaway, Spice Village has about 60 thatched bungalows scattered in a park-like setting. The bungalows aren't air-conditioned but the altitude, breezes, and forested surroundings make them very comfortable. The bar, once the park headquarters for Periyar, has a charming atmosphere and the feel of an old colonial club in the middle of a jungle. The grounds are full of fragrant spice plants and the garden supplies vegetables for the hotel's two restaurants, which offer authentic Kerala dishes as well as other options. There's a lovely swimming pool.
